When Planes Roar,
Why Do We Worry?
Magic in Words,
A Mind Diseased.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

NOT MUCH news from the war, gaining momentum in the East. Bombing airplanes evidently reverse old war methods. Formerly when enemy armies came marching, populations retired within city walls to defend themselves.

Now Japanese bombing planes come roaring, drop their bombs on the city, and the population pours into the country like rats from a sinking ship. One brief bombing, a sort of "air demonstration," is said to have emptied Tsitsihar, capital of Northern Manchuria.

WASHINGTON PREDICTS "a vast Japanese invasion" in Manchuria and is "deeply worried." Why?

What difference does it make which particular Asiatic tribe occupies the fertile lands of Manchuria? We are not the mother or father of the Chinese or Manchu race, and not mentors of the Japanese. Sam is OUR uncle, not THEIRS.

ASSORTED MONGOLIANS and others have been moving over that Far Eastern territory for thousands of years. Why get excited because they continue moving?

Why not attend to things here at home that need attention and keep on friendly terms with distant peoples by saying to them:

"Arrange matters to suit yourselves?"

THERE IS MAGIC in words, much in a name, despite Shakespeare's saying about the rose.

Edgar Cayce, his wife, Gertrude, and their secretary, arrested as fortune tellers, were told:

"You must not pretend to tell fortunes, because you can't."

Things looked dark, but Mr. Edgar Cayce knows the use of language. He told the court:

"I'm a psychic-diagnostician."

Instantly he, his wife, and their secretary were set free to diagnose psychically to their hearts' content.

When a lady had asked: "Is this the right time to make certain investments?" the psychic gave her a psychic answer. The law couldn't object to that.

"CANS'T THOU minister to a mind disease?"

"Yes," replies Cornell University. Mental trouble is due partly to certain elements of the brain, the "colloids" becoming too watery or too thick.

Drugs have been discovered that remedy both these conditions, an important step in the treatment of insanity. In one case, a man who had lain in a stupor for eight months was brought to his senses in four minutes.

No cure-all has been discovered, but everything may be hoped for, since it is possible to cure paresis, by allowing the victim to be bitten by mosquitoes bearing malaria germs.

AN ACTIVE gangster's life may be profitable, but cannot be peaceful. Guglielmo Guico, only 28, was a super-gangster who did not waste his time blackmailing small merchants. Petty extortion seemed to him unworthy of a man of parts.

He waited until minor gangsters had practiced extortion, then took from them part of their earnings. He had even "divided" with Giuseppi Pirana, known as "the clutching hand." The clutching hand was killed off about two years ago.

Guico abandoned his "racket" suddenly, early yesterday, when a majority of 22 bullets found him sitting in a Brooklyn restaurant. A young man sitting with him, not a criminal, also was killed.

GERMANY SEEMS to be following England on the road labeled: "This way out of the gold standard." Germans that ship goods abroad are said to collect for them in gold, leaving the gold abroad, instead of bringing it into Germany.

In the last week the Reichsbank lost 18 millions in gold.

Germany's export business is flourishing remarkably, but the Dawes plan, that expected to get hundreds of millions a year in gold from Germany, and private lenders, here and in England, that lent other hundreds of millions, will probably have to do without gold.

WE HAVE HAD no more interesting or welcome visitor in a long time than Grandi, Mussolini's foreign minister, who represents the power of modern Italy and the energy of ancient Rome.

This country owes much to Italy, beginning with Christopher Columbus, who discovered us, and including Marconi, who taught us to talk through the air.

Whatever Grandi wants, within reason, the American people would like him and his people to have.

Long ago, when he was at St. Helena, reviewing his past, Napoleon said:

"I intended to make the Mediterranean a French lake."

Would Mussolini, perhaps, like to make the Mediterranean an Italian lake, as it was once, when Carthage had been eliminated? With the help of Russia, the Italians might do this.

Armstrong Fighting Death; End Feared Near

ARMSTRONG FIGHTING DEATH

Commissioner's Family at Bedside; Hope Abandoned As Strain Weakens Heart

County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong was clinging to life today with the same tenacious spirit which carried him through a score of bitter political campaigns.

The end regarded as a matter of hours, Armstrong refused to abandon his battle for life this afternoon and, in the bedroom of his home in Carson street, he chatted for an hour with a good friend, J. Boyd Euwer, Republican County Treasurer.

HOPE ABANDONED

There was, however, little hope held out for the political leader who was crushingly defeated at the polls in the last primary.

Dr. C. B. Schildecker, his personal physician, summoned to his bedside at 6 a. m., said:

"It's the beginning of the end. His heart has started to fail. His condition is extremely serious."

GREETS DOCTOR

Dr. Schildecker, on his second visit, leaving at 10 a. m., said:

"The Commissioner greeted me with 'Hello, doctor,' but he's failing rapidly. His heart is irregular and rapid. He may last an hour or may last 24 hours."

This afternoon Dr. T. T. Sheppard, Dr. Schildecker's colleague, visited Armstrong's bedside and reported that his temperature was 103 and his condition unchanged. He said:

"He is still a very sick man."

Dr. Sheppard added that Armstrong again had lapsed into a coma.

Earlier today the Commissioner's son, Senator Joseph G. Armstrong, Jr., said his father's temperature was above 105 and his pulse 170.

Relatives summoned during the early morning hours were at his bedside.

The younger Armstrong said:

"We don't expect father to live through the day. He is beyond all help."

Commissioner Armstrong is ill of pneumonia and diabetes.

According to Dr. Schildecker, Armstrong's age—63—increases the gravity of his condition.

COLLEAGUES PAY VISIT

His colleagues—County Commissioners Charles C. McGovern and Edward V. Babcock—visited the Armstrong home last night. Mayor Charles H. Kline also was reported to have been a visitor. Early today Harry McCloskey, county Bureau Statistician, was summoned to Armstrong's bedside.

Others to visit the home this morning were Roy Walters, the Commissioner's secretary, and James E. Routley, assistant chief clerk in the Commissioner's office.

An indication of the regard his neighbors had for the veteran Commissioner was manifest this morning. Hundreds of passersby stopped to inquire about his condition. Street cars stopped and autos slowed down while the riders asked the policemen on duty about his condition.

Emerging from his home early today Senator Armstrong said he had talked with his father for a short time.

'Perfect Boy' Born to Tunneys

By QUENTIN REYNOLDS
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—"It's a boy," they told Gene Tunney this morning.

The former heavyweight champion, who had spent a sleepless night at the Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center, looked up at the smiling doctors with a dazed expression on his face. Then he arose on shaky legs just as he did in the famous seventh round at Chicago. He asked:

"And Polly . . ."

"Fine, fine. Everything is great. It's a grand boy who'll be able to lick you in another few years. You should see his muscles."

"May I?"

Just then another nurse appeared with a bundle of inert something or other in her arms. It was Gene Tunney, Jr., looking querously at this strange world and at the white-faced man who looked at him with such a look of awe. The baby seemed to say:

"So that's your heavyweight champion, hey. He doesn't look so tough to me."

An interne told Tunney:

"It's the most perfect baby I ever saw. Look at those extra-

FATAL PARTY DESCRIBED TO JURY

Mt. Lebanon Widow Pays Little Heed as Inquest Into Mate's Death Opens

A wild house party at the home of A. L. Culbertson, in the fashionable Mt. Lebanon district, was a forerunner of the shooting to death of Culbertson by his wife Sunday afternoon, according to testimony at the inquest today.

Chief of Police William J. Kane, of the Mt. Lebanon force, testified that Mrs. Hazel Walker, of Mt. Vernon, O., a guest, had told him, following the shooting, that she had suffered black and blue marks on her arms wrestling on the floor with other guests at the party Saturday night.

REPEATS WIFE'S STORY

She later explained, Kane testified, that at the time she was bruised she was trying to prevent a fight between Mrs. Culbertson and her husband.

Asked as to the story told by Mrs. Culbertson, Kane testified:

"She said that she had been having trouble with her husband Saturday night and Sunday, and that everybody had been drinking. She told me she had taken the gun out of the garage and was going to hide it in a closet. While she was pass-

SAVE SCHOOL IN 3-HOUR BATTLE

80 Firemen Called Out by 6 Alarms Check Flames Threatening Destruction

Seventeen firemen were overcome by smoke or injured as they fought a courageous and winning battle to save the Homewood Public School Building from destruction today.

Six alarms sent 16 pieces of fire apparatus to the scene at Hamilton and North Lang avenues. The blaze was confined to the eastern wing of the school.

Thousands, including school children, who, their books under their arms, watched the heroic efforts of the firemen who were handicapped by great clouds of suffocating smoke and flames that crept up the thick walls of the building.

BATTLE THREE HOURS

For five hours more than 80 firemen groped their way to the heart of the flames in the fan room and boiler room in the basement.

Surrounded by her school children and teachers, Miss Maria Patton Knox, the principal, watched anxiously as the firemen fought successfully to keep the flames from spreading to the newer section of the building.

Miss Knox exclaimed:

"Thank God the children weren't in there!"

The flames, discovered by three cleaning women when they reported for duty, broke out two hours before the 770 pupils were scheduled to assemble for classes.

HALF-TIME CLASSES

Ben G. Graham, superintendent of schools, announced after the fire was under control that classes probably would be held in the rear section of the building, although he predicted half-time classes would be held, one group

Jury Sees Birthmark; 'Snooper' Accused Of Seeking Date

By AL GOUGH
Staff Correspondent.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 18.—Esther Williams, slender, young school teacher, with whom Dr. John T. West, principal of Morgantown High School, is accused of misconduct behind the locked doors of his office, took the witness stand in Dr. West's trial late today.

A timid, retiring, typically school teacher type, Miss Williams was called upon to show the jury a birthmark on her leg, mentioned in accusations against the pair made from the witness stand yesterday by Percy H. Smith, night janitor at the school, who admitted his alleged evidence had been obtained by squinting through a peephole he and two other janitors had drilled in the ceiling of Dr. West's office.

SHOWS BIRTHMARK

Primly she displayed the birthmark, about three inches above the knee, while the jury of 12 men studied it intently.

Earlier in the day Dr. West, from the witness stand, had denied all the charges against him

MRS. PINCHOT IN G. O. P. ROW

HARRISBURG, Nov. 18.—(INS.)—Charging the Pennsylvania Council of Republican Women has fallen under the domination of "organization" factions in the party, Mrs. Gifford Pinchot this afternoon announced she would sever her official relations with the board of directors of the council of which she is a member.

Mrs. Pinchot's announcement, in the form of a letter to Mrs. Hanah M. Durham, Allentown, chairman of the nominating committee, came as a spectacular and unheralded development in the council's convention, now in session here. The letter was made public only a short time before Gov. Gifford Pinchot was scheduled to address the delegates.

Although frigid relations between Mrs. Pinchot and the council, which she helped to found, were evidenced by the absence of her name from the program—she was a featured speaker at the last meeting in Pittsburgh—her notice of resignation came as a complete surprise today.

CANADA EXPLAINS SALES TAX TO U. S. CONGRESSMEN

OFFICIALS URGE SYSTEM AS PRACTICAL

By CHARLES J. McGUIRK
International News Service.

OTTAWA, Ontario, Nov. 18.—(INS.)—Sales taxes have been found to be a practical method of raising revenue for the government, officials of the Canadian tax collecting agency told more than 60 United States Senators and Representatives here today.

No insurmountable difficulties have been met by the government in administering the sales tax law, it was said. The tax has been a fruitful source of revenue, about $20,000,000 having been collected through it last year.

The members of Congress have come to Canada under auspices of William Randolph Hearst to study the experience of Canada with the sales tax which is being urged upon Congress as a means for balancing the budget of the United States Treasury.

U. S. TAX INCREASE SEEN

The consensus of opinion in the visiting party seemed to be that a revenue-increasing bill should be passed at the next session of Congress to wipe out a Treasury deficit.

The Senator and representatives engaged in a round-table discussion with officials of the Dominion's Revenue Department. The government has assigned tax experts to the party to furnish information on Canada's experience with this form of taxation.

After attending a luncheon given by the Canadian government at the Chateau Laurier, the United States lawmakers left in their special train over the Canadian National Railways for Montreal, where a theater party was on the program for tonight.

Following the theatrical performance the visitors were scheduled to leave for Quebec, where tomorrow the provincial government and City of Quebec will extend goodwill receptions.

QUEBEC RECEPTION

One of the high spots of the Quebec visit will be a reception to the visitors on the floor of the provincial legislative assembly, which is in session.

The party will leave Quebec for the United States Thursday night. Some of the members will leave the special train at New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore, most of them will continue to Washington to prepare for the opening of Congress December 7.

The visitors were given a dinner by the Canadian government last night with Sir George Perley, acting prime minister, extending a cordial welcome and offering the services of the Dominion's tax-collecting agency to provide the Senators and Representatives authentic data on the sales tax as it has operated here.

Senator Thomas P. Gore (Dem.), of Oklahoma, predicted that the United States and Canada would never go to war, because of the similarity of the people and institutions of the two countries.

E. B. Ryckman, minister of revenue, presided.

Cantor's Jokes Threaten To Break Up Court

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Eddie Cantor, appearing as a witness, made jury and spectators laugh so hard and so long that the surrogate threatened to clear the court room yesterday.

Cantor appeared as a witness for Charlotte M. Fixel, who is attempting to have herself declared the common law wife of the late Abraham L. Erlanger, in order that she may sue for dower rights in his estate. Cantor said he had known Erlanger 16 years, and that Miss Fixel had been introduced to him as "Mrs. Erlanger."

"Your profession?" inquired Max D. Steuer, Miss Fixel's attorney.

"It is hard to say—it has always been doubtful—but I am supposed to be an actor."

"Please tell what happened, in your own way," Steuer directed, as Cantor told of meeting Erlanger and Miss Fixel in London one day.

"Why—he put his hands up and wanted to box me," Cantor began, raising his own hands in a boxing posture.

It was at this point that the laughter got so loud that the surrogate threatened to clear the courtroom.

Cantor then explained that he and Erlanger used to box together.

WEST ATTACKS 'PEEP' STORY

All through the defense witnesses testimony, Dr. West's counsel attempted to show that the principal, Miss Williams and Blanche Garfield, another teacher accused of improprieties with the 56-year-old West, were the victims of a plot engineered by Superintendent of Schools Charles E. McCorkle.

SPURNED "SNOOPER"

Miss Williams told the jury that Smith had, on two occasions, attempted to "make a date" with her. She told him, she testified:

"Mr. Smith, you are a married man, and I don't make dates with married men."

Defense counsel asked her:

"Miss Williams, it has been charged that you participated in an act of misconduct with Principal West in his office on the afternoon of May 26 between the hours of 4:30 and 6 p. m. Did you?"

Bristling primly, the teacher replied:

"I did not."

She then started a recital of her activities on May 26, obviously to the end of establishing an alibi.

She said seh had a dinner date with John Phillips, another teacher, on the day Smith claims the misconduct with Dr. West took place.

She met Phillips in the afternoon and then drove to Fairmont for dinenr and a show, Miss Williams testified.

Concluding her story, she vigorously denied improper relations with West at any time.

While West was on the stand he testified that Smith had told him of prowling around the school grounds at night seeking student rendezvous and of how he "enjoyed" turning his flashlight on discovered couples.

WEST ON STAND

Following a parade of character witnesses, defense attorney called West to the stand shortly after 10 o'clock. He told first of his professional relations with Supt. of Schools Charles E. McCorkle, whom the defense has charged with a plot to oust the principal from his position.

During his testimony, West testified that McCorkle had come to his office shortly after assuming the superintendency and told him that he understood the principal was trying to take his job away from him. West continued:

"I told him he need have no fears of my having ambitions of ascending to his position.

"He came to me on numerous occasions to talk about 'loyalty.' He said it was his practice at certain times of the year to check up on loyalty among teachers and others in the schools.

"I told him he need not check up on me."

Then West told how he had been required to reprimand Smith and O. D. Harris, another of the "peeping janitors." He said:

"Smith (who was night watchman) told me of clandestine meetings between men and women, as well as boys and girls of the student body, on the school grounds at night.

SPIED ON PETTERS

"He told me he enjoyed flashing his night lights on couples he came upon unawares, and he said he got especial delight in the shame of students he might have seen during the night when he came across them in the school corridors the next day."

West said he took Smith to task for such practices and told him he would not recommend his reappointment.

United States Senator M. M. Neely, chief defense counsel, then asked the witness if Smith's allegations of misconduct, made from the stand yesterday, were true. West answered:

"No man ever told a more consumate or damnable lie than Percy Smith."

After West had made a denial of improper relations with Miss Williams, Senator Neely turned him over to the state for cross-examination.

The principal then testified that he had nothing to do with the architectural arrangement of his office. The janitors yesterday called attention to the office having four doors, none with windows and each having a cylindrical lock without an outside keyhole.

Questioned as to his attitude toward McCorkle, West said:

"I respected Dr. McCorkle as a superintendent—and the whole matter ended with just that."

Prosecutor Albert Shuman then asked him about writings supposed to have been made on the school walls referring to West's alleged misconduct with women teachers. The principal admitted having seen the inscriptions and said:

"I recall one."

He said it referred to "Miss Donley." Miss Nellie Donley is assistant principal of the school.

Before leaving the stand, Smith said he had complained to Supt. McCorkle about Janitor Smith.

The defense then resumed its parade of character witnesses. Seventeen were called yesterday afternoon, all testifying in praise of Dr. West. Almost as many were on the stand before noon today. Among these was Dr. Frank Butler Trotter, former president of West Virginia University.

Another awaiting call, was Charles T. Hickman, former Mayor of Morgantown and an ex-big league ball player, who was a member of the grand jury which indicted West and the two teachers.

The Rev. Dr. J. Leslie French, of West Virginia University, testifying yesterday in behalf of West, declared he "objected strenuously" to people who "stooped so low as to snoop."

Prosecutor Shuman asked:

"Well, Doctor, do you think it is better to let an affair of this kind go on without interruption."

"Yes, if this is the only way it can be apprehended."

KLINE TO WORK FOR 2 WEEKS WITHOUT PAY

Mayor Loses $750 by Plan; Makes Furloughs General For All City Employes

Mayor Charles H. Kline last night agreed to work two weeks without pay, at the same time issuing similar orders to cabinet heads and employes of departments not yet affected by the furloughs ordered some time ago.

In a letter to all departments, the Mayor made the furloughs general. Employes of the Public Safety and Public Works departments have begun their "vacations." One week is to be taken this month and the second in December. Approximately 6,000 employes are affected, with an estimated saving in wages and salaries of $300,000.

KLINE CRITICIZED

Those close to the administration said at City Hall last night the letter was issued because of the complaints made by many employes that the Mayor was unsportsmanlike in not announcing his furlough when he ordered those of men and women in the ranks.

City Council is its own authority and no decision has been reached as to whether the lawmaking body would follow in the Mayor's footsteps. Mayor Kline's cut will save the city approximately $750. The Mayor's letter—the contents of which was not made public—made no exceptions among the city forces. A revision of schedules may be necessitated, it was said, because in some bureaus and departments it had been considered almost impossible to dispense with certain employes whose work involved special training or experience.

FEW 'VACATIONS'

Few employes are taking the "vacation," but are working regularly and not collecting their checks. It was said that in some of the institutions, including the City Home and Hospital at Mayview, "black marks" were being placed opposite the names on the payrolls of employes who have laid off instead of working without pay. These were said to mean that these employes will be discharged first if orders come to cut down the staff.

The furlough plan was developed at a meeting of the Mayor and his cabinet some time ago in an effort to effect economy by starting 1932 without a payroll budget from the present year.

INQUEST TOLD OF WILD PARTY

ing her husband in a bedroom, he grabbed the muzzle of the gun and it was discharged, Mrs. Culbertson told me.

While the inquest was in progress this afternoon, funeral services were being held for Culbertson in Mt. Vernon, O., his birthplace.

DOCTOR TESTIFIED

Mrs. Culbertson, wearing a chic born ensemble with fur to match, was taken from jail by Deputy Coroner John Artz.

He asked her:

"How do you feel?"

She replied:

"What do you expect?"

Instead of being placed as is customary in the prisoner's box of the coroner's jury room, Mrs. Culbertson sat in the front row of the seats reserved for witnesses, sitting between Deputy Artz and Patrolman Swoger, of the Mt. Lebanon police force.

Her head bowed, resting on her right hand, the accused woman apparently paid little heed to the testimony. Clasped in her hand was a handkerchief but it was not used.

Dr. T. R. Helmbold, coroner's physician, the first witness, testified his examination of Culbertson's body showed a wound one and a half inches in diameter in the right breast, surrounded by small shot holes and in the wound a wad of paper from the shotgun shell.

The charge penetrated the right lung lobe, causing death, he said.

SCRATCHES ON FACE

Dr. Helmbold testified he had found a number of shallow scratches on Culbertson's face and chest, but didn't state what, in his opinion, had caused the scratches.

Using Samuel Shenkan, coroner's clerk, to demonstrate, Dr. Helmbold illustrated the location of the wounds in Culbertson's body.

Chief of Police Kane testified he had been called to the Culbertson home about 2 p. m., Sunday, where he found Mrs. Culbertson and Mrs. Walker on a divan in the first floor living room, both too excited to give a satisfactory account of the shooting.

Kane said he had talked with Albert Culbertson, Jr., 11, and that the boy had said his parents had been arguing and quarreling Saturday and Sunday. The boy said he had rushed into the house from the rear yard when he heard a shot fired.

Walker had been absent from the house at a gasoline service station when the shooting occurred, Kane said Walker told him.

When Walker found out what had happened he took the shotgun to the basement and fired the remaining shell to prevent an accidental firing of the gun, he explained, according to Kane.

By this time Mrs. Culbertson had emerged from her seeming apathy and was taking a close interest in the testimony.

HICCOUGHING FOR 11TH DAY

MANSFIELD, O., Nov. 18—(AP.)—In his hospital room plastered with suggested but unavailing cures, Ira A. King hiccoughed for the eleventh successive day today.

Physicians, however, reported that for the first time since the attack seized him, King's condition was slightly improved. Members of his family said that after being unable to partake of nourishment for several days, he had been given a small quantity of broth at intervals.

Attendants also said King, a well-to-do garage owner, experienced some relief during a few brief periods.

Physicians believe the seige of hiccoughs which have wracked King might be due to some peculiar infection. All sorts of remedies have been tried, however, with no success so far.

U. S. Ship Blast Kills 14 in China

SHANGHAI, Nov. 18.—(INS.)—Fourteen persons lost their lives when explosion and fire wrecked the American-owned Yangtze River steamer, Itu, 323 miles above Ichang on Monday, according to word received here today.

Two hundred passengers aboard the vessel, including a number of Americans and other foreigners, were rescued by Chinese and other steamers. The United States steamship, Tutuila, is standing by to take the survivors to Hankow.

ordinary muscles. Look at his arms. He weighs well over seven pounds too."

So little Gene Tunney met big Gene Tunney and it must be confessed that the former champion, whose aplomb and presence of mind under the most trying conditions have always amazed his friends, was the more embarrassed.

Then they let Gene in to see Polly. But after all . . . even a former heavyweight champion must be given some privacy.

Emerging from the room with shining eyes he brushed by the smiling nurses and doctors. One of them said:

"I guess you feel pretty good, Gene?"

"There's just one thing I want."

"What's that?"

"Well, I'd like a handful of nickels. I want to tell the world that the new heavyweight champion has arrived and has the situation well in hand."

The Tunneys fooled everyone by having their baby born at the medical center. During the past few months reports of the forthcoming event have been heard and Tunney never denied them. The arrival of young Gene (of course he'll be a junior) was not exactly a secret, but Mrs. Tunney registered at the hospital under another name and not even hospital attendants realized who their patient was.

FIRST SINCE FITZ

Incidentally this is the first time that a heavyweight champion boxer has become a father since Bob Fitzsimmons, Jr., was born to Ruby Robert 35 years ago. Young Bob was cut out for the prize ring from the day of his birth, but Tunney's aversion to professional boxing has been well known for years and it is hardly likely that the red faced youngster, who is the cynosure of all eyes at the medical center, will ever don a glove—unless as an adjunct to evening dress.

As soon as the news became known the telephones at the hospital began to sound an incessant clamor. The names of those who called to congratulate Gene were picked from the social register, from Broadway, from political life and from the circles which Gene once graced as heavyweight champion.

William Eynon Phelps called from New Haven. Jimmy Johnston called from Madison Square Garden. Bernard Gimbel, Sam Pryor, Dudley Field Malone, Mayor James J. Walker—a hundred others phoned to greet the youngster, who only yawned and wondered what all the fuss was about.

AL SMITH GUEST OF ROOSEVELT AT LUNCHEON

Governor, Predecessor Won't Hint at Meaning of First Meeting Since Clash

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Alfred E. Smith today broke bread together for the first time since their widely publicized disagreement over state reforestation amendment ended in victory for Roosevelt.

Neither would say anything revealing about the meeting as they went in to luncheon at the Governor's town house. Guesses as to the topics to be discussed by the titular leader of the Democratic party, with the man who is considered a leading candidate for the presidential nomination next year have ranged from prohibition to methods of patching up a rumored breach between the two men.

Reporters who saw the Governor before the former state executive arrived could obtain no statement of the matters to be talked over. Smiling, Roosevelt finally shooed them out, with the declaration that there wasn't room in the same house for himself, Al Smith and a bunch of reporters. The Governor laughed:

"You know Al's voice and my voice are both very penetrating."

When Smith arrived about 11:30 a. m., the newspapermen stopped him on the way into the house, but he said he had nothing to say. Asked when he would leave, he said:

SMOOT FAVORS TAX RAISE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Increases in income taxes and imposition of a selective sales tax were recommended today by Chairman Smoot, of the Senate finance committee, an administration spokesman on revenue legislation.

Smoot proposed that the income tax rates be raised all along the line with the top boost centered on the higher incomes.

He favored a maximum surtax of 40 per cent applying on incomes over $100,000—double that now in effect.

A declaration of the finance chairman came after a visit at the Treasury, where the administration's program is virtually complete. His words were regarded significantly at the Capitol.

Smoot said the amount to be raised has not been finally determined by the government. He expects it to be necessary to provide for an additional $1,200,000,000 by taxation.

He was uncertain how far, if at all, an attempt would be made to raise the rates on all incomes, but he believed it was likely that a slight raise all along the line was inevitable.

Green Cards, Boll Weevil Enliven Tall Story Club

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Several ordinarily veracious citizens got together last night as members of the Tall Story Club and told some whoppers.

Gar Wood, the speedboater, told of a fish he had hooked—a great big fellow—who sped off through the water with the hook in his mouth, pulling Wood's boat. When Wood finally hauled the fish in, he was surprised to find it was just a minnow. Wood said the violent exercise had reduced the fish to that size.

Ely Culbertson said a bridge player in Hades finally got the best possible bridge hand and bid a grand slam in no trump. The man on his left, Mephisto, doubled and then led out the top cards of a new suit—green.

Bruce Barton informed the assembly that the reason cottontail rabbits are so scarce this year in the South is that the boll weevil, driven to it by the scarcity of cotton, have been chasing the rabbits for the cotton in their tails.

This sort of things went on for hours.

JOHN D. WEEPS IN HAPPINESS FOR FUTURE

Tears Flow as Meditation Exhorts 'Feet of Fawn,' But Golf Brings Chuckles

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 18.—Bringing with him a word of optimism for the future, John D. Rockefeller, Sr., resumed the role of "Neighbor John" as he arrived in Florida today for his winter sojourn.

In poem, prayer and meditation the 94-year-old founder of one of the world's largest fortunes, expressed his sentiments on the 'sunlit days' that are ahead.

The first warm rays of the morning sun, which he comes to Florida every winter to enjoy, filtered into the drawing room of his private car where he and two feminine members of his household were having breakfast as an Associated Press staff writer was ushed in.

SHARES MEDITATIONS

He smiled cordially waving his visitor to a seat beside the table, after felicitations had been exchanged. He said:

"You are just in time to share with us our morning meditations.

"I think there is a particularly timely sentiment expressed here. Won't you read it slowly for us please?"

He handed the reporter a copy of Folger McKinsey's "Sunlit Days."

It read in part:

"We'll sing of the better things, my friend.
"And we'll think of the better ways;
"We'll trust tomorrow to heal our sorrow
"As beauty has healed today's."

A tear trickled down the cheek of the aged multi-millionaire as the poem was concluded. He murmured:

"Ah, that is indeed a beautiful and timely sentiment. Will you read the prayer?"

A baked apple, cereal and tea sat upon the table untouched as this brief prayer was read:

"I would be quiet, Lord,
"Nor tease, nor fret
"Not one small need of mine
"Wilt thou forget—Amen."

OPTIMISM NOTED

Rockefeller's own daily meditation, a fixture at the family breakfast, coincidentally expressed in religious fervor a word of optimism.

It was headed "Exhilarant Spirits" and quoted a line from the Psalms:

"He maketh my feet like hinds' feet."

It went on:

"I think of Wordsworth's lines, in which he described a natural lady, made by nature herself:

"'She shall be sportive as the fawn.
"'That wild with glee across the lawn
"'Or up the mountain springs.'

"And it is this buoyancy, this elasticity, this springiness that the Lord is waitng to impart to the souls of his children, so that they may move along the ways of life with the light steps of the fawn."

WIPES AWAY TEAR

As the reporter stopped reading, Rockefeller reached for his handkerchief and wiped a tear from under his famous hinged and tinted eyeglasses. The talk turned to lighter things. Asked about his golf, Rockefeller threw back his head and laughed heartily, replying:

"Bless you, and that might not be so good, at that."

The interviewer was the first to greet Rockefeller upon his arrival in Florida and he was rewarded with a shower of shiny new dimes, but only one for himself. The others were designated for various members of his immediate family with a "bless you" and "bless them" prefixing the presentation of each.

This is the first season Rockefeller has come to his Florida home before Thanksgiving.

MATE DENIES STRANGLING

WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Although confronted with evidence that his automobile had been near the spot where the body of his estranged girl-wife was found, Dudley Doyle, 17, of Moundsville, W. Va., reiterated today that he knew nothing about her death.

Doyle was taken to the morgue today to view her body. He looked at his wife for a moment, turned aside and sat down on a divan, his demeanor still unchanged. He was quizzed in the morgue, but nothing was developed that would lead to solution of the crime, police said.

The body of the girl was identified yesterday as that of the former Marie Burch, 17, of Bellaire, O. Shortly afterward Doyle was arrested at his home in Moundsville.

The dead girl, who had been garroted with four strands of hempen rope, was identified by her father. Her parents told police she left her home in Bellaire last Friday night, ostensibly to keep an appointment with her husband, and she was not seen alive by them again.

Boy Stages Store Holdup in Detroit

DETROIT, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—A small boy, apparently about 10 years old, participated in the holdup today of William Payne's malt and hop store in Mack avenue.

Payne said the boy entered the store and asked the price of a brand of malt. As he turned to get the article the boy drew a pistol and ordered the clerk to hold up his hands. Payne said he thought the youngster was joking, but two young men entered the shop and took $36 from the cash register while the boy covered him.

Pons Concert Due, Theater Safe Robbed

BALTIMORE, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Burglars last night entered the inner office of the Lyric Theater, forced open a safe and escaped with $2,400 a few minutes before the ticket office opened for an operatic concert by Lily Pons, of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

The robbery was discovered by Edward Crabbe, ticket seller, who arrived at the theater a few minutes after 6 o'clock. Police were called and fingerprints were discovered on the door of the safe.

Harvard Students Hurt in Crash

DEDHAM, Mass., Nov. 18.—(INS.)—One Harvard student was seriously injured and three others sustained slight injuries today when their automobile skidded and crashed into a telephone pole. John Mitchell, sophomore, of Villa Nova, Pa., operator of the automobile, was in a serious condition at Stillman Infirmary. William Simpson, of Chicago; Daniel Sands and William Stanfiest, both of Cambridge, were treated for cuts and bruises.

OVER NIAGARA IN RAID DASH

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Nov. 18.—(AP.)—One rum runner was believed to have gone to his death over the American Falls last night when he leaped from his beer-laden craft in the Niagara River. His companion was captured by immigration border patrolmen at the head of Goat Island.

The prisoner gave his name as Mike Pyzyski, 18, of this city. The young man who is eluding capture and is supposed to have lost his life, was known to Pyzyski only as Louis.

The head of Goat Island is about an eighth of a mile above the cataract. When Pyzyski and his companion landed their 18-foot rowboat at the head of the island, two federal officers awaited them. Both boatmen ran into the river toward the American shore. Pyzyski turned back, but the other man continued out into the swift rapids and started swimming. He was last seen after having been carried by the current to a point a few yards from the brink of the precipice.

$25,000 Audit Cost 1932 Budget Item

Controller James P. Kerr's request for a $25,000 appropriation to defray cost of an audit of the City Treasurer's books, will be made a matter of the 1932 budget, Council's finance committee decided yesterday.

The audit is being conducted by Price, Waterhouse & Co., the firm that audited records of the Department of Supplies, resulting in the indictment of Mayor Charles H. Kline and Supplies Department Director Bertram L. Succop on charges of malfeasance in office. Council will begin budget sessions next week according to present arrangements.

Wabash Tube Case Held Open 10 Days

Judge James H. Gray has made an order in Quarter Sessions Court granting 10 days' extension of time for the county to file exceptions to the action of the grand jury in disapproving purchase of the Wabash railroad bridge and tunnel, which the County wants to purchase for $3,000,000 and convert into a vehicular roadway. Assistant County Solicitor B. B. McGinness asked the extension, on the ground more time was needed to prepare the county's case. The grand jury filed its report November 7 and it would have become final yesterday.

Gandhi Raps U. S. Pastor After Over-SeaPhone Call

LONDON, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Mahatma Gandhi talked across the Atlantic Ocean over a telephone for the first time in his life yesterday. He bestowed his blessings on the American people and said he would visit them "in God's appointed time."

He was hurrying to keep an appointment with Lady Astor when the 'phone rang and the operator announced that St. Paul, Minn., was calling. The Rev. Fred Fisher, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church at Ann Arbor, Mich., and a former missionary in Calcutta, was on the line and he wanted to invite Gandhi to come to America. Gandhi said:

"But God has not yet cleared my way, besides, I feel that nothing important hangs on my going to America at present. I think it is more important that I return to Bombay to gird India's loins for a new struggle against Britain for liberty.

"I will go to America in God's appointed time, but my inner voice tells me that time has not arrived. Give my love and blessings to the American people."

Hanging up the receiver, Gandhi exclaimed:

"A miracle."

But when he was told that the call had cost about $120, he replied:

"Well, a Bishop should have better sense than to drop so much good money into the Atlantic Ocean."

DEB TO ASSIST DEFENSE OF BROTHER

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 18.—Rose Allen, 18-year-old society deb whose sweetheart, Francis A. Donaldson III, was shot to death by her brother nine days ago, has undergone a change of heart and may take an active part in her brother's defense, it was reported today.

At the same time, it was learned Mrs. Francis A. Donaldson II, mother of the slain youth, has collapsed, and is under a physician's care.

Henry G. Pearce, friend of the Allen family in whose home both Rose and her father, Horace Allen, sought shelter following the shooting, denied today Rose will go abroad. That some such arrangement was being considered had been learned from a confidential source close to the Allen family.

If Rose does not go abroad, it was pointed out, she undoubtedly will be called as a witness before the grand jury, when it convenes in January, and at the trial of her brother, Edward, 23, now in Norristown jail.

I visited "Eddie" at the jail Monday, when a reconciliation was effected. She said then she was there "because I love my brother." It is believed now that whatever plans had been laid for a trip abroad were canceled in the belief that she will be better able to help "Eddie" by her presence here.

"Eddie's" exact legal status continued to puzzle the authorities.

Nicholas' Defi Brings Carol's Arrest Threat

PARIS, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Prince Nicholas, of Rumania, is under threat of arrest by his brother, King Carol, following a hot quarrel between the two at the Palace in Bucharest after the Prince's recent marriage to a commoner, it was learned today.

The details of the quarrel, just revealed here, told of a stormy scene in which King Carol tore up the marriage certificates before the Prince's eyes and the Prince countered with defiance, declaring he had had photostatic copies. The Prince snapped:

"I anticipated your unreasonable behavior, and your bad temper. I had copies made of those papers. You don't think I intended to allow my children to be declared illegitimate, do you?"

The King replied:

"You will have a few days in which to think this over, young man. Remember, I can put you under arrest at any moment and deprive you of all your royal privileges."

Prince Nicholas, it is said, turned on his heel and stalked out of the royal presence.

FEATURE FILMS FOR BENEFITS

Many first-run motion picture productions will be feature attractions at the gigantic motion picture unemployment relief benefit shows to be held in most of Allegheny County's theaters on next Sunday evening, it was announced today by producers as plans for the benefit advanced.

More than 70 theaters are participating in the program being arranged under the auspices of the Motion Picture Exhibitors Association and sponsored by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette and the Pittsburgh Press, John H. Harris, committee chairman, said today.

Tickets for the shows which went on sale in the lobbies of the participating theaters on Monday are going rapidly, and there is every indication capacity audiences will attend the productions, which are to start at 8 p. m. Sunday night. Theater doors will open at 7:30 p. m.

Every cent taken in will be turned over to the Allegheny County Emergency Association for the relief of the county's unemployed.

PARENTS DENY TORTURE GUILT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—(INS.)—Harry N. and Elsie Riley, father and stepmother, respectively, of Edith Riley, the 13-year-old girl who, her brother and sister claim, was kept locked in a dark, airless closet for the greater part of four years, appeared in District of Columbia Supreme Court today and pleaded not guilty.

The grand jury had returned indictments against the pair charging them with "wilful torture and cruelty with force of arms."

Edith was rescued from the closet November 6 by a policewoman who heard about her plight through stories circulated by her brother, Francis Riley, 15.

Meanwhile, little Edith denied the companionship of little child playmates during the four long years she was allegedly locked in the darkness of a closet, today asked to play with a "live baby."

Ever ready to please the child, the nurse took her by the hand and led her to a nursery where a fair-haired baby was happily busy in a crib. Edith started at the child with all the curiosity of an explorer sighting a new race.

Maryland Postoffice Yields Rum, Stills

LEONARDTOWN, Md., Nov. 18—(INS.)—Federal dry agents raided the postoffice at Jarboesville, Md., near here, arrested Postmaster Anton Lang, confiscated 235 gallons of rye whisky, and destroyed two large stills in operation on the second floor of the barn behind the post office, the agents reported yesterday.

JAPAN SEIZES CAPITAL IN MANCHURIA

Tsitsihar Captured, Army Of Gen. Mah Scattered; Action by Russia Feared

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Japan's Manchurian army took over Tsitsihar, capital of the northern province of Heilungkiang, at 8 o'clock tonight, disarmed the Chinese police and issued a proclamation promising full protection for law-abiding citizens.

The Chinese army, fleeing through a blinding blizzard, broke into two scattering sections and moved northward in a treat which appeared to have turned into a rout.

Dispatches from the Japanese front told of a major engagement in which there were heavy casualties on both sides.

CHINESE LINE BROKEN

Gen. Honjo used his cavalry to good effect, breaking through the Chinese front line and preparing the way for an infantry attack which swept around the Chinese right flank.

A Chinese effort to encircle the Japanese flank failed and the Chinese lines broke.

Honjo, the dispatches said, swept up to Anganchi, 18 miles south of Tsitsihar, crossed the Chinese Eastern Railway, took over a suburban town a mile and a half outside the walled city, then moved into Tsitsihar.

This brought him definitely into the sphere of Russian influence and fears were expressed that Soviet Russia might be drawn into the conflict.

This battle, beginning early in the morning, took the Japanese to Tsitsihar after dusk, word from the front said. It was waged in bitter cold weather with a wind out of the Arctic, sweeping down from Siberia across the frost-bound Manchurian plains.

RESISTANCE FAILS

Japanese dispatches said Gen. Mah Chan-Shan had a strong force of Chinese troops ready for the offensive but, although he resisted stubbornly in the fighting below Anganchi, the last stages of the advance were said to have been accomplished with little or no resistance.

Weather conditions were such as have rarely been experienced in modern warfare and the Chinese troops were required to do more fighting than has any other Chinese army for decades.

The Japanese war machine, however, was more than a match for the heavier enemy, dispatches indicated, and Gen. Mah's forces were driven into flight, apparently toward Harbin.

Japan's Action Alarms League Conference

PARIS, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—News that the Japanese army had occupied the Manchurian city of Tsitsihar aroused alarm in League quarters today as evidence of an aggressive military spirit, contrary to the conciliatory attitude of Japanese spokesmen and their government.

Capture of Tsitsihar gave rise to a belief among observers that United States Ambassador Charles G. Dawes might be brought into a meeting of the council to consider this newest development. When Gen. Dawes was informed of the fall of Tsitsihar this evening, he was reported to have said:

"Something will have to be done about this."

Pastor Removed, Charges 'Politics'

LYNN, Mass., Nov. 18.—(INS.)—Charging "politics" brought about his removal from the pulpit, the Rev. Raymond H. Palmer, pastor of the local Unitarian Church, today had been relieved of his pastorate following a vote taken by church members.

His recent criticism of capitalists in a sermon brought about protests from many members of the congregation. He asserted that two bankers had gathered more than 50 to vote against him.

Ishbel MacDonald Quits Labor Party

LONDON, Nov. 18.—(INS.)—Ishbel MacDonald, daughter of Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald and one of the most prominent members of the London County Council, resigned today as party whip of the Labor forces in that body and constituted herself a "one man" independent party.

Miss MacDonald's resignation followed hints from Laborites so broad that they amounted to requests for her resignation.

GRANDI, HOOVER GET TOGETHER ON ECONOMICS

Agree on Many Points, Says Stimson After Conference Ends; Will Meet Again

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—President Hoover and Foreign Minister Grandi of Italy devoted the principal part of their lengthy conference to discussion of economic questions.

Shortly after the conference Secretary Stimson said much of the discussion had hinged on economic problems. The Secretary did not go into detail regarding the discussion which he said had included a variety of subjects that had been talked about during the coming international conference at Geneva.

Stimson said a joint statement would be released after Signor Grandi and the President had an opportunity to meet again. This opportunity will be afforded at the White House tonight.

The Secretary said gaps had been left in the ministers' program for further conferences.

The Secretary declined to say whether the specific question of the gold standard was brought up.

He said the conferees found themselves together on many points.

Since the Italian statesman speaks English Stimson said the meeting required less time than its recent conference with Premier Laval of France when speech was served by the use of interpreters.

The Secretary said there was no reading of speeches or notes but "we talked as three human beings in an informal way."

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(INS.)—Efforts to have canceled the city's official welcome to Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister were begun today by anti-Fascists.

In the event of failure of this plan, thousands of the opponents will gather in a protest meeting at City Hall Park at which Mayor Walker presides. Grandi, the International Conference of Anti-Fascist Propaganda announced.

FRANCE VICTOR IN DEBT TALK

BERLIN, Nov. 18.—(INS.)—Germany's request that the Bank for International Settlements call a special session of the committee of inquiry provided for in the Young plan to look into the Reich's capacity to meet her external obligations will be dispatched to Basel Friday, International News Service learned here today.

The announcement that this long-anticipated step is to be taken is interpreted here as evidence that the Franco-German negotiations over how Germany's debts are to be liquidated have resulted in a victory for the French viewpoint.

Paris has contended that reparations and private debts must be dealt with separately. Germany and England have taken the view that the two kinds of obligations should be considered simultaneously.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Nov. 18.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

The steamship lines must be giving tourist rates to foreign diplomats. There is no other way of accounting for 'em all coming over. Poor Washington, D. C. can't hardly tell what flag to hang out. This fellow Grandi—I remember him from the London disarmament conference last year. He just sat there and watched France. Now he is here to find out if Laval got anything for France. If she didn't, why he don't want anything, but if she did, he wants a helping out of the same dish.

Yours, WILL.

PINCHOT RAPS MELLON

HARRISBURG, Nov. 18.—(INS.)—When informed that newspaper dispatches quoted Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon as saying he had decided against a personal loan of $1,000,000 to Pennsylvania's unemployment relief fund, Gov. Gifford Pinchot said today:

"Mr. Mellon's memory has evidently played him false."

Referring to his recent visit to the Secretary of the Treasury, when the loan was requested, the Governor said:

"At two separate times in our conversation Mr. Mellon assured me that he would give the matter further consideration."

RELIEF ACTION BY ASSEMBLY CERTAIN

Only Form of Aid Measures In Doubt; Legislature Takes Recess for Week

HARRISBURG, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—With the outstretched hand of the state's unemployed before it, the Pennsylvania Legislature is on the way toward responding with relief.

As the legislators began a five-day recess today, a definite attitude for aiding the jobless was apparent. What form the relief measures would take, though—whether they be work, food or both—was still a question.

The fate of the major items in Gov. Pinchot's proposals, comprising a program entailing expediture of $120,000,000 by state and local units of government over two years, was just as much in doubt as ever. So, too, were the items to be included in a substitute program suggested by anti-administration quarters in the Assembly.

ADJOURNS FOR WEEK

With a record of some progress behind it, the Legislature adjourned for the week yesterday to provide time for greater study of the executive and alternate measures.

It left word with the state's fiscal officers, through the House Ways and Means Committee, to supply it with information to determine whether some aid could not be provided to the jobless without recourse to increased taxes.

This step, in the form of a formal request to Auditor General Waters, State Treasurer Martin and Secretary of Revenue King, provided a vehicle on which the anti-Pinchot members might centralize their opposition to the administration program.

Responding to sentiment of this group that additional taxes should be avoided at this time, the committee voted to postpone action on three revenue raising bills before it taxing gasoline, cigarets and billboards.

TAX ESTIMATES

The administration estimates $47,000,000 could be raised in the next two years by increasing the gasoline tax from 3 to 5 cents, imposing a tax of 2 cents on packages of 20 cigarets and levying a footage impost on outdoor billboards.

Contrary to that stand the general trend to do something for the unemployed was shown in the final passage by the House of one of the less controversial measures in the administration program.

BUSINESS GAINS THROUGHOUT STATE SHOWN

Ranks of Jobless Decrease As Industries Increase Production; Gains Here

HARRISBURG, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Responding to statewide co-operation and a general improvement in sentiment, business continues its gradual return to normal in Pennsylvania.

While the General Assembly considers the $120,000,000 unemployment relief program submitted by Gov. Pinchot and local welfare organizations are completing the collection of some $20,000,000 for normal and emergency funds, industries throughout the state are speeding up. Men are returning to work in groups of hundreds and the army of unemployed is slowly decreasing in size and gaining in morale.

IMPROVEMENT HERE

The news which is lending confidence, both to the leaders and to the populace at large, is contained largely in reports of employment gains coming from all parts of the state. The following are representative of the developments of the last week in Western Pennsylvania:

Pittsburgh—H. J. Heinz Company announces orders for this year to date in excess of same period last year; Pittsburgh department stores announce increasing sales; F. W. Dodge agency announces building construction in Pittsburgh and entire Tri-State district heavier than in 1930; value of building permits in Pittsburgh in September increased 42 per cent over August of this year and 76 per cent over September of last year; operations of steel companies increase 3 to 10 per cent, Chamber of Commerce reports.

MILLS RESUME

Homestead—Six plate mills and open hearth department of Homestead Steel Works resume, giving employment to several hundred men.

Braddock—Between 2,500 and 3,500 men return to work at Edgar Thomson plant of Carnegie Steel Company, Union Car Wheel Works, subsidiary of United States Steel Corporation, calls 100 men back to work.

Butler—Frank E. Troutman, general manager of Standard Plate Glass Company, announces that plant is employing 208 men on day and night shifts, producing 10,000 square feet of glass daily.

Franklin — Atlantic Refining Company employ 100 additional men in its Franklin refineries.

Chinese Fight Well When Angry But They're Not

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Just heard from our Floyd Gibbons.

Japanese aren't really at war.

They're just overcoming the Chinese sales resistance.

But they never get mad.

Old Gen. Mah finally got smart. He figured:

"Why advance when it is so easy to retreat?"

The League of Nations is up against a tough proposition in settling this trouble. They don't know what to do.

It's the first time in history that both sides wanted peace.

So far as war is concerned the Chinese are great homebodies. And the Japanese want to get the boys out of the trenches by Christmas so they can dig some better ones for the New Year.

Wears Detective's Coat, Held for Court

City Detective William Bauer recognized his overcoat on another man in a downtown store where he was on duty, he testified in Central Police Court, today in appearing against Joseph Clark, 23, of Carson street, who admitted taking the coat. He was held for court.

DEBT QUESTION TO FORE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—(INS.)—The American position on intergovernmental debts and reparations came to the fore today on two fronts—at the White House and in one or more of the European capitals.

While Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister, was conferring with President Hoover at the White House on the subject, fresh instructions were understood to have gone forward to American representatives in Europe on the matter.

The State Department categorically denied reports that a communication had been sent to the American embassy at Paris giving a clarification of the American interpretation of the Hoover-Laval memoranda.

It did not deny, however, that a message on the subject of debts and reparations had been sent to some of the other American embassies in Europe. It was generally believed that the message was based upon word from Paris that Premier Pierre Laval, of France, and Ambassador von Hoesch, German representative in Paris, had arrived at a practical agreement in their conversation regarding debts and reparations.

Woman, Trolley Crash Victim, Dies

Mrs. Maude Ross, 55, of 306 Suncrest street, Knoxville, died in South Side Hospital last night of injuries received November 1, when she was thrown to the floor of a street car which collided with another trolley. Death was due to a cerebral hemorrhage.

SEMINARY BOYS DENY GOSSIPING

Students at the Western Theological Seminary on Ridge avenue, North Side, today vigorously disagreed with Columbus, O., co-eds, who characterized young theological students at Capital University as too sentimental, too serious, too self-important, gossipy and easily available. George W. Kiehl, president of the student body, and Sam D. Regester, president of the senior class, said:

"The situation might be different at Capital, but we certainly don't sit around with our hands folded and twirl our fingers. We don't claim to have any high standard of piety. Our fellows represent a cross section of college types, with the same emotions as other people."

The boys resented the accusation that they were "big gossips." They said:

"We are not a bunch of women. We have more to do than gossip. Except for drinking and dancing and cards, our parties are no different from fraternity house parties. We have music, stunts, games, sketches and plays. We never have any trouble getting dates and most of the girls who come here are teachers, nurses and college graduates."

CLAIRTON FIRE PLOT CHARGED

An apparent plot to destroy a residence at 221 Grape street, Clairton, was being investigated by County Fire Marshal Thomas L. Pfarr, Chief of Police James Brenner and Fire Chief F. C. Pete today.

Three persons were arrested.

Two neighbors, I. B. Gordon and James Malloy, told investigators, they say, that they found a can of blasting powder, quantities of rubber cement and cans of gasoline standing about when the dwelling caught fire.

Vincent Berznicki, his wife, Stella, and a roomer, Stanley Suvert, all of the Grape street address are being held.

Pfarr says that investigation shows the house was mortgaged for $10,000; insured against fire $10,000; and that $1,500 fire insurance had recently been taken out on the furniture.

Police are investigating charges that workingmen housed in the dwelling were forced to take out life insurance in favor of the landlord and to turn over their pay envelopes to him, unopened.

Motor Competition Assailed by Rail Man

Competition of unregulated bus and motor truck lines constitutes the only fear that besets the country's railroads, according to Rudolf P. Forsberg, chief engineer of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad, who spoke at a meeting of the Exchange Club in the William Penn Hotel yesterday.

He declared low rates offered by motor lines are possible only by the subsidy provided by the public in the form of highway expenditures.

Two Hurt as Auto Crashes Trolley

Mrs. T. G. Boggs, 43, of 208 West One Hundred and Fourth street, New York, and John J. Cain, 43, of Reo way, Butler, were taken to the Allegheny General Hospital in serious conditions after the auto crashed head-on into an Etna street car in East Ohio street early today. The driver, Jacob Menge, 37, of Butler, was arrested.

Veteran Firemen's Banquet Tonight

Veteran Pittsburgh firemen will entertain their guests at a banquet tonight in Donahoe's Restaurant, Fifth avenue. More than 250 veterans and honor guests are expected to attend.

17 HURT AS FIRE SWEEPS SCHOOL

attending in the morning, the other in the afternoon.

Fire Chief Richard L. Smith estimated the damage at $40,000.

Ten or more rooms in the front section of the three-story building, built in 1891, were damaged by flames and water.

The newer section, of 12 rooms, added in 1905, was virtually untouched.

BECKETT, Fred, battalion chief; Mercy Hospital.
KRAKAN, Fred, No. 34 Engine Company; Mercy Hospital.
JONES, FRANK, assistant fire chief.
MAJESTIC, STANLEY, No. 34 Engine Company.
DAVIS, GEORGE, No. 29 Engine Company; Mercy Hospital.
MOORE, ANDREW, No. 29 Engine Company.
KELLY, DANIEL, No. 16 Engine Company; Pittsburgh Hospital.
BRENNAN, MICHAEL, No. 16 Engine Company; Pittsburgh Hospital.
ZOLLINGER, MALCOLM, No. 16 Engine Company.
KELLEY, PAT, No. 16 Engine Company.
ROGAN, JAMES, captain No. 16 Engine Company, Mercy Hospital.
GRAY, Guy, No. 29 Engine Company, Mercy Hospital.

Other injuries:

DEASY, JOHN, captain No. 29 Engine Company, heart attack and overcome by smoke; Mercy Hospital.
COYNE, JOSEPH, No. 28 Engine Company, burned about the eyes.
PUSZAKOSKI, STANLEY, No. 6 Engine Company, lacerations.
BERESFORD, WILLIAM, No. 8 Engine Company, contusions, lacerations.

CAPTAIN STRICKEN

Capt. Deasy, directing the firemen in a room on the second floor, collapsed from a heart attack as the fire reached its height and also was affected by smoke.

Assistant Fire Chief Jones, overcome by smoke, insisted on returning to help his comrades and was overcome a second time.

Fireman Zollinger was overcome as he tried to help Daniel Kelly and Joseph Brennan from the suffocating boiler room. His cries for help answered, the three were carried to the street by other firemen.

All were first treated at the scene by City Surgeon Daniel E. Rable. The first alarm was sent in by a passing bakery wagon driver, J. L. Fife, of 6625 Frankstown avenue, who was hailed by the cleaning women.

As he pulled the alarm box an electric shock from the apparatus knocked him to the street. He was only slightly injured.

Policeman Kills Fur Store Bandit

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—(INS.)—One bandit was killed and another wounded when they attempted to rob the fur store of Edward Labes today. Neither was immediately identified.

Labes was suspicious when the pair entered, and notified police. When detectives arrived, they were greeted by gunfire from one of the bandits. Policeman Frank Bertsch returned the fire.

'Two-Gun' Crowley Loses Life Appeal

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 18.—(AP.)—The conviction of Francis "Two-Gun" Crowley of murder in the first degree was affirmed by the Court of Appeals yesterday, the court's decision means Crowley will die in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison for the murder of Frederick S. Hirsch, Nassau County policeman, unless Gov. Roosevelt exercises executive clemency.

This completed "Christmas Jingle" must be in the mail before midnight, Thursday, November 19, addressed to CHRISTMAS JINGLES, Sun Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa. Write No. 8 on the lower left hand corner of your envelope. Names of winners will be published in the Sun-Telegraph one week from day this incomplete "jingle" appears.

PUPILS STRIKE AT SWISSVALE

The atmosphere at the Swissvale High School was tense today following the refusal of 450 boys in the senior, junior and sophomore classes to participate in chapel exercises yesterday.

The action of the students is the result of three years brewing of discontent, it was said which started when the direction of the chapel exercises was taken from the boys and put into the hands of the school officials.

Punishment for their action was withdrawal of permission to witness a preview of the senior class plays which will be presented Friday night. The boys were ordered to their classrooms.

Superintendent C. C. Kelso was in charge of yesterday's exercises. C. S. Bailey is principal of the school.

RUNAWAY GIRL TO SAIL HOME

WELLESLEY, Mass., Nov. 18 (AP)—Rosemary Pamela Gilding's adventure is ended.

The homesick young English girl who disappeared from the home of Prof. Hamilton C. MacDougall Saturday was due to sail from New York today to join her father, a London banker. Prof. and Mrs. MacDougall, who accompanied the girl to New York, planned to take passage for her on the S. S. American Trader.

She was located yesterday at Springfield, where she sought work to earn her passage money home. Lonely, anxious to see her parents, but afraid to ask them for passage money because she didn't want to "embarrass" them, she left the MacDougall home, where she had been a house guest for 14 weeks, to seek work in a strange American city.

M'KEES ROCKS MAN WINNER IN 'JINGLES'

Other Prizes Awarded in Contest for First Last Line; No. 8 Appears

Howard McGinnis, 114 Singer avenue, McKees Rocks, is the winner of the $5 prize for the best last line for the Sun-Telegraph "Christmas Jingle" No. 1. His line was so different from all others submitted that it was hardly necessary to check with the thousands of other answers in a search for duplicates.

"Christmas Jingle" No. 1 as McGinnis completed it now runs as follows:

There was a young Deb in Sewickley
Who would not do her shopping tasks quickly;
When she finally "scrammed"
Every store was all jammed
Moral: Shop soon and economically.

M. S. Bulger, 416 Seventh avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Mrs. Joseph J. Cooper, 218 First street, Blawnox, Pa.

M. Frageser, 323 Allen street, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Genevieve Pennington, 261 Murray avenue, Arnold, Pa.

Calvin B. McDowell, 522 Greensburg pike, Turtle Creek, Pa.

Winners for "Christmas Jingle" No. 2 will be announced tomorrow. Readers of the Sun-Telegraph seem to be considerably excited about these reminders that the Christmas season is close at hand—that now is the time to profitably do Christmas shopping, the time to get the attractive bargains and put them away for the holidays.

Try your hand on No. 8 appearing on this page today. If you submit what the judges think is the best of all "last lines" sent in you get a check for $5.00. The five next best "last lines" will each be awarded $1.00.

All readers of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, with the exception of employes, are invited to enter the "Christmas Jingle" contest. You can send in as many last lines as you like. Equal awards will be paid to readers whose answers are tied in the judging. You do not have to buy a Sun-Telegraph to enter this contest. You may examine the files of this newspaper at the public library or at any one of the offices of the Sun-Telegraph, where you may make a tracing of the "Christmas Jingle" blank if you wish.

Each Sun-Telegraph "Christmas Jingle" will be consecutively numbered.

Cost Accountants To Hear Engineer

Ernest F. Rumpf, noted management engineer, will discuss "Budgets and Industrial Organization in the Present Economic State" at the November dinner meeting of the Pittsburgh Chapter, National Association of Cost Accountants, tonight in the William Penn Hotel. Rumpf is a partner in the industrial management firm of John A. McKinsey and Associates, New York. M. C. Conick, of Main & Co., is chairman of the program committee. C. L. VanSickle, of the University of Pittsburgh, president of the chapter, will introduce Rumpf.

Mr. Rumpf

Woman Card Player Shot by Child, 5

PANA, Ill., Nov. 18—(AP)—The 5-year-old son of Mrs. Frank Cassels broke up a bridge party his mother was attending when he fired a pistol he had found in the home of the hostess. He seriously injured Mrs. Lee Crawford, one of the guests.

The bullet passed through both of Mrs. Crawford's legs. Although she lost considerable blood, physicians said she would recover.

Man Found Dead On Rear Porch

Herbert Atkins, 30, Negro, no home, was found dead on the rear porch of the home of J. Jackson, Negro, 7331 Susquehanna street, today. Jackson told police Atkins had been drinking heavily. An autopsy will be performed.

McKeesporters Sued Over Crash Injury

Al Mercur and Lewis Mercur, operating the Flower Garden, McKeesport, were named defendants in a suit filed by Mr. and Mrs. Jim Supp, of Port Vue, in Common Pleas Court, seeking $20,000 damages for injuries to Mrs. Supp, alleged caused when she was struck by a truck of defendants while crossing Walnut street at Fifteenth street, McKeesport, September 7.

City Treasurer Bond Increase Approved

Boosting of the bond for the City Treasurer and Collector of Delinquent Taxes from $100,000 to $250,000 in each case, was affirmed by Council's Committee on Finance late yesterday.

Legislation sponsoring this move was submitted by Councilman Charles Anderson.

Final action on the measure is expected to be taken at a councilmanic meeting next Monday.

The City Treasurer, under orders of Council and the Mayor, acts as collector of delinquent taxes.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair
—With—
Patricia Pitt

The board of managers of the Woman's Exchange, which will hold its annual pre-holiday sale on November 24, in the Hotel Schenley ball room, may be justly proud of the growth of its work.

When the Woman's Exchange was opened in 1880 there were [illegible] exchanges [illegible] enabling 400 women to make a living. Last year the exchange which sells articles suitable for gifts, baked foods and needlework paid $8,[illegible] to the women who made the saleable goods. The first year the exchange paid $4,255.09 to [illegible] women.

Because [illegible] with families need [illegible] this winter than ever before, the board of managers is planning an extraordinary sale to help [illegible].

Articles for sale will be designed for Christmas [illegible]. And baked goods for the [illegible] dinners may be bought.

The children are invited to attend the [illegible] in connection with the sale. And prospective [illegible] and goodies will be in demand by [illegible]. Mrs. B. F. Jones [illegible] in charge of the circus, assisted by Mrs. Donald C. Bakewell, Mrs. [illegible] P. McKinney and Mrs. T. Howe Nimick.

Circus At Sale

To repeat [illegible] be a card party for the [illegible] with Mrs. Wallace Hoyle, Mrs. George D. Marbeth and Mrs. William Zang in charge.

The Thursday Alumnae Association will give a tea on Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the home of Mrs. [illegible] A. Warfel, [illegible] South Linden avenue. The guest of honor will be Miss Marjorie Pratt, the new headmistress of Thurston. Her faculty will share honors.

Alumnae Plans Tea

On Saturday there will be a luncheon given by the board of trustees in the Fox Chapel Club, when Miss Pratt will meet other headmistresses of private schools here and the deans of women of Pennsylvania College for Women, Carnegie Institute of Technology and the University of Pittsburgh.

Katherine Frazer, daughter of the John G. Frazers, one of the most popular buds of the season, has been very much feted the past few weeks and yesterday she was honored once more with a luncheon given by Mrs. William M. Robinson in her Westminster Place home. The hostess wore a gown of black velvet, and Katherine chose Persian green crepe having a tucked white frilly collar and bell-effect sleeves. Her turban was of gray and green velvet. The 30 guests included sister buds of the guest of honor and several of the past season. The luncheon table was decked with fall flowers. The Frazers plan to present their daughter on Thanksgiving at a tea dance, you know.

LATEST MODE IN SMART MILLINERY

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Nov. 18.—Every hat just now swoops down to capture its rightful share of smartness. And even if one eye is obliterated from view in the downward path of the brim, we see enough to know that our hat and costume is being duly admired. And that is the main thing, isn't it? Very few hats just now are not brimmed, be the amount of brim ever so infinitesimal. Of course the turban is always with us, but the majority of women, being cognizant of the benign power of the brim lines, are wise enough to avail themselves of its services.

THE BIG BRIM, of course, is out of the question with high fur collars, and even if this was not the case, the combination of the large hat with the befurred, lavish clothes of winter would be rather too dramatic, or shall we frankly say, theatrical? And so, the small hat with a huge amount of chic, and some well-placed trimming to accentuate the line, which, after all, is the everything of the hat.

NOW FOR TWO models that are quite representative of the trend of the millinery mid-season, which means the moment when our wishes and demands have crystalized themselves definitely into certain fashions. The first model is by Marcelle Lely, who chooses very dark green, hairy felt for this smart little model. The cloche brim is turned in strikingly becoming swoops, up at one side, then down over the other eye, up again slightly, then down the back. The sole trimming consists of two delicate, curved fronds of vivid yellow ostrich, a harmonious complement to the hat.

MARCELLE LELY makes the second model of empire green felt. The brim turns up sharply at each side and is pulled forward to a point suggesting a Highland bonnet. The hat is worn very much to one side and a narrow wing in matching green clings closely to the side back of the hair at the opposite side.

Unsung New Yorkers

WELL, I might as well begin by telling you that, when they were nothing more than kids, it was virtually decided that Jack and Dorothy were to be man and wife on some distant date. As Don Hartman can tell you, both the boy and the girl liked the idea immensely. To make it perfect, their families were the best of friends.

Usually, in cases such as this, the kids grow up and slip away from each other by mutual consent. The romantic thrills we encounter in our childhood days are generally no more than sweet memories as we live and sometimes learn.

Jack and Dorothy might have been the exception that proved the rule. The years passed, but their romance showed no sign of going the way of all flash. Jack went to college for two years before he quit to accept a good job at a publishing house. Dorothy landed a position as a private secretary to a big man in a small concern. So far, too good.

With their families still in absolute harmony—which, in itself is an amazing fact—the two sweethearts began to talk of marriage. Jack was waiting for that next raise, so that he and Dorothy might start on the marital voyage in something that resembled comfort. They decided that they would wait a year before hating the knot tied.

"By that time, honey," said Jack, "I may be making twice the dough that I am now. You can quit your job some months before and begin to furnish whatever apartment we pick out. It means a wait of another year before we'll be completely happy—but what the devil? As long as I love you as I do now, I would wait a lifetime for you."

Dorothy gave him one of those looks that cause strong men to do weak work.

"Whatever you think is best, darling," she told him, "is the thing that I think is the best. I love you very, very dearly. When I think we're engaged, I—well, I'm just too happy. I love you."

After reporting the above conversation, there isn't much that I can add. Except to tell you, perhaps, that Jack and Dorothy loved each other . . .

It was three months before the all important day, and all was still well. They had chosen the home in which they were going to live, and Dorothy was pricing wedding invitations while Jack was glancing at the bank book every hour on the hour.

They went to a neighborhood theater one night and held hands so fervently that they even enjoyed the picture. On the way home, they had a soda and tasted each other's ice cream. Their eyes kept meeting and—oh, let's cut out the mush. You get the idea.

Dorothy climbed into the bed that night and snapped out the light with a sign of great content. The world was very good.

"Dot," said a frightened voice. "Dot, please—wake up. I've got to talk to you."

It was Bernice, Dorothy's 16-year old sister. A pretty kid and a sweet one. Dorothy turned on the light.

"What's the matter, sis," she asked, "something gone wrong?"

Without a word of reply, the kid went into a merger of sobs that verged an hysterics. The tears rolled down her cheeks, and she clawed the covers as though in terrible agony. Dorothy was frankly worried. She loved Bernice a great deal, and she hated to see the child cry.

"What is it, darling?" she kept asking. "Come on, honey, stop crying. You can tell me about it. What happened?"

When she had calmed down sufficiently, Bernice unfolded the oldest of old stories. She had been a terrible fool, and with a neighborhood youth who had skipped town as soon as she had given him the bad news. There was going to be a baby. Small wonder she could do nothing but cry.

Dorothy was horror-stricken. Bernice was little more than a baby, herself. Their mother's health was none too good, and their father was one of those kindly gentlemen who would probably go crazy. What to do? What to say?

She did the proper thing, however, at that particular moment. Instead of shouting at the girl and blaming her, Dorothy kissed her sister.

"It wasn't your fault, kid," she murmured, "you just didn't understand. You go inside—and let me think for a while. I'll find a way out. Just go in and get some sleep. And, above all, not a word to pop or mom. I'll dope out something."

Dorothy did not sleep at all that night. She kept thinking, and crying a little too. Along toward morning, she decided that it would be necessary to tell Jack. He would understand—and he would surely help. . . .

She did just that. She told him what had happened to Bernice as they met for luncheon the following day. Jack's reaction was the same as Dorothy's had been. He, too, was extremely fond of Bernice. And he, too, felt rotten about the entire situation.

"Give me time to think it over, dear," he said. "We'll have to get the kid out of this. I'll have something figured out when I meet you tonight."

That night, Jack unfolded his plan. It was a strange one, and not very worldly. But it was his own idea. And inasmuch as it made him something of a hero, I don't suppose you could blame him for suggesting it. He told Dorothy that he would marry Bernice to save her name—and then obtain a quick divorce shortly after the baby was born.

"It's one of those things that happen in life," he told her in a typical motion picture speech, "and we must both sacrifice our happiness a little while longer in order to protect that sweet kid. The world may think it's peculiar, but the world isn't going to worry us to any great extent. As long as we know we're doing the right thing, what's the difference?

"It means a wait of another year or so. Surely not much more than that. The three of us, of course, will always be together. And then, as soon as it can be arranged, Bernice and I will be divorced and we'll be married.

"Think it over, dearest. I'm sure you'll find that it's the best way out."

As far as Dorothy was concerned, any plan of Jack's was the best way out of any situation. A week later, with all the details arranged, Jack and Bernice were married—while Dorothy looked on. After the ceremony, Bernice kissed her sister and her husband-in-name-only.

"You're the two grandest people that ever lived," she sobbed. "You have saved me from a terrible disgrace. Whatever you want me to do about the divorce when the time comes I'll do. I love you both so very, very much."

There isn't much more to tell. Except that Jack and Bernice have now been married for eight years, and have three children. While Dorothy is still working as private secretary for the big man in the small concern. . .

FOUNDRY HERE GETS RECEIVER

J. Roy Tanner was appointed receiver for the Pittsburgh Valve, Foundry and Construction Company by Judge F. P. Schoonmaker, in United States District Court yesterday, on petition of the Taylor Forge and Pipe Company, of Cicero, Ill.

The petition sets forth that the Pittsburgh company has assets of $2,000,000 and liabilities of $1,000,000, of which $974,500 is represented by a first mortgage, 6 per cent bond issue.

The Illinois company, with claims against the Pittsburgh concern amounting to $3,000, alleged that the local company was unable to meet current expenses. The Pittsburgh firm joined with the petitioner in asking the appointment of Tanner as receiver.

Studio Lights:

It cost the sponsors of a popular dance hour $5,000 in wire charges last Saturday to bring $60 worth of Cuban music from Havana to the NBC chain. Transatlantic cable was used for half an hour.

Pretty sweet, that idea of a local company naming a candy bar "Uncle Henry" . . . when his Radio Rascals all juveniles, parade over the city Saturday for their third anniversary, the motivation is to be supplied by a score of lilliputian automobiles . . . cute?

Nellie Revell calls Lois Bennett's hair Schenectady—because it's so near auburn . .

The Jack and Jerry Foys do a lot of hill-billying these afternoons in V. Rea Garber's bowling emporium on Fifth avenue . . . yesterday Jack rolled 251, . . . Jerry's not so bad, either, having 171 for an 11 game average.

The tallest stories ever told on NBC last night were, to prove one thing that Baron Munchausen couldn't hold a candle alongside our modern prevaricators.

and Arthur P. Brady, butcher and groceryman, Bristol, Pa., who won the first suggest at 11 the words must have tell...ar amoebas among Lowell Thomas graduating class.

Aileen Jobes, of 260 South Mathilda street, reports picking up Frederick G. Rodgers on the WIOD International Radio Frolic and of all announcers on the announcers on the program ranked Rodgers first and Lambdin Kay, of WSB, second. . . . KDKA salutes WIOD at 10 tonight.

Bill Parren is to assist Bill Mundal in broadcasting the Pitt-Nebraska game from the stadium on Thanksgiving afternoon. . . . KDKA is to feed the game to NBC's blue network.

Bing Crosby walked into a New York bank to have a check cashed . . . they didn't know him and asked for an identification . . . Bing pointed across the street to a big electric sign having a 20-foot picture of himself . . . no more questions were asked. . . .

Listeners of the Trumpeters concert on CBS-WJAS tomorrow night are to be invited to pick an all-American football team with Ted Husing, Sol Metzger and Warren Brown, of the Chicago Herald-Examiner, the judges.

Guy Lombardo's first broadcast from a Cleveland station brought him 2,800 letters and a crate of apples. . . .

Paul Whiteman has lost 78 pounds by dieting . . . terms his new occupation "avoirdupois golf." . . . set out in the beginning to break 225 . . . when he did he hit the goal at 203 . . . now he's 202.

Today's Tid Bit:

Proof that contented cows give more milk was obtained by a Jacksonville, Fla., farmer recently when he installed a public address system in his milking sheds and attached it to his radio receiver. Walter Damrosch's symphony contented the cows more than the crooning of Rudy Vallee. At the end of the first week production of milk jumped 15 per cent. Dairying experts deemed it incredible so as a test the dairyman discontinued the entertainment and production dropped to normal. The station was WJAX.

The Loudspeaker

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—And who is this figure looming up on Chicago's horizon, destined, perhaps, to lead radio out of its wilderness of ballyhoo with nothing more than a foolscap adorning his intelligent head and a clown's sceptre in his hand?

Can it be true? Is it really Ben Bernie, the old maestro of dance band fame? Yes, it's Bernie, all right. Our ears tell us so, though sometimes it is hard to believe them.

With one grand flourish of his sceptre and his tongue in the middle of his cheek Bernie punctures the whole elaborate fabric of advertising blather with which radio is cursed.

But in puncturing it, he actually by his swift legerdemain of his mind—or his art, whichever you prefer—creates good will for the sponsor who makes possible his broadcast periods. It wouldn't surprise me if he actually sends customers panting to the corner store to buy his product.

He is a pioneer, is Bernie. You might even call him the Lief Ericson of the ether, the Balboa of the broadcasters. He has started something which should in all reason, if broadcasters are the showmen as well as the big business men they pretend to be, give commercial radio new life, bring it more into the realm of entertainment than ever before.

In short, he kids his advertiser. But he does it adroitly, charmingly and, in our opinion, ever amusingly. Unless we are greatly mistaken he has given other commercial sponsers something to think about, worried, as we understand they are, over the growing apathy of the armchairs.

Of course, Ben Bernies are not growing on the radio bushes. It isn't every one who can wisecrack his commercial product into the favor of listeners. But it seems to me the radio rajahs will have to bestir themselves, to find others who can turn the trick. Once they are found the armchairs are certainly in for a new lease of life.

Bernie happens to be broadcasting in Chicago the current hymns of Tin Pan Alley for a malt company. Heretofore he has confined his jesting to his tunes. Suddenly he becomes the drumbeater of his sponsor. He mentions airily that so many thousands of people are taking the malt. "Fancy that!" he chuckles and then goes on in his familiar lingo, "Good old malt! I hope you like it."

* * *

It brought many a smile if not here and there a guffaw to listeners. And bringing the smiles and guffaws it made the listeners kindly disposed toward malt prepared to purchase this particular malt if it is malt they must buy.

New Police System Vital, Baker Says

BOSTON, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Newton D. Baker, secretary of war in the Wilson cabinet, believes that the police systems in American cities must be re-studied and reorganized to cope with organized systems of crime and corruption which he said have sprung up throughout the country.

In a speech before the Boston City Club last night he said he believed American municipal government had made tremendous strides for the better in the last 25 years, but that a serious blight remained in the control held by gangland and organized racketeers.

The SUN-TELEGRAPH DOLL LADY

today tells about her visit to the

"HONEYBUNCH" DOLL HOUSE

Read Her Interesting Message:—

Dear Little Girls:—

What a wonderful day I had last Sunday. I stole away for the day and went over to the big doll house and had a real talk with hundreds of "Honeybunches." It seems foolish to say that I really talked to them, doesn't it? But I do talk to them and so will you when you get your big "Honeybunch" doll. She is so much like a realy live baby that you just can't help talking to her. And she seems to understand just what you're saying. One "Honeybunch" in particular on Sunday seemed to say to me, "I hope you are going to find a real nice home for me. Please put me in some home where they need sunshine—where the little girl needs happiness. I'll do everything I can to make her happy. I'll smile all the time."

This Is "Honeybunch"—Isn't She a Darling?

Then as I went over the dolls I noted, with unusual satisfaction, their dainty clothes—some in pink organdy, others in blue and many in pure white and all lace trimmed. I straightened out the darling lace caps and retied some of the ribbon bows on a lot of them, and I pulled up their stockings and fixed their rubber panties so that they didn't show—too much.

Yes, I had a wonderful day and I was sorry that I didn't have a crowd of Pittsburgh little girls with me, they would have enjoyed it too.

Now I am back on the job and nearly up to my ears in letters from little girls. In yesterday's and today's mail I found scores of responses where little girls had already done what I asked them to do and before the end of the week they will have their "Honeybunch" dolly.

I am safe in saying that the eyes of these little girls will open in amazement and wonder when they see the gorgeous doll I am giving away this year.

"Honeybunch" is unbreakable, she's about as tall as this newspaper is long, she has rubber arms and hands, eyes that twinkle and roll from side to side. She can go to sleep, has beautiful organdy clothes, a lace cap with ribbon bows and shoes and stockings to match. You can make her walk like a real live baby, she has a charming voice, sucks her pacifier, bends her arms and legs—in fact, "Honeybunch" does lots of really cute things. Oh, by the way, I almost forgot to tell you that she's almost a twin of "Tickletoes"—she's "Tickletoes'" first cousin. And she's going to be very easy to get.

If you really want a "Honeybunch" all for yourself before Christmas, and will promise to do the simple things I'll ask you to do, send me the coupon in this announcement, with your name and address, and I'll tell you how you can get this big wonder doll before the holidays.

The 3 Important DRESSES For Thanksgiving Occasions

In An Extraordinary Presentation and Sale

(For Dresses That "Look Like $25")

(For Distinctly High Type Models)

"Formal Evening"

Shoulders are "covering up" evenings—and this dress seems to beautify every type of figure. It has smart "back interest" in twisted straps outlining the decolletage, or, if you prefer something else, this sale provides velvets, taffetas, triple sheers, and satins in white, black, pastel and "stained glass" colors. Women's and Misses' sizes. $15.75 & $25.

"Yes and No"

It's formal and it's informal—it's smart for cocktail parties, for the theater, when your escort doesn't "dress"—and it sells four to one to regulation evening dresses for everything but grand ball occasions. Black velvet, bias cut with sheer back yoke and covered shoulders, in sparkling crystal beading. Women's sizes, $25.

"The Velvet Necessity"

Its softly braided neckline flatters everyone—it's a splendid "fur coat" dress, and a dress you'll simply live in afterward for dances, tea, afternoon and informal evening occasions. Not too long for coats, bias cut, dark brown velvet—the replica of a $39.50 dress, sale price, $25. Misses' sizes. Others for misses and women, $15.75.

"Famous" Evening Wraps

Boggs & Buhl has the whole gallery of famous evening wraps—the wrist-length velvet wrap with tiered sleeves and shirring (sketched); the white bunny jacket; the black velvet jacket with large white hare collar; the regal ¾ wrap with shirring in dark or "stained glass" colors—in short, every smart wrap there is, in a luxurious model, at a price that is the very soul of economy, $25!

Transparent Velvet Wraps, $16.50 Up

"Five O'Clock"
HATS
$5.00

Don't be seen in a felt hat at "after five o'clock" affairs—and don't go bareheaded to anything but the President's reception! Boggs & Buhl has the finest hats in metals, wisps of maline for dinner and formal wear, and velvet turbans at only $5!

—Second Floor—

Scandalously Smart
SANDALS
$6.50

The sandal sketched top is a luscious black velvet with silver kid stripping, a "grand" sandal for pajamas or afternoon and informal evening. The other is White Crepe, and can be dyed any color to match or complement your most exquisite frock.

—First Floor—

A New Formal
BAG
$2.95

It's "afternoon"—it's "evening"—it's ravishing with your velvet hat, velvet dress, velvet sandals. A tiny velvet pouch with rhinestone studded ball catch and silver chain, simulating an expensive import model. Others—beaded, Beauvais or crepe. $2.95 up.

—First Floor—

12-Button Glace Kid
GLOVES

WINTER COATS PRESENTED BY KOMIC CLUBS

Surprises Prove Feature At Theater Meetings; Novelties on Programs

One of the most enjoyable features of the Warner Theaters-Sun-Telegraph Junior Komic Club is that members are sure of a surprise at every meeting. At the Belmar and Cameraphone chapters last Saturday, for instance, some more of those [illegible] leather-fleece-lined coats were given at prizes.

The winners were Elsie Clarkcomb and Delores Marshall of the Belmar chapter and Roberta Franklin, Joseph Tauro of the Cameraphone chapter.

The Belmar put on a regular junior stage show. On the program were Imogene and A. Guerrie Dandois, Grason Harris, McLoed Anna Lanna, Mary Catherine Schaefer, Peggy Nolan, Margarette Dodson, Pearle Baum, Ruth Malcolm, Alice Polomino. The Homewood Novelty Serenaders, a stringed band under the direction of John A. Hesse, also contributed to the program.

MANOR CHAPTER

The big attraction at the Manor meeting Saturday was Derwin, the magician and ventriloquist. The Boy Scouts are active in this chapter and every meeting closes with the salute to the colors.

A novel feature was introduced at the Schenley chapter meeting Saturday. Rhea, cartoonist and entertainer, amused the children with his drawings and comedy chatter. Dauntless, the popular movie dog, paid a visit to the Schenley too.

One of our most active chapters is the Prince located in Ambridge. Here is a very large membership of boys and girls who take an active interest in club affairs. They gave a very clever stage show at the last meeting with the following members taking part: Beatrice O'Connor, Marie Simon, Evelyn Trudell, Jack Parish, Winifred Barclay and George Grouch. Birthday cakes and other gifts were distributed.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

Arsenal: Mary Swegewski, Ray Gavlik, Millard White, Jr., Anthony Simons, Cameraphone: Joseph Sang, Enright: Tilly Smith; Harris (Diamond street): Mary Conners, Irene Possino; Kenyon: Ruth Zetter; Manor: Harvey Meyers, Russell Homer, Griffith Howe, Rowland Betty McMasters, Jack Raymer; South Hills: Gayle Platts, Bob Laverty; Belmar: Virginia Krokling, Barbara Jones, Paul DeMaglio; Helmar: Bertha Cutler, Henry Derwick, Margaret Dunlap, David Hanley.

Metalurgical Expert Addresses Engineers

Better knowledge of the principal mechanical properties of construction materials and of the mechanism causing rupture in solid matter will eliminate certain structural failures, according to Dr. I. A. Nadai, research engineer of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company. He spoke last night on "Plasticity as Applied to Steel Products" at the Engineers' Society of Western Pennsylvania, in William Penn Hotel.

DRINK WATER IF YOU WANT A ROSY COMPLEXION

Italian Science Working Wonders on Headache and Stomach Sufferers With Simple, Internal Bathing

Why is it that eight out of every ten people today are being made miserable, unhappy and inefficient by constant headaches?

Italian science startled the world by giving their effervescent water before breakfast as the remedy. A homely treatment, but effective sometimes beyond belief. A form of intestinal bathing that makes anemic-looking, pasty-faced, headachy and stomach-acidity people take on new life, new appearance and new health.

The way the treatment works is on the same principle of washing out the intestines every morning before breakfast just like you wash dirt off your face and hands. For just as it is necessary to clean ashes from a furnace before a fire burns bright and clear, so it is necessary to wash out the stomach BEFORE food goes into it.

Otherwise you most likely cause a bad condition by mixing the food you eat with ptomaine-like accumulations in the stomach that virtually poison the fresh foods you put in it.

For that reason, every man or woman—whether sick or well—is advised to drink each morning BEFORE BREAKFAST one-half glass of water with two tablespoonfuls of ordinary Italian Brinachi effervescent in it, followed by a large glass of plain water. That's the whole Italian treatment. Tens of thousands of people today are crediting with near-miracles in the relief of constant headaches, sour stomach, acidity, constipation, "biliousness" attacks and general lassitude and debility.

The Italian Brinachi effervescent to put with water can be obtained in large cans at any store for a few cents. The way to pronounce the word is Bree-na-ki—ordinary Italian Brinachi. A few days of it will suffice to make most anyone a crank on the subject of intestinal bathing.

Standard Hosiery Length Brings Protest

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (NEA Service)—Women are putting up quite a kick over the 36-inch standard length fixed by the Bureau of Standards for feminine hosiery.

Many letters have been received by bureau officials who, after an extensive survey of the situation, decided an average standard length should be established for stockings of 30 inches.

The welt or top of a stocking should extend about 10 inches above the knee of a standard legged woman, fit-ting experts said. Some of the protestants, however, claim in the new length they look like midgets in socks, while others whose legs are shorter than normal claim the new stockings approach their ears.

NEW AUTO CODE UP IN COUNCIL

City Council will consider for passage the codified traffic ordinance at a meeting next week, President John S. Herron said today.

Under the proposed legislation, broken on the Better Traffic Committee and a number of civic organizations, all laws relating to traffic and improvements are codified in one published form. A number of changes in matters pertinent to Traffic Court procedure and tag fixing are included. The ordinance according to City Traffic Engineer Lewis A. McIntyre, is modeled after the Hoover Municipal Ordinance developed several months ago.

The Better Traffic Committee and the Bureau of Traffic Planning ask an appropriation of $1,200 to defray expenses of printing the codified legislation.

Stevenson Speaker For Kiwanis Club

They will be opened in Washington December 15.

Pork Price Drop Cuts Penalty of Pig Thieves

HAMMOND, Ind., Nov. 18.—(AP)—The recent slump in the price of pork, whatever the multitude of American farmers may think about it, turned out to be a big help to two Chicago Heights boys, Sam Geati and Angelo Loreocca.

Sam and Angelo stole four pigs from a Cedar Lake farmer and were arrested on charges of grand larceny. But when the pigs were weighed, their total value came to only $24 on the basis of prevailing prices this week so the charge was reduced to petty larceny. Now, instead of a year or so in state prison, the two began serving out $10 fines and 30-day terms in the county jail.

Pepsodent Antiseptic checks bad breath 1 to 2 hours longer

To check bad breath you must kill germs...That's why, if you dilute your antiseptic, you should choose one that kills germs when mixed with water... Most antiseptics do not... Pepsodent Antiseptic does kill germs, positively, when diluted.

WHAT an achievement! Bad breath checked! Overcome 1 to 2 hours longer than by other leading antiseptics. Stop, garglers, and consider: those 2 extra hours can change an evening of uncertainty to one of comforting assurance.

3 out of 4 people have been fooling themselves when fighting bad breath. They were diluting antiseptics that couldn't kill germs when mixed with water. To check bad breath destroy the germs that cause it. Use an antiseptic that remains an antiseptic when diluted.

SAFE—yet more powerful

Here is the startling news in this new discovery. You can mix Pepsodent Antiseptic with 1 or 2 parts of water, to suit your taste, it still kills germs in less than 10 seconds. That's where most other leading mouth antiseptics fail. Yet in spite of all its power, Pepsodent Antiseptic is utterly safe when used full strength. What a weapon it is in fighting bad breath!

New security against bad breath
(Halitosis)

Pepsodent Antiseptic checks bad breath due to unhygienic mouth conditions 1 to 2 hours longer! Immediately after use, 95% of germs on mouth surfaces are destroyed. Two hours later the number of germs is still reduced by 80%. That is far longer acting than other leading mouth antiseptics. And remember—when you use Pepsodent Antiseptic to check bad breath, you are doing double duty by also fighting colds.

$3 worth for $1—regardless of size

To kill germs—most mouth antiseptics must be used full strength. So to mix them with water is a waste of money. Contrariwise, Pepsodent Antiseptic can be mixed with twice its own volume of water. Thus Pepsodent Antiseptic goes 3 times as far—saves you $2 for every $1 you spend. Pepsodent Antiseptic comes in 3 sizes: 3 ounces for 25 cents—7 ounces for 50 cents—16 ounces for $1. The larger the size, the more for your money.

Learn to rely on Pepsodent Antiseptic whenever a safe, effective germ-killing agent is required. It has scores of uses.

Again we say: Quit being good to germs. They've laughed at you long enough. Play safe. Buy an antiseptic that really kills germs when diluted. Remember you can fool yourself but you can't fool bad breath.

SORE THROAT · COLDS

Pepsodent Antiseptic does double duty when fighting bad breath. For at the same time it combats colds and throat irritations. Remember P. A. is 3 to 11 times more powerful in killing germs than other leading mouth antiseptics... and it kills germs when diluted.

Some of the 50 different uses for this modern antiseptic

Throat Irritations
Voice Hoarseness
Bad Breath

'N' drink 'n' smoke 'n' pet—
Before she can be a Big Number 'n' have classy dates?

Lonely little Betty wanted to know. She'd tried being a Nice Girl. And all it had brought her was evenings at home, listening to the family radio and the kids whooping it up next door.

"I want to live!" she cried. "I want to go places and see things! Am I wasting my time by clinging to my ideals?"

And many another little girl has asked that question in bitterness and resentment. Annette has an answer for them . . . and it's big news.

BECAME RECKLESS

"Dear Sally Martin:

"I've read the letter from Betty, asking whether a girl had to be a drinker, a smoker and a petter, in order to be popular and have a good time. You asked for opinions from boys, but I think perhaps one from her own sex might help. You see, I speak from experience.

"I'm 21—not particularly pretty, but do my best to look neat and smart. When I was Betty's age I had the same problem. I'd been brought up by rather narrow-minded parents, and had a decided biased view of life. Between the years of 14 and 17 I was dreadfully unhappy, and I don't like to think about it. Like Betty, I wanted to have a good time, but the boys didn't seem to think I was good company. I was a Goody-Goody, and nothing else.

"I suddenly decided to change, and I did with a vengeance. For almost two years I allowed myself to be a foolish flapper. I drank, in spite of the fact that I hated the stuff. I necked, in the most approved manner. I smoked. And, incidentally, I estranged myself from a loving father and mother.

REALIZED FOLLY

"I thought I had got what I wanted. I became one of those girls who is asked out on every good party. I had good times—at least I thought they were good times for a while. And then—all this drinking and petting got my goat.

"I sat down one night, and had a good, heart-to-heart talk with myself. I admitted to myself that I hated liquor—except for an occasional tasty cocktail—and most of all, I admitted that I hated the petting and mauling for which I had allowed myself to become a mark. I grew hot with shame at what the boys must think of me. And I cut it all out.

"Once I had made up my mind, it wasn't hard to do. It hadn't gone very deep, and I felt absolutely no regrets at passing up the crowd I had gone with. I found that quiet evenings at home had their charm, too. In fact they were worth the silly, hilarious evenings, a hundred times over.

"I do not drink now at all. I wouldn't neck with just any boy at the point of a gun. Out of the medley of boys with whom I used to go constantly I see about four. They have respected me for my sudden turnabout. They like me for myself alone.

NEW INTERESTS

"And instead of finding it necessary to keep up on all the latest wisecracks like I used to, I find that there are hundreds of things to talk about to make an evening interesting. The men I have met since that foolish time are all upstanding and clear-thinking, and I have absolutely no interest in the others. I have had four proposals of marriage during the last year—and everyone from men I respect and admire. And during my hectic year, I didn't even have one. In fact, about all I got out of that year was a real licking for smoking.

"What makes me happiest of all, I think, is my new-found self-respect. That, and the fact that I'm on friendly and happy terms with my family again. They have very sweetly taken the view that I had to have my 'fling.' But I wish I'd had the sense to realize the futility of that 'fling' before I went in for it. If my years between 14 and 17 were unhappy, that year was a nightmare.

"So—I hope you will print this to help Betty. It is an honest report from ANNETTE.

You bet I'll print it, Annette! You're a great youngster, and you're on the right track at last. Here's my hand to you!

Fay King Advises Young Couples to Have Few Friends, but Real Ones

By FAY KING.

Nothing is easier than to fill your little home with a mob of moochers who will drop in anywhere to get a drink and a hand-out. Crashers who trail along won't even know or care who their host or hostess is.

Getting them in is easy. Getting them out is another matter. And nine times out of 10 when the crowd is gone there is discord between the young couple over some brazen act of one of the guests. Don't waste time and money on them.

Have few friends, but real ones, and cut out the crowd who will undermine your happiness.

Spend that money on yourselves and that time together, enjoying a good show, or for something you want to own.

Discovery of Letter Leads to Futile Attempt to Decipher It

For a long minute I stared at the three grave faces watching me, Lillian's, my father's and Dicky's. If my life had depended upon it, I could not think when I last had seen the rice paper letter which the Chinese marauder had made so desperate an effort to get, and which I had defended as valiantly. Lillian was the first to speak. "No, of course, he didn't get it" she said soothingly, "or you never would have let him go. Here! What are these things on the table?"

"They were in my bag," I said, still groping in the haze into which my memory had been transformed. "I put them out there when I was looking for that little pistol."

"Ah!" Lillian's voice had a satisfied note.

"Of course. I shouldn't wonder if it were there, although I don't remember putting it in my bag."

Lillian moved to the table and looked over the things strewn there just as, with my hand behind me, I had removed them in my search for the pistol.

"I imagine this is the 'missing pa-aper,'" she intoned in approved melodramatic fashion, holding up the flaming red rice paper letter. "It was covered with a handkerchief or it would have hit me between the eyes the first thing. Here, Chief!" She held it out to my father with the deference she always gives him. "This should go first to you."

My father took it and examined it carefully, every page. "My wasted opportunities!" he said when he had finished. "I can hold my own fairly well in the Chekiang dialect, but my knowledge of the writing is limited to two or three characters, and I can make nothing of this. Richard?" He handed the paper over to Dicky who looked at it quizzically.

"I can admire the passionate paper, and the raven's wing ink," he said, "but aside from that, I'm sunk without a trace. Are you a Chinese shark, Lil? I never knew it."

"I'm not even a minnow," Lillian declared. But she looked the paper over with careful, appraising eyes.

"I may be crazy," she said, "but I'll be boiled in olive oil or what have you, if there isn't something familiar looking about the thing."

"Probably fond memories of your laundry lists when you patronized the local Orientals," Dicky said, but she shook her head stubbornly.

"No, it isn't that, it's something else, what—I don't know, but it stirs a chord."

She bent her eyes again upon the paper, and I rose upon my elbow.

"Do you know that's what I felt too, Lillian," I said excitedly. "I have seen those characters on the outside before. I'm sure, although I can't remember where, and if you examine the thing carefully, you'll see that the same characters are repeated at the head of the letter and two or three times in the context."

Dicky put me back firmly upon my pillows.

"Suppose you lie still and don't move until you're given permission," he said firmly but smiling tenderly down at me. "We'll report all findings to your Majesty."

I lay back obediently and watched the three heads bent over the paper which Lillian spread out upon the table.

"She's right!" Dicky declared excitedly after a short scrutiny. "Look here, and here, and here! Old dear, you're a wizard or wizardess, or witch, or what have you."

"I wish I were wizardess enough to remember where I had seen those characters before," I said a bit pettishly. "It's positively maddening to be sure of something that way, and not be able to prove even to yourself that you are right."

"Don't worry. You'll come through!" Lillian said comfortably. "I've known you woman and girl for many summers and winters now; also varying moons, and I never knew that marvelous photographic memory of yours to fall down completely on anything. It may halt a bit but it gets there, nevertheless."

"Well! I wish it would show some signs of life just now," I answered. "Please let me look at that thing again, and—don't talk, anybody—please—for a minute or two."

They knew what I wanted, all of them. Sometimes by keeping perfectly quiet, and concentrating all my effort upon a certain thing, I am able to recall things which I had deemed forgotten. But Dicky took the letter away from Lillian and put it in his pocket.

"No such stunt for you just now," he said masterfully.

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Gift of Appreciation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am acquainted with the principal of a Junior High School. This dear woman has been helping me for two years, doing everything in her power to make me comfortable in school while I have been ill and unable to walk up and down the steps.

When she went to Europe she sent me cards from all the places she visited. She did as much as to come to the hospital to see me, and brought me flowers. When I came home from the hospital she came to take me for a ride in her automobile.

Now my problem is this: The Junior High School, of which she is principal, is going to be made into a trade school. She is going to be made principal of a new Junior High School not yet completed. I feel in my heart that I owe her my appreciation by giving or sending her something. What would you suggest that I give to her? I am a poor girl, 14 years of age and cannot afford anything expensive. R.

What a darling you are, bless you! The world becomes a star-lit place, indeed, when one sees such fine appreciation as you have, and I take such special pleasure in talking over with you the gift for this kind teacher. I am sure that she is just the person who would deeply appreciate your sending her a lovely handkerchief, monogrammed, perhaps, with her monogram or initials, and accompanied by the charming note of appreciation that I am sure you will send with your gift. It can be a tiny square of sheer linen, white, and perhaps with a hand-done rolled edge. This would be in perfect taste.

Or a fine book would be good too; a collection of poems, say. Or a purse, or a leather portfolio for her desk or for traveling. Or a folding traveling clock. Or a pencil for her purse. Or a folding comb for her purse.

Asparagus and the Fork

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you kindly tell me if it is correct to eat asparagus with a fork or may you use your fingers? S. B.

If we don't wish to be registered with the "goops," who, as you remember, eat most untidily, we must eat our asparagus with the fork. It's far too messy and too drippy for us to eat it in our fingers.

Contract Bridge -:- OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

Assisting Minimum Bids

Opening bids of one by partner may lead to a game contract at some make; do not be too dogmatic in your rules for assisting; excess of strength of one species often atones for lack of strength of another sort. I do not like to hear a player state that he will not support unless he holds better trump aid than three small cards of partner's suit, or to have a player say that he will not aid upon less than 1½ quick tricks.

Nobody advocates at once assisting upon three small trumps, provided a sound shift is available, but your partner's opening bid, say of 1-Heart, overcalled at your right by 1-Spade, obligates a bid of 2-Hearts upon a hand like the following, because you should not venture 1-No-Trump with spades unstopped, nor have you a bidable suit; you must say 2-Hearts.

♠8-6-3 ♥9-5-2 ♣A-K-J ♦K-6-5-4

If your partner holds the first hand shown below he should show his spade stop and shortness in hearts, by shifting to 2-No-Trumps, which you may raise to a game declaration. Upon the second holding given below partner may jump to 4-Hearts. Partner should shift to 3-Diamonds on the third holding below; his bid shows not more than five black cards (his two declarations of red suits mark partner with not fewer than eight red cards); you may lose three black card tricks; probably you must lose one heart trick, your partner does not want to be ruffed with only four hearts; game is improbable at either red suit; diamonds looks safer than hearts; you had better pass, especially if vulnerable.

♠A-7-2 ♥A-K-6-4 ♣8-5 ♦A-Q-3-2
♠7-2 ♥A-K-6-4-3 ♣8-5 ♦A-Q-4-2
♠7-2 ♥A-K-6-4 ♣8-5-3 ♦A-Q-3-2

The best rule for assisting partner takes into account both sure tricks and probable tricks. The hands shown below illustrate the amounts of each kind of necessary trick. Either 2 or 1½ quick tricks should be sufficient for an assist, provided the total tricks are at least 3½ (hands 1 and 2); just 1 quick trick requires a total count of 4 probable tricks (hand 3); ½ quick trick needs 4½ probable tricks (hand 4); absence of quick trick demands not fewer than 5 probable tricks (hand 5). Of course probable tricks count in the previously counted quick tricks. Assist 1-spade upon any hand shown below.

1. ♠9-4-3-2 ♥A-7-4 ♣9-6-2 ♦A-8-5
2. ♠9-4-3-2 ♥K-10-7-2 ♣9-6-3 ♦A-8
3. ♠Q-10-3-2 ♥K-7-4 ♣K-6-3-2 ♦8-5
4. ♠Q-10-5-3-2 ♥8-7-4 ♣6 ♦K-J-5-3
5. ♠Q-10-5-3-2 ♥9-7-4-2 ♣— ♦Q-10-9-6

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Fear Is the Friend of Disease

Recently I have received letters relating to cancer. Too much cannot be written on this subject. The cancer situation rests largely on the public. Its prevention and cure rests with you.

Dr. Copeland

Doctors cannot cure people who do not seek early examination and treatment. For the present, at least, this is the way to deal with cancer. It can be combated successfully if it is recognized in its early stages.

Most persons are under the impression there has been a tremendous increase in cancer. This is not so. It is true there are more cases of cancer known today than 10 years ago. But this is because modern physicians have trained themselves so that they are more capable of detecting this condition than medical men did a dozen years ago. This means that more cases of cancer are discovered today than in former years.

Many a woman suffers tortures of mind, fearing she has cancer. Yet she won't go to a doctor. She is sure she has cancer, yet has not been told so by one competent to judge. The fact is, she is afraid to consult a physician for fear he might confirm her fears.

She is suffering needlessly, in all probability. The chances are there is no cancer. Yet she makes it exceedingly difficult for the doctor to deal with the disease if it actually exists. She is losing valuable time.

As I have told you again and again, when cancer is recognized early, and the proper measures are taken, the disease may be entirely cured. On the other hand, if the disease is permitted to run on for a long time without treatment, very little can be accomplished in the way of actual cure. The most that can be hoped for when cancer is neglected, is relief of the pain.

If you have any complaint, particularly any physicial defect that makes you suspect cancer, do not follow ill-given advice, but consult with your physician. He has been trained in these matters. He is always on the alert for early signs of cancer and will know exactly what to do.

It is only by your honest cooperation that the disease can be eradicated. When you approach the problem in that spirit you are on the way to recovery.

Answers to Health Queries

Mrs. S. R. Q.—I am 58 years of age and notice lately that I have a sharp pain in the heels after taking a short walk. This sometimes keeps me awake at night. Resting does no good. What would you advise?

A.—Have the heel examined—the trouble may be due to neuritis, spurs or to fallen arches. Your doctor will advise treatment after examination.

J. Q.—What can be done for double vision?

Household Hints

Don't fail to have ventilation in the bathroom at all times.

Wheat flour is the best extinguisher to throw on a fire caused by spilling and ignition of gasoline and kerosene. Household ammonia or sand also is excellent for this purpose. Water only spreads the flame.

Dried fruit is far better if stewed in the oven and can be cooked while baking or roasting other foods. Wash the fruit, pour boiling water on it and let it stand in a covered dish until the oven is ready, then add sugar, cover tightly and let the heat of the oven cook them.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

When a double chin is on the way, try the ice and cold water treatment. Use cold water or ice several times a day. At night load up the surface with a heavy cream and thump with the finger ends.

Carry the chest high. Stretch the backbone to the limit. Body balance will be present and the question of carriage settled. When walking tall, carrying the chest up, hips naturally go toward the back and the tumtum flattens. There's no muscular slack.

When it is necessary to press blackheads from the skin, sterilize the surface with rubbing alcohol, and wrap some soft fabric around the fingers. Severe pressure breaks the delicate cells. The result may be scars that can never be removed. A comedone extractor is convenient.

Any eruption on the scalp should have the attention of a medical man who specializes in skin diseases. It won't do to apply any old tonic when the scalp is in a state of inflammation. Sterilize combs and brushes by washing thoroughly and dipping into a small bowl filled with tepid water to which a few drops of lysol have been added.

BABY FRETFUL, RESTLESS?

Look to this cause—

Does your baby have nights when he fusses, tosses and seems unable to go quickly, quietly to sleep? Look for one common cause, doctors say. A constipated condition.

To get rid quickly of accumulated wastes which cause restlessness and discomfort, nothing is better than genuine time-proven Castoria.

Castoria, you know, is made specially for children's delicate needs. It is a pure vegetable preparation; contains no harsh drugs, no narcotics of any kind.

It is mild and gentle enough to relieve a young infant's colic pains, yet is an effective regulator for children of school age.

When your baby is upset and unable to sleep, or has a little cold or fever, it is a wise precaution to give him the gentle but sure regulative help of Castoria. With regulation come relaxed comfort and restful sleep.

Keep a bottle always on hand. Children like the taste of real Castoria—which always has the name, Chas. H. Fletcher, on the package.

Lots of Dogs; No Stars

The motion picture star system applies to dogs as well as humans.

In Hollywood are more than 500 dog actors in the various social and business strata of featured player, bit player and atmosphere player.

There are no dog stars at present. Rin-Tin-Tin has retired to live on his earnings. Strongheart has passed to his reward. Petey, likewise, has marked his last.

But among the featured dogs are many newcomers with training that fits them for talking pictures. Cappy is an aristocratic St. Bernard, which worked "Rich Man's Folly" as the pet of George Bancroft.

The untrained dog hasn't a chance in motion pictures today. To be successful a canine must have brains as well as personality and be able to follow pantomimic directions given by his master off-stage.

Flying Insignia Given To Clark Gable

FILM STARS HONORED

Exclusive pictures are shown of the presentation of awards by the Motion Picture Academy in Los Angeles for the best performance during the year 1931 by individual motion picture players. Hearst Metrotone News pictures the brilliant scene in the banquet hall attended by all of the outstanding motion picture folk of Hollywood. Vice President Curtis and his sister, Mrs. Dolly Gann, are among those present, and the ceremonies are opened with a short talk by the Vice President.

Marie Dressler receives the women's award for her outstanding work in "Min and Bill." The gold statuette, symbolic of the award, is presented by Norma Shearer, who was similarly honored last year. Lionel Barrymore, of the royal family, received the award made to a male star for his work in "A Free Soul." The presentation to Barrymore is made by George Arliss.

WILD WAVES HAVE SAY

Thrilling scenes taken on shipboard vividly depict the fury of the hurricanes that have been raging in the steamer lanes on the Atlantic Ocean. All incoming steamers were delayed and so severe were the gales that the giant Aquitania limps into port two days late. Actual views taken at sea show the enormous waves sweeping the deck of the huge liner.

The ancient adage that "music hath charms to soothe the savage breast" is disproven when an orchestra visits the Berlin Zoo, giving the animals a free concert. They don't like the music at all.

Fourteen thousand shouting fans gather in Madison Square Garden, New York City, for the opening of the hockey season. There are thrills galore as the New York Rangers go down to defeat by a score of 2-1 at the hands of the Detroit Falcons.

Grandi Talks In Hearst Newsie

THE GLOBE TROTTER

Dino Grandi, Mussolini's foreign minister, is seen and heard as he arrives in America for the purpose of "talking things over" with President Hoover. The stay in New York of Italy's envoy lasted a very short time, during which the Premier, his wife and their party of 20 were transferred from the liner to a tug and hurried to Jersey City, where they departed by train for the capital.

Through Hearst Metrotone News, showing in the Penn, Fulton and other theaters, Senor Grandi expresses himself as delighted to return to the United States after an absence of six years. Senora Grandi, who is quite pretty, also poses for the cameraman.

Speakeasy Satyr

Old man Costello enters with an air,
He wears his shabby garments like a king;
His step is firm—the whiteness of his hair
Sets off the glowing eyes, still questioning;
Three drinks or four and he begins to spin
Fantastic tales of Ireland, long ago
Remembering a gay and glamorous inn—
Remembering the girls who loved him so.

One night he brought a slender book to me—
His name inscribed—I read the flowing rhyme
And gasped, "Ah, yes," he said, "I used to be
A writing fellow once upon a time."
Old man Costello will not want for drink—
While I have coins to spend, or brains to think!

Self-Preservation

When the Ziegfeld "Follies" decided to go on tour, four of the pretty unknowns who had been discovered and glorified by Ziegfeld jumped over to another call for a new musical show.

Bobby Connolly, the dance master, heard of it, so the next day he called the entire ensemble on the stage of the Ziegfeld to offset the foursome attending the call.

Connolly then gave them a lecture on loyalty and told them how ungrateful they were to the producer and his investment, and the publicity and help he had given them. He told how unfair it was to desert a man and his investment after they had been paid handsome wages during a depressing year.

Then four more jumped.

"How many stag 'ands" wired Jennings, "did Maude Adams use at the Ohio Theatre?"

"Twenty-nine" replied Fred. "Why did they have to use so many?"

"To carry Maude Adams and Otis Skinner on and off stage!"

Newspaperman Stuff

Gilbert Selden, one of the better commentators, says he began his writing career with the Get the punch in the first line!" slogan. He says that he fought against it and wasn't a good reporter.

Mr. Selden then discusses "Schwanda," the new opera at the Met, which shows, reports Mr. Selden, "the devil in his business office in hell—reading a gossip column."

But what gossip column, Mr. Selden—Beatrice Fairfax?

Merciless Truth

A headache and a heartache, observes L. Meltzer, are two things only the stock market and a woman can give you at the same time.

The Win-nah!

Ouch!

Before Billy Rose's musical show went on the road, the producer hired legal aid to keep exclusive his new numbers, such as "I Found a Million Dollar Baby," etc. They were off the market for fear the constant plugging would hurt the value of the songs before the revue hit Chicago.

Only one artist bootlegged "Million Dollar Baby." He was James Hall, ex-movie actor, who was doing MC work in a Chicago picture palace before the show "Crazy Quilt" hit the Windy City.

Rose and Hall met for the first time at a party the other evening and Rose was quick to advise Hall that his use of the number was not only unethical and unprofessional, but ridiculous.

Hall became furious. He stood up and shook a finger at Rose:

"How dare you say that to me?" the wired-for-sound man yelled at Rose. "I had intended sending you a bill for the good I did the number when I sang it!"

The Retort Proper

It was one of those apartment parties and Harry Green, the chin-ema actor, found a party-pest in his hair.

He finally rebuked the annoyer.

"Go away!" screamed Harry, "you distress me!"

"I'll have you understand," replied the pest, "that I'm in the Social Register!"

"That makes rotten reading, too!" Green groaned.

Mr. Menjou Sheridan Star

By MILDRED FILLMORE

"Friends and Lovers" is the new attraction in the Sheridan Square. It is just another picture.

It presents the story of two friends. British army officers who love the same girl. And this girl happens to be married to a blackmailer.

Some of the scenes are laid in India, where men gallop off on horses to fight somewhere and come back with an arm in a sling or a bandaged head.

After this, that and the other, the finale arrives and has one of the men chasing after the woman who had planned to pass out of their lives forever.

Adolphe Menjou has the leading role. Lily Damita is present in the chief feminine part. Laurence Olivier, a young man with lots of personality, who hails from the London and New York stage, and Eric Von Stroheim are prominent in the cast.

None of the players displays much sincerity. But then there isn't much to be sincere about.

Koran, the mystic, continues to make stage appearances.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Gilbert Miller, producer of "A Good Fairy" and "Tomorrow And Tomorrow," attractions in Alvin and Nixon, respectively, and who played himself (manager) on the opening night of the first-mentioned play, had to depart last night to attend the funeral of a relative. He expects to return Thursday. Not until he came to Pittsburgh Monday did Mr. Miller know that he was playing "opposition" to himself in each theater, and, naturally, he was greatly elated when it transpired that each of his productions was greeted by fine, smartly dressed audiences. He confessed yesterday that he did not think such a thing could happen elsewhere, and paid a tall tribute to Pittsburgh as "a good show town."

Al Jolson, himself, in person, in his European novelty, "The Wonder Bar," comes to the Alvin next week, the engagement to include Thanksgiving Day and Saturday matinees. One may deal with the box office as early as nine ayem tomorrow. Al, in the flesh, has been giving us the run-around for about five years, during which he has been a movieite. Another ex-screeme, Claire Windsor, will be one of Al's barmaids.

Small Timer says his idea of a real high pressure salesman is one who could sell himself to his wife when he came home very late.

"Three's a Crowd," the names of which are Clifton Webb, Libby Holman and Fred Allen, will gang the Nixon stage all of the nights next wk. and Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday afternoons. A musical revue is what it is, and ducats for same will be obtainable from the officers of the box office tomorrow morn at nine, and thereafter. It ran a year in N. Y.

Mothers Welcome New Plan For Better "Control-of-Colds"

Plan Introduced by Makers of Vicks VapoRub to Relieve the Family "Colds Tax" Made Possible by a New Preparation

Local Druggists Offer a Test of the New Product and Plan to VapoRub Users on Unlimited Guarantee of Satisfactory Results

Mothers are constantly faced with the problem of colds and their costs. It is the mothers, therefore, who especially appreciate the Vick Plan for better "Control-of-Colds" in the home—just perfected by the makers of Vicks VapoRub.

The Vick Plan is made possible by a new preparation, Vicks Nose & Throat Drops, based on a new idea in "preventing" colds. It is a companion product to VapoRub, the modern external method of "treating" colds. The two preparations aid and supplement each other. Together, as directed below, they give you the Vick Plan for better "Control-of-Colds."

1.—Before a Cold Starts

Use Vicks Nose Drops — a few drops up each nostril—whenever you or your children have been exposed to anything which your own experience tells you is apt to bring on a cold—contact with others having fresh colds, crowds, stuffy ill-ventilated rooms, public places—a night on the Pullman or a dusty automobile ride—sudden changes in temperature, wet or cold—inhaling smoke, dust, gases—or when you are tired from overwork.

In short, don't wait for that stuffy, sneezy irritation of the nasal passages—Nature's warning that you are actually "catching cold."

2.—After a Cold Starts

At night, massage the throat and chest well with Vicks VapoRub—now available in "stainless form" if you prefer. Spread on thick and cover with warm flannel. Leave the bed clothing loose around the neck so that the medicated vapors arising may be inhaled freely all night long. During the day, use Vicks Nose Drops every few hours—any time, any place. This gives you full 24-hour treatment.

Ideal for Children

Both these Vick products are external and hence can be used as freely and as often as needed without the risk of too much "dosing." Internal "dosing" so often disturbs the digestion—especially the delicate digestions of children. This impairs the appetite, which, in turn, reduces body strength at a time when resistance to disease is most needed. Don't "dose" colds—especially children's colds—except on advice of your family physician.

Trial Offer to Vick Users

Proof of this Plan is in its trial—in your own home. Get a bottle of Vicks Drops today. Keep it alongside your trusted Vicks VapoRub. Use them together as directed. Their better "Control-of-Colds" will be noted in fewer colds—colds of less severity and shorter duration. An actual saving to you in money, loss of time and health. Otherwise, the test will cost you nothing. For, unless results are more than satisfactory, your druggist will refund in full the price of the new Vicks Nose Drops.

Do Just Two Simple Things—Fat Melts Away

NO tiring exercise, no starvation. Instead, a full stomach and never a hungry moment! Yet fat melts away. You can easily lose from four to seven pounds weekly, see the coarse lines of fat replaced by the refined lines of slenderness—and feel better than you ever felt before in your life.

What You Do

There are just two simple things you do: Clear your system—and keep it clear of waste matter, toxins and depleting poisons with ordinary JAD SALTS obtainable at any drug store. Start with a teaspoonful in a full glass of water tomorrow morning—a sparkling and pleasant drink.

Then EAT YOUR FILL—as much as your appetite can stand—of meals consisting of the following foods:

At breakfast eat two oranges, or the juice of two oranges. Eat also two slices of toasted whole wheat or bran bread. Eat rolled oats (with milk, not cream).

At luncheon eat a good size piece of lean meat, then see how much spinach, lettuce, sauerkraut, boiled cabbage, green peas, broccoli or fresh turnips you can eat. EAT ALL YOU CAN COMFORTABLY HOLD of these foods. For dessert eat any fresh fruit; cantaloupe, berries, apples, sliced oranges, pears. Substitute turnips for potatoes. Substitute lean meats—beef, chicken, veal, white fish, trout, bass, etc.—for pork or any fat meats.

At night, have another FILL-UP-FULL meal as above. Cut down on butter and sweets—eat half of what you eat now. That's easy. For with your stomach full of other foods, you'll never notice it. Drink water or not as you like.

4 to 7 Pounds Gone in Week

At the end of a week, you'll see the scale down four to seven pounds—according to how much overweight you are—from what you weighed the day you started. Your health, too, will be better. You'll be more active, more vigorous than perhaps for years. Your friends will soon begin to notice your increasing slenderness. You'll soon avoid the embarrassment of being called fat or bulky. And—you'll do it with NEVER A HUNGRY MOMENT!

If in doubt about this safe and simple way, ASK ANY DOCTOR. Show him this article. Ask him whether or not it is safe and sure. It marks the latest findings of scientific men in the field of weight reduction. For it performs two necessary and important functions.

The JAD SALTS clear the bowels and system of the excessive toxins most overweight people have. The change in diet—the FILLING OF THE STOMACH TO ITS LIMIT—with foods that turn to energy instead of fat, decreases the weight day by day. The salts build up your health. The change in food eases off the fat.

Start today. Clip out this dietary and save it. Get big package of ordinary JAD SALTS for the cleansing part of the method at any drug store. A large bottle costs less than a dollar.

*Note particularly—the salts are urged purely as a poison-banishing agent—not as a reducing. The change in food does the work.

EXPERTS NAMED TO FIND COAL SOLUTION

5 Biggest Producing States Linked in Parley's Quest For Aid to Industry

Five experts representing the five largest coal-producing states of the country were named today as a committee to recommend a solution for ills of the coal industry to the Third International Conference on Bituminous Coal.

They are Walter H. Glasgow, secretary of the Department of Mines of Pennsylvania; C. E. Lawall, director of the School of Mines, West Virginia University; J. J. Rutledge, chief manager, Maryland Bureau of Mines; F. R. Stearns, a director of the Stearns Coal and Lumber Company, Stearns, Ky., and James Berry, chief of the Ohio Division of Mining.

WILL REPORT TOMORROW

They will receive recommendations as to the best means of securing an agency for bringing about the economic co-ordination of the coal industry and submit a report to the conference tomorrow afternoon, embodying recommendations of their own.

A battle of scientific theories in which two distinguished German biologists clashed over the origin of coal, engrossed the attention of scientists and industrialists at the third day's sessions today in Carnegie Music Hall.

The conflict, hinging on whether coal was formed from lignin or cellulose, found Prof. E. Berl, of Darmstadt, Germany, holding for cellulose and Dr. Frank Fischer, director of the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute, Mulheim-Ruhr, Germany, maintaining that "bugs" eat the cellulose and leave the lignin to become coal.

Dr. Berl, not present, had his paper read by Dr. H. H. Lowry, head of Carnegie Tech's coal laboratories.

FISCHER PAPER

Dr. Fischer, who read his paper, said:

"During the past year Berl, disregarding completely the biological processes, has again tried to prove that coal has been formed from cellulose. By heating cellulose with water under pressure in the presence of alkali, coal-like substances were obtained by him."

Dr. Berl's paper explained that in the laboratory he had made synthetic coal out of cellulose, and said:

"Fischer and Shrader advanced arguments according to which lignin was responsible for the formation of bituminous coal. We are not able to agree with this idea, and, to antici-

1,500 Jobless Demand Hoover Act as Host

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—President Hoover was called on yesterday to provide food and lodging for 1,500 "hunger marchers" for two days next month. The demand was contained in a letter addressed to the Chief Executive by Herbert Benjamin, national field representative of the group.

The letter said the group would arrive in Washington on December 6 from all sections of the country to address Congress when it convenes the following day.

'Missing Co-ed' Off To Join Her Husband

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 18.—(INS.)—The sudden and mysterious departure of an Ohio State University co-ed, reported missing last night from a dormitory, was cleared up here today when school officials learned she had hurriedly left Columbus in an airplane to join her husband in Chicago. The couple was secretly married last summer.

The student, Roma Gaskill, prominent in university dramatics before her graduation in 1929, was taking graduate work in geology. She was married to Robert A. Curry, of Chicago, in Rockford, Ill., last July.

RELIEF DENIED MARCHERS IN 2 COUNTIES

Uniontown and Greensburg Officials Refer Jobless To State; No Disorders

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Nov. 18.—Fayette County's unemployed were back at their homes today after a march to the Courthouse here yesterday to demand relief from the County Commissioners.

Their appeals for what amounted to a dole fell upon sympathetic tears, but the Commissioners told the march leaders that they were powerless to aid them, and suggested that they appeal to the state for aid.

The delegation of 150 men from Brownsville was led by Miss Elsie Francis, 19. Another marched from Cardale and Point Marion, the latter 18 miles away. Hundreds of persons crowded around the Courthouse when the paraders arrived and heard the pleas for relief. Police kept their distance from the crowd, but watched for disorders. The demonstration was followed by a meeting in Croatian Hall, last night.

A delegation of more than 100 men and women, representing the Unemployed Council of Westmoreland County, marched on the Courthouse in Greensburg yesterday afternoon and demanded relief from Commissioners. They were told aid could not be provided from county funds.

Watchman Killed By Fumes in Garage

Robert W. Stewart, 63, night watchman for the McKinley-Gregg Company, was found dead in his garage at 205 Ella street, yesterday, a victim of carbon monoxide, according to a coroner's report. Stewart had been missing since Friday.

Army's Mule For Day Looks Back on Glory

A four and-a-half year old mule that will be five in April, if not sooner, was munching whatever mules munch and generally taking things easier in the munching pit of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation's Castle Shannon mine today.

Army's "Jack"

The mule's name was Jack, and he was on a vacation. Maybe you have never heard of mules taking vacations but this one was earned.

If you stood and watched Jack for hours you might grow cynical and look upon him as just another mule until R. P. Clippinger, the Castle Shannon purchasing agent, would arrive and exclaim proudly:

"Jack there is the mule that was the Army mule at the Pitt Stadium last Saturday. We're letting him take things easy now to enjoy his fame."

It was given out Saturday that the cadets, afraid to trust their famous old campus mule, Maude, to the long trip from West Point, had hied to the North Side and grabbed the first mule that came along.

But an anonymous letter to the Sun-Telegraph today claimed the honor for Castle Shannon. True enough, Jack is a long way from Maude, as mules go, but there is honor enough.

IT WAS COMPLICATED

And any idea that hiring a substitute for Maude is a simple business is erroneous. Here is how it was accomplished:

Col. Anderson asked his aide, Maj. Hubbard, to get the mule.

Maj. Hubbard asked Col. George H. Carrington, ex-service man and now president of Standard Machinist and Equipment Company.

Col. Carrington asked Mr. Clippinger.

The cadets came out and got Jack and brought him back intact, none the worse for wear.

State Gets Higher Interest on Funds

HARRISBURG, Nov. 18.—(INS.)—A considerable saving for the commonwealth was effected today with investment by the State Board of Finance and Revenue of sinking fund money in $6,250,000 worth of state and federal bonds.

A higher rate of interest to be realized brings the saving. The board on October 29 reduced the rate of interest payable by inactive depositories on state deposits from 3 per cent to 2 per cent, and since November 1 sinking fund money has been drawing this lower interest rate.

Snowden Picks Title From Home Village

LONDON, Nov. 18.—(INS.)—Former Chancellor of the Exchequer Philip Snowden, who was elevated to the peerage by King George, will take the title of "Viscount Snowden of Ickornshaw," it was understood here today.

Ickornshaw is the district in the small town of Cowling, Yorkshire, where Snowden was born.

TIME FOR ROAD CONSTRUCTION EXTENDED

Allegheny River Boulevard Complete Except Stretch At Pumphouse Obstacle

John F. Casey, contractor for the Allegheny River boulevard, has been granted, by the County Commissioners, an extension of time from November 3 to December 20 to complete the project.

Request for the extension, submitted by W. H. R. Krelling, acting director of the Department of Public Works, was accompanied by an explanation that all work has been completed within the specified time limit excepting a section near Nadine Pumping Station.

The design of the boulevard was branded an "engineering blunder" by County Commissioner C. C. McGovern in criticism of the majority members of the Commissioner's board and the county engineer.

When the contractor reached Nadine Pumping Station it was found a Pennsylvania Water Company building stood in the way of the boulevard and that it would be necessary to bridge over the building or curve the road around it.

The water company has asked $500,000 damages to alter the pumping station to permit the boulevard to continue in a straight line.

Blackmail Plotter Gets 3-Year Parole

David McBride, 39, of Dravosburg, today entered upon a three-year parole, extended by Judge James H. Gray in Criminal Court, when he pleaded guilty to attempted blackmail and assault and battery. The prosecutor was James A. Nugent, of Swissvale, who alleged McBride wrote him a threatening letter, September 25, and followed this with a violent quarrel.

County Seeks Permit For Homestead Span

Lesher has been asked by County Commissioners to prepare legal papers necessary for presentation to Congress requesting passage of an act authorizing the construction of Homestead high-level bridge across the Monongahela River connecting Homestead and Browns Hill on the northerly bank of the stream.

Wilkinsburg Truck Crash Injures Man

Harry Dirienco, 28, of Somerset, was in the Columbia Hospital today suffering severe lacerations of the head and face and a possible fracture of the skull received, police said, when he was thrown from a truck after it skidded into a signal light at Ardmore boulevard and Franklin avenue, Wilkinsburg, early today.

Slag Pit Explosion Felt in Oakland

Scores of houses in Oakland were shaken by an explosion in the slag pit of the Eliza furnace, Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation, Second avenue, last night. The blast occurred when workmen dumped loads of red-hot cinders into the pit. The blast was heard for several miles. No one was injured.

EW FUND GIFTS NECESSARY TO REACH GOAL

Present Donation Ra Declared to Be Inadequate Half of Goal Unraise

A list of Welfare Fund donors appears on Page 12.

In an effort to put the joi campaign of the Welfare Fur and Allegheny County Emer gency Association over the to 8,000 workers today starte out in a fresh attempt to rais the $5,981,184 quota befo November 23.

Swelled by 4,692 contribution reported at today's noon meetin of workers in the William Penn Hotel, the quota was nearing the half-way mark. Today's total of $179,984.50 boosted the amount so far obtained to $2,418,006.05.

Leaders in the campaign, admitting that at the present rate of daily total reports, which range from $150,000 to $200,000, the goal cannot be reached before th stipulated closing date, yesterday began realignment of forces t re-canvass those who have already contributed to the found.

URGES 'REVALUATION'

Joseph Dilworth, chairman o the drive, yesterday declared th total should be raised easily i Allegheny County, as it is a smal amount in comparison with th inherent wealth of the county He urged a complete revaluatio of the campaign in the minds o prospective donors.

Subscriptions reported at ye terday's luncheon in the Williar Penn Hotel included a joint con tribution of $56.15 from the 7 children in the Industrial Hom for Crippled Children. Employe of the Union Trust Company sub scribed 12 times the total of thei donation last year, it was an nounced.

Vacuum Oil Company and Farmers Deposit Bank employe contributed five times their las year's totals and Peoples Natura Gas Company employes triple their donation.

McKeesport total, including three days' pay from every employe on the city payroll, is $57,871 to date, it was announced.

Stole 3 Ducks as Medium For News of Absent Wife

"My wife is in the old country and a man told me if I would sleep on three dead ducks I would dream about what she is doing".

This was the explanation offered Judge James H. Gray, in Criminal Court by Mike Hirko, 39, of 413 South Second street, Duquesne, when he pleaded guilty to stealing three ducks from Steve Forstoffer, 1212 St. Clair street, Duquesne, on October 16. Steve put it this way:

"One night when I go to sleep I have 26 ducks. Next morning when I wake up I have only 23 ducks. Three days later I hear they have three dead ducks at the police station, but when I go to get them I find they are too dead to be any good."

Judge Gray paroled Hirko after stipulating he pay $6 for the ducks. The police had apprehended him with the ducks under his arm.

That the disposal of waste should be regulated by the flowing river rather than by the use of phenol, or soda ash, was maintained by Dr. Bach, who said phenol caused the object lesson.

Fish, however, are attracted to it, affecting them with a form of drunkenness. And they seem to know that it prevents breeding, Bach stated.

Stevenson pointed out the need of vigilance and suitable provision for cleaning the water of [illegible] use and spoke of the [illegible] potential menace of [illegible] streams caused by drought and flood.

The waste heat from coking plants and blast furnaces should be used to operate reheating and other functions in American steel plants, Dr. George V. Slottman, chief fuel engineer of the Carnegie Steel Companies, Ltd., London, told the conference.

He declared:

"In a properly balanced steel plant, the waste heat available from coke ovens and blast furnaces is more than sufficient to meet the total heat requirements."

DENTISTS MARK HALF CENTURY

The golden anniversary meeting of the Odontological Society of Western Pennsylvania opened in the William Penn Hotel today.

Old and obsolete tools of the dental profession were the center of interest as the golden anniversary meeting of the Odontological Society of Western Pennsylvania opened in the William Penn Hotel today. Dentists from nearby Pennsylvania towns and cities displayed cases of instruments used by them, by their fathers and other predecessors, many years ago.

During the afternoon, the meeting centered its attention on a symposium of the business side of dentistry. Dentists and physicians first felt the depression, according to officers of the society, and it is in an effort to instruct them in modern business and collection methods that the symposium has been called.

HOMELESS MEN TO REGISTER

Headquarters of the Central Registration Bureau for Homeless Men of Pittsburgh were opened today in the Conestoga Building, Wood and Water streets.

From this headquarters, sponsored by the Helping Hand Association, Association for the Improvement of the Poor, Salvation Army, Y. M. C. A., Jewish House for Shelter, Lutheran Inner-Mission, Travelers' Aid Society and the city Department of Public Welfare, all homeless men of Pittsburgh hereafter will be assigned to permanent headquarters for the winter.

Men now housed in institutions throughout the city will be re-registered, according to sponsors of the plan, and will be given cards assigning them to one of the institutions interested in the plan.

The men will be "graded" to let them associate with companions from the walks of life to which they formerly were accustomed.

Provision will be made for the "white-collar" man, and the joint committee, headed by H. H. Shepard, of the Association for the Improvement of the Poor, and Attorney H. I. Miller, secretary of the executive committee of the Helping Hand, hopes to make the atmosphere for the men more congenial and to help meet some of the problems encountered by the institutions.

Deposits in U. S. Postal Savings Gain

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18. — (INS.) — Postmaster General Brown announced today that postal savings on deposit in first class postoffices throughout the country increased from $460,000,000 on September 1 to $527,130,150 on October 1, last.

Pure food, pure milk, pure water—in all the things you eat or drink, you want absolute purity.

Purity counts in cigarettes, too

Making cigarettes as pure as they can be made is our business. And it's your business, too—because you smoke them.

All the materials that go into the making of CHESTERFIELD cigarettes are tested again and again by expert research chemists to see that they are absolutely clean and pure. Just like the things you eat or drink.

The paper is pure. Clean. White. The best cigarette paper that money can buy.

There is cleanliness in every step of CHESTERFIELD'S manufacture. Old-fashioned methods have been discarded, and CHESTERFIELDS are made and packed in modern sanitary factories where even the air is washed, and changed every four-and-one-half minutes.

Every day more men and women are changing to CHESTERFIELD. And changing for good! Four big reasons clinch the choice: Milder—Taste Better—Pure—Satisfy.

CANNING DRIVE WILL BENEFIT CHILDREN

Foods Stored by Surplus Group to Be Devoted to Undernourished Pupils

Plans for distribution of part of the 250,000 cans of foodstuffs recently put up by the Surplus for the Needy Committee were discussed late yesterday by Mrs. William A. Thaw, Jr., chairman of the women's division, and Dr. Ben G. Graham, superintendent of schools. Canning of the food was a part of the plan for feeding undernourished children of Pittsburgh this winter.

Pittsburgh school children contributed more than $1,800 in pennies last summer to help in the canning work.

Food distributed by the Surplus for Needy Committee, according to plans agreed upon by Mrs. Thaw and Dr. Graham, will be used as part of the meals supplied to the children at the schools. The Surplus Committee's canned food, consisting mostly of apple, peach and pear butter, is especially high in sugar content and should be beneficial to undernourished children, it was said.

With the final clean-up of the canning project, the Surplus for Needy Committee has turned its attention to further work in the field of relief for the needy of Pittsburgh by the collection of surplus potatoes.

More than a score of acres of potatoes have been spaded on farms in the vicinity of Butler by workers from the Helping Hand and stored at the Surplus warehouse at 247 Water street, from where they will be distributed to needy families by the Welfare Association, Attorney Harry I. Miller, general chairman of the committee, said today.

COUNTY DEFERS DEBT PROBLEM

The next Board of County Commissioners will have to handle the liquidating of the $600,000 mortgage owed by the county as part of the site of the City-County Building, according to a decision of the present board at yesterday's meeting.

County Commissioner C. C. McGovern, at last week's meeting objected to the county's carrying the mortgage and at his colleagues' request County Solicitor M. B. Lesher was asked to make a report.

Lesher replied that the mortgage was executed by County Commissioners I. K. Campbell, J. Denny O'Neil and S. J. Toole in 1913. He said the county could pay the mortgage off in sums not less than $100,000 at various semi-annual interest periods.

McGovern and Commissioner Edward V. Babcock decided to hold the matter over until the new board is organized.

Self-Taught Convict Wins Damage Suit

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(INS.)—Benny Sabbatino, who entered prison virtually illiterate to emerge 12 years later a well-read law student, won a suit against two former members of the state Parole Board here yesterday.

It was largely owing to his studies while in jail that the jury, which heard evidence before Supreme Court Justice William Harman Black, awarded Sabbatino $7,500 damages. He charged that George W. Benham and James L. Long held him in prison three years beyond his proper term.

Fayette Cuts Pay As Economy Move

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Nov. 18.—Four assistant district attorneys, a special prosecutor and two county detectives have accepted a 20 per cent cut in salary; the December term of court will last two weeks instead of four, and daily sessions will be extended an hour and a half, in an effort to cut expenses. Other county employes have been put on half time. These salary reductions, with 30 dismissals, are expected to save the county $7,000 up to the first of the year.

50-CENT WAGE RATE PLEDGED ON BRIDGE

Contractor Renews Promise To Commissioners After Union Protest on Scale

R. H. Cunningham has promised the County Commissioners that his company, contractors on the West End-North Side Bridge, would pay common laborers 50 cents an hour.

Cunningham renewed his pledge at a meeting yesterday of the County Commissioners. Cunningham admitted he is now paying a sliding scale of from 30 to 75 cents an hour for common labor.

County Commissioner C. C. McGovern said:

"That's not in agreement with your word to us. You said you would pay the prevailing rate of wages on the work."

P. J. Dagnall, of Central Labor Union, declared:

"The Cunningham company, more than other company, is tearing down wages below the standard which the American people expect."

Cunningham said:

"We pay 30 men from 60 to 75 cents an hour, about nine men 40 cents an hour and six or seven men, 30 cents an hour."

Cunningham, charged with paying his help on the basis of starvation wages, replied that he paid the same scale as the state. McGovern said:

"Well, I'll admit the state pays a miserably low rate."

Tartan Tackles Durable. * Bush Rejoins Old Pal.
Tough Battle for Pitt. Buying Policies Differ.
Duke's Foe Powerful. Packard's Big Season.

PAIR OF IRON MEN IN CARNEGIE LINE

WHEN THURMAN CROFT and Howard Stauffer were declared ineligible for football at Carnegie Tech this season the unfortunate occurrence paved the way for two other boys to set up a most enviable record for stamina and ability to take heavy punishment without flinching. The defection of Croft and Stauffer left the Tartans with only one experienced tackle, Don Fletcher, and a recruit from the 1930 plebes, Carl Forsman, who had never been tried under fire.

Don Fletcher

Fletcher was shifted from the right to the left side of the line and Forsman was sent in at right tackle, to sink or swim. Coaches Steffen and Waddell could only hope that nothing would happen to either of the players, and their hopes seemed feeble in the face of the terrific schedule that the Skibos had to face. Now only one game remains to be staged, and it is found that Fletcher has played all but 10 minutes in seven contests. And Forsman has been out of action only 21 minutes, most of his idle time being due to an injury he suffered in the Georgia Tech engagement.

NEITHER TACKLE HAS had any relief in the last three games, each of them playing the full 60 minutes against Notre Dame, Pitt and Temple. Fletcher also played the full time against Georgia Tech and W. & J. He had a five-minute rest against Buffalo and one of like duration against Purdue.

Forsman was out of the Georgia Tech contest 10 minutes, had a rest of two minutes against W. & J., five minutes against Purdue and four minutes against Buffalo. The record of the pair is all the more remarkable when it is considered that tackle is the most difficult assignment on a football team.

THIS POSITION REQUIRES more on the defense than any other job in the lineup, and it is also an offensive bulwark. Fletcher last winter went under the knife for a knee operation. Up to that time he had not been considered an especially rugged performer.

Forsman was a pure experiment. Quiet and without flashiness, he has more than made good. Forsman, Fletcher and Sample are considered the real works of a Tartan line that has been a genuine surprise.

THIS NEBRASKA TEAM that invades Pittsburgh on Thanksgiving Day looks good to give the Panthers their hardest battle of the year, excepting, of course, the Notre Dame game. The Cornhuskers have suffered only one defeat, an early-season loss to Northwestern. And in that game Dana X. Bible, Nebraska coach, had six sophomores in the lineup, and his team was demoralized by the first-quarter attack of Northwestern, which ran up 19 points. In the last three quarters Northwestern failed to score, while Sauer, 185-pound back, got loose to tally for the Huskers.

Dana X. Bible

JUDGING FROM THE season's figures Nebraska has been content to win by any score and hasn't tried to roll up big totals. In only one game since the opener in which South Dakota was walloped 44 to 6 has Bible's team made more than 10 points. That was against Oklahoma 13 to 0 when the Huskers were still smarting from the Northwestern licking.

Only Missouri and Kansas State, apart from Northwestern, have been able to cross Nebraska's goal line. The recovery of a Nebraska fumble led to Missouri's touchdown. Kansas State made three points because its great end, Kronkite, kicked a field goal. Incidentally, the holding of Bo McMillan's passing Kansas State team without a touchdown indicates that Nebraska's pass defense is not to be sneezed at.

NORTH DAKOTA UNIVERSITY'S undefeated team, which plays Duquesne at Forbes Field Saturday afternoon, has in Coach C. A. West one of the leading football figures of the Northwest. His elevens have captured the North Central Conference championship the last four seasons and previously during eight years at South Dakota State he piloted his teams to five conference championships.

West, now 41, and a graduate of Coe College, took charge at North Dakota in 1928. He is assisted by Clyde L. (Buck) Starbeck, a graduate of South Dakota State, who was all-Conference center for two years.

IN EIGHT GAMES this fall, North Dakota has won eight victories and held Oregon, conqueror of New York U., to a scoreless tie, piling up 265 points against 36 for its opponents. The outstanding players in the Flickertail lineup are Fred (Nip) Folber, a fine end who is exceptionally good at snaring forward passes such as Quarterback Gene Revell can toss to perfection; Ralph Pierce, sophomore halfback, who is called the best ball carrier North Dakota ever had; Capt. John Burma, plunging fullback; Lloyd Richmond, shifty halfback and all-around star; Joe Bourne, veteran center, and Gordon Dablow, sensational blocking guard of 185 pounds. Folber is North Dakota's candidate for all-America honors, and Joe Bach, the Dukes' assistant coach and premier scout, reports Nip deserves any consideration he may get in that direction.

IT'S AN OLD baseball friendship that takes Donie Bush to Minneapolis to become manager of the American Association club there at the request of Mike Kelly, who relinquishes the managership of the team to become head of the business department.

And the beginning of it had a Pirate angle. Kelly, then a first baseman, was one of the 14 players coming to Pittsburgh from Louisville in the consolidation of 1900. There was no room for him here, so he was released to Indianapolis. At the same time Bush got a job with the Hoosier club as batboy. The two became fast friends and now their old liking for each other has drawn them together again. Bush is to be part owner of the club.

BARNEY DREYFUSS never tells how much he pays for a ballplayer, but that the Pittsburgh club has been as ready as any to invest in new timber is made clear by the government tax report showing $501,833 spent for 35 new Bucs from 1924 to 1927.

Some of the other clubs take the opposite course and pad the prices paid for new players. Only recently it was given out that a certain eastern club had paid $75,000 for a minor league player. It develops that the actual price was $35,000.

Frank Packard

FRANK PACKARD, young Homewood ballplayer, was such a standout for Charlotte in the Piedmont League this year, playing the third base and the outfield, that he has been purchased by Baltimore for an International League tryout next spring. Scouts who watched the local lad at work in 1931 consider him certain to be a success in the big Class AA loop, and rate him one of the best prospects in the minor league field. Packard's hitting, base-running and running-getting for Charlotte this year were sensational. In 136 games he made the unusual batting average of .366 and scored 145 runs, or an average of better than a run to a game. In addition to the runs he scored himself he batted in 123 others. His 185 hits totaled 313 bases, more than 35 per cent of them being for extra bases—21 home runs, 17 triples and 31 doubles. He stood high in stolen bases, too, with 32 to his credit. All around, his work was of a grade to make him one of the outstanding youngsters of the year.

SOUTH HILLS, SCHENLEY TILT HEADS CARD

By JULIUS LEVIN

While no elimination in the field of contenders for the W. P. I. A. L. championship is anticipated by the followers of scholastic football nevertheless games scheduled this week-end offer a varied program of high-class attractions.

Locally the Stadium will be the magnet for supporters of City League elevens. Saturday's game brings together Schenley winner in Section I and South Hills, winner in Section II.

This contest brings together two teams which went through their regular City League schedules undefeated and the followers of the two schools are expecting a thrilling battle from start to finish. The kickoff will be at 2 o'clock.

PLAYERS TO ATTEND

Members of all City League football and soccer teams will be guests of the championship elevens.

Hank Day's Little Presidents, of Washington High, undefeated in six games, will wind up their regular season on Saturday when they oppose Monaca, a team that should not extend the Blue and Black combine. Clairton meets Duquesne at Duquesne and McKees Rocks plays Stowe at Stowe.

Although many teams will rest for their Thanksgiving Day battles, Western Pennsylvania will not lack good attractions. Saturday, East Pittsburgh High, coached by Johnny Coleman and Foxy Miller's Turtle Creek Union eleven, should present an interesting duel at Turtle Creek, while Eddie Leicht's Mt. Lebanon eleven will prove a real test for Art Dahl's Jeannette High School machine. The Armstrong County championship will be at stake in the Ford City-Leechburg contest at Ford City, originally scheduled at Leechburg, but moved to Ford City by mutual consent.

OLD RIVALS CLASH

Greensburg and Wilkinsburg should provide plenty of fireworks at Wilkinsburg, both teams boasting records that show only one defeat. Greensburg bowing to Clairton and Wilkinsburg to Washington, two undefeated elevens.

South Union plays at Connellsville, Bentleyville at East Washington, Rankin at Elizabeth, Crafton at Carnegie, Central Catholic at St. Justin's, Braddock at Scott, Georges at Brownsville, German Township at Uniontown, North Union at California, Fayette City at Belle Vernon, Windridge at Ellsworth-Cokeburg and Ben Avon at Sewickley in other Friday games.

Freeport High School completed its most successful season last week by winning its ninth straight game. It marked the first time in its history that its football team went through the season undefeated.

CROWD TO COME HERE

GREENSBURG, Pa., Nov. 18 — Greensburg High School's football squad will be accompanied by several hundred of rooters when it invades Wilkinsburg Saturday to engage Elmer Carroll's Blue and Red eleven in the annual game.

Mountaineers Drill For State Battle

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 18. (AP)—Coach A. E. (Greasy) Neale of the Mountaineer eleven spent much time yesterday in perfecting the team's defense against aerial attacks, which his scouts have informed him will be the chief offense of the Nittany Lions of Penn State, when they arrive here to do battle Saturday.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Nov. 18 — (AP) — Refreshed by two days' rest, Penn State's varsity went through a lengthy drill yesterday in preparation for its tussle with the West Virginia Mountaineers Saturday. Larry Conover, coach of the freshman, who closed their season last week, took over the line.

HORSEMEN RULED OUT

BALTIMORE, Nov. 18 (AP)—The Maryland Racing Commission has taken drastic action against two horsemen, said to have figured in the doping of the horse Pantheon, which died shortly after the finishing of a race at Pimlico on November 5. V. Zaferis, owner of Tanay and Wildair, and John Tortas, a stableman, were ruled off all tracks under the jurisdiction of the Maryland Commission. P. B. Cobb, trainer of Pantheon, was suspended for the duration of the Maryland season.

OAKEN BUCKET FOUND

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Nov. 18. (AP)—The Old Oaken Bucket, traditional symbol of football rivalry between Indiana and Purdue universities, turned up opportunely yesterday, four days before the annual gridiron battle of the two schools. Dr. William Lowe Bryan, president of Indiana University, notified President Edward C. Elliott, of Purdue, that the bucket had been found by a university employe buried beneath the lumber building from which it disappeared last April.

DALY MADE PILOT

TORONTO, Nov. 18 — (AP) — Thomas D. Daly, former catcher of the Jersey City and Montreal clubs of the International Baseball League and last year assistant manager of the Toronto Maple Leafs, has been named as O'Neill's successor.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THUNDER MOUNTAIN—Motoring into Van Buren County, Mich., from the south on U. S. highway No. 31, the highway swerves around the base of a beautiful promontory extending into Lake Michigan, and at the head of the promontory is Thunder Mountain, one of the scenic attractions of Western Michigan. Thunder Mountain is said to reverberate with a deep rolling thunder, sometimes when there is not a cloud in the sky and the waters of the lake are as smooth as a millpond. The exact scientific explanation for the strange noises of the mountain is not known, but reputable citizens of the vicinity vouch for the fact that it can be heard miles away on a clear day.

BUCS IN FIGHT OVER TAXES

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The contest between the Pittsburgh Baseball Club and the United States Bureau of Internal Revenue, wherein Owner Barney Dreyfuss, of the local team, seeks to recover what he cities as an overassessment of $7,392 in corporation taxes for the year 1928, brings out some interesting sidelights on the Pirates.

P. Waner

Among other things the government report discloses that Dreyfuss, in the period from 1924-27, paid $501,833 for 35 players. Getting down to individual brass tacks the numerals show that in that interim the Pittsburgh magnate paid something like $14,000 per player.

Paul Waner, the costliest star in Pittsburgh baseball history, joined the Pirate fold in that period. Brother Paul cost the local owner approximately $65,000. The purchase tag on Hal Rhyne, who came from the San Francisco Seals in the same deal was something in the neighborhood of $25,000.

Rhyne, by the way, was regarded as one of the standout shortstops of the American League as he shone for Shauno Collins' Boston Red Sox this year. I talked with Shauno at the world series especially about Rhyne. The Red Sox boss was jubilant over the former Pirate's brilliant play. Hal, apparently, was a big star on defense, and he batted hard and timely.

Dukes Reduce Prices for Saturday

With Pitt and Carnegie Tech both idle and only the city championship high school game between Schenley and South Hills at the Stadium to offer opposition, Duquesne University today announced a reduced scale of prices for its game with the North Dakota University Flickertails at Forbes Field Saturday afternoon, which should make the contest doubly attractive to the fans.

Ten thousand seats in the covered grandstand went on sale today at $1 each, with others at $1.50 and $2.

TARTAN TUTOR LOSES ARM

Allen E. Risedorpf, varsity swimming coach at Carnegie Tech, suffered the amputation of his right arm last Friday in Brookline, Mass., where he has been confined to a hospital since being severely injured in automobile accident last July.

Risedorpf was in charge of a boys' summer camp and was accompanying a crowd of lads in a truck when the machine overturned. The Tech coach suffered a fractured skull and an injury to his back and was partially paralyzed. He recovered to some extent from the paralysis, but his right arm became infected, and the amputation became necessary.

Risedorpf will return here after the first of the year and will remain as coach.

BERG SAILS TONIGHT

NEW YORK, Nov. 18 — (AP) — After a year's campaign in this country, Jackie (Kid) Berg, English lightweight, will sail for home tonight. He hasn't even stay over long enough to see how Kid Chocolate fares in his lightweight title bout with Tony Canzoneri here Friday night. Berg twice tried to relieve Canzoneri of his title. Berg will meet Marius Baudry, lightweight champion of France, in a 15-round bout in London next month.

TEAMS CAN'T HELP SCORING

By HEARTLY W. (HUNK) ANDERSON

Notre Dame Coach

This football season, more than any other, has developed a frequent discussion of coaching policy with respect to running up a huge score against various opposition.

We encountered it after the Drake game, and again after the Penn game. Dick Hanley encountered it after the Illinois game.

It is a subject which has various aspects, and not all of them have been discussed in their entirety.

A football coach is frequently at the mercy of those who are known as second guessers. In connection with this big score idea, it seems that whatever a coach does, he is subject to criticism.

Take the case of Dick Hanley in the Northwestern-Illinois game. His team outclassed Illinois, and proved it before the game was fairly well under way. He had a safe lead early, and he removed most of his regulars. His judgment was sound, for he had a game a week later with Minnesota that he regarded as a tough one, and which, in its final analysis, turned out to be just that.

Hanley, I think, acted soundly, but some of the papers lit on him for having contributed no little to making the game with Illinois a drab affair after Pug Rentner and some more of the Northwestern regulars left it.

CRITICISM CERTAIN

I can see that the game, had Rentner and the rest remained in, might have developed into a regular massacre of Illinois. Had that happened, there would have been plenty around to put him on the pan for running up a big score.

Northwestern's material situation is not the same as that which exists at Notre Dame. After Hanley takes out his first string, he hasn't much left that is above ordinary. Consequently, he is not liable to the criticism that some have leveled at our teams, after at least two games this season.

My theory of developing players is based on discovery as soon as possible how they can go under fire. That will account for the presence of so many sophomores in our games this year.

Now it just happens that our second team, in a great many positions, is not much inferior to the regulars. And there have been days when the individuals in the second group have been better than individuals playing the same posts with the regulars.

SUBS AIM TO MAKE SHOWING

In the Penn game, the regulars played not quite one half of the ball game. They went out and met Penn when Penn was fresh. They got the scores that counted when the getting was tougher.

When the second team came in, it played as it always does and as any second team or any group of substitutes always will, with the idea in mind of giving the best it had.

Its best happened to be a lot

NORTH DAKOTA OUT TO KEEP SLATE CLEAN

By JESS CARVER

There is one thing that the Duquesne coaching staff is not bothering to guard against as it prepares the Dukes for their Homecoming Day clash here Saturday with the University of North Dakota Flickertails and that is overconfidence. Therefore the task becomes somewhat simpler, or as simple as preparing a team to stop such a formidable array as the Flickertails possibly can be.

Red Sullivan

North Dakota has been making its own quiet way in the football world, and during the past two seasons has lost just one game and been tied but once in 18 starts. A year ago, Army defeated the Flickers, 33-7, although Capt. Jarrett, North Dakota's clever running halfback, paraded around the Army ends for gain after gain and scored a touchdown, and won himself no small mention in the East.

This year, Doc Spears and his Oregons stopped off on their way East to play New York U. and were held to a scoreless tie. The next week the Oregons beat Meehan's team.

JARRET LOST

North Dakota has lost Jarret by graduation, but big Biff Burma, the husky fullback, still is in action, being none other than captain of the ball club. He is a line busting fool; if you don't believe it, ask some of the babies who played on the Duquesne line against him here last year.

Coach Layden has made a few embellishments in the attack of his team for this game. His two quarterbacks, Bud Devenney and Red Sullivan, are likely to share the signal-barking duties evenly. Sullivan is the better ball carrier of the two, but does not possess the all-round finesse that is Bud's main forte. He is a slippery little cuss, likely to break loose at any time and has a world of drive.

The Dukes are going to have one edge over North Dakota. The Flickertails haven't had the tests the Dukes have this year. Duquesne's contests with West Virginia, Geneva, Georgetown, Catholic U., Western Maryland and Holy Cross were a sight tougher than North Dakota's with Gustavus Adolphus, St. Olaf, DePaul, South Dakota, North Dakota Aggies, St. Thomas and Morningside. Of course, the tie with Oregon indicates that Coach West has built another strong defensive team, and if this fellow Burma is just half as good as he was last year he figures to be as good as any

G. O'DONOVAN ON NEW JOB

Babe O'Donovan

O'Donovan succeeds his college coach, John Lawther, who coached the Freeporters to their first Long Island basketball championship last year. Lawther since has returned to Westminster as head football and basketball coach and athletic director.

When Lawther returned to Westminster, it was announced exclusively in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph that O'Donovah was to succeed him at Freeport. Later, the report was circulated that Babe was to assist at Westminster. The latter rumor was denied, and the Freeport story never confirmed.

At Westminster, O'Donovan was all-Conference and all-district forward, and was ranked in the class with Hyatt, of Pitt; Glenn, of West Virginia, and Rush, of Bethany, and his brother, Roy, of Duquesne.—JESS CARVER.

By CARL W. SHATTO

Charley Reid, coach of the Yellow Jackets, today is in something of a quandary regarding which of his three front lines he should start against the Buffalo Bisons in their International League hockey game at Duquesne Garden tomorrow night.

Although the Arbour-Rodden-Ingram combination gained prestige as the locals tied Syracuse and Cleveland, the fast "ponies" who have been performing as the starting forward trio may appear as spares tomorrow. Coach Reid regards the Bisons' starting lineup as their big scoring threat, and he is contemplating using either the Gregg-Holmes-Halliday or White-Fields-Proudlock combination to hold the visiting starters at bay, and then go out after scores after the forwards have been changed.

The White-Fields-Proudlock combination performed brilliantly in the Cleveland battle, and it may get the starting lineup call.

The 0-0 tie which Buffalo played with Syracuse Saturday night indicates that Frank Nighbor is having the Bisons play the same type of hockey that they played under the leadership of Mickey Roach last season. The same players who, as a squad, won the last two league races again are wearing Bison livery, and local fans know that those boys favor watchful waiting.

The visitors will wait for the breaks, and the Jackets will do their best to see to it that the only breaks the invaders get are bad ones.

CLEVELAND DEFEATED

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Paced by Desse Roche, flashy right winger, the Windsor Bulldogs defeated Cleveland, 4 to 3, here last night. The lineup:

Windsor—4		Cleveland—3
Kerr	G	Wood
Arbour	D	MacFarlane
Ballentyne	D	Frew
Haynes	C	Briden
D. Roche	W	Dorati
E. Roche	W	R. Boughy

Windsor spares—Phillips, Lever, Hinsperger, Huggins, Brown, Braybrook. Cleveland spares—Gracie, Dunning, Williams, Clark, Daley, M. Boughy.
Referees—Hughitt and Traub.
First period: Windsor, Brown, 12:00. Penalty: Dorati.
Second period: Windsor, D. Roche, 4:00. Windsor, D. Roche, 1:10, Cleveland, Briden (Dorati), 5:40. Penalties: Arbour, Ballentyne, 2; R. Boughy, Gracie.
Third period: Cleveland, Williams (Gracie), 5:00; Cleveland, Dorati (R. Boughy), 2:00; Windsor, D. Roche, 4:00. Penalties—Daley, Huggins.

CANADIENS WIN

MONTREAL, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Showing flashes of the brilliant hockey form that made them world champions last spring, the Montreal Canadiens defeated the Maroons, Montreal's other National Hockey League team, 5 to 2, last night in their first clash of the year.

Lionel Conacher, defense star for the Maroons, came to terms just before the start of the game. The Big Train, one of Canada's greatest all-round athletes, immediately donned a uniform.

BRUINS TOP FALCONS

BOSTON, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—The Boston Bruins opened their National League home season before their 15,000 ardent followers here last night with a 1-0 overtime victory over the Detroit Falcons.

AMERICANS BLANKED

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Showing unusual speed for so early in the season, the New York Rangers shut out the Americans, 3 to 0, last night in the first game of the city championship series between New York's two National Hockey League teams.

DANNY DEAN, WINNER OF IC4A CROSS-COUNTRY RACE

University of Pennsylvania star leading the field home in the annual intercollegiate cross-country championship run in Van Cortlandt Park, New York, to set a new record of 29 minutes 23 3-5 seconds for the six miles.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Neither Jackie Fields nor Jimmy Belmont is an Englishman, although it is headlined that they fought a bloody draw in the main bout at Motor Square Garden last Monday night, ... The annual All-America Board of Football all-star teams will be selected at a meeting of the board in New York one week from next Sunday. . . . Pop Warner, Bill Alexander, Tad Jones and Jess Harper (batting for the late Knute Rockne) will do the selecting, and the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph will print the choices exclusively in Pittsburgh. . . . You can't give too much credit to Eddie Hirshberg, captain of Pitt's fine football team, for his hustling spirit and willingness to assume responsibility. . . . He was in an exhausted condition before the game with Army last Saturday and had to rest up in a hospital later, but he'll be back on deck for the Nebraska tussle on Thanksgiving Day, and his regime will go down as one of the most brilliantly successful in Panther history.

Eddie Hirshberg

Another player on the Pitt team who deserves a kind word or two for his efforts and who was a big factor in that one-sided victory over the Army is Jess Quatse, the tackle . . . It is no secret that men closely identified with Pitt's football fortunes consider Jess to have been the most consistently good player on the team all season . . . While we're in the boosting mood (how strange, the fellow mustn't belong on the sports page!), let's have a cheer or two for Joe Dasher, the bestest li'l' 175-pound football press box announcer in the business, who is on the job at the Stadium games . . . New York scribes here for the Army game handed the laurels to Joe, and (ha! ha!) we knew it all along . . . Yes, we're the fellow (to settle that bet) who showed up at the Pitt-Army game without a ribbon in his portable typewriter—and what about it?

Jimmy Belmont and Billy Flanagan, Braddock's fistic prides, accompanied by their manager, Frank Klaus, and A. J. (Sandy) McNish, went to Clearfield County yesterday for a short hunting trip following the tough battles of Belmont and Flanagan with Jackie Fields and Billy Brent at the Garden Monday night. . . . This show, by the way, grossed $5,863. . . . The arena was sold up to the limit of its seating capacity, but not all of the $3 and $2 seats were disposed of, some of the $1 customers being shooed into these choicer locations after they had entered the place and found their section overcrowded. . . . Fields' championship fight with Lou Brouillard, in Boston, December 11, is out, as is also his match with Bucky Lawless at Syracuse next Monday night. . . . He will not be able to box again until his badly cut left eye heals. . . . The Jewish star went over so well with the local fans that he will be brought back as soon as possible, either for a return bout with Belmont or a crack at Ted Yarosz. . . . He may get the Christmas or New Year's afternoon date at the Garden.

Tony Canzoneri, making his ninth start in defense of his lightweight title, will be favored to defeat Kid Chocolate, the junior-lightweight champion, in Madison Square Garden Friday night on the theory that the Keed does not look so hot when crowded by an expert . . . It's supposed to be a secret, but the news has leaked out that the sale of the Newark Bears, of the International League, by Paul Block to Col. Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees, may mean the passing of Al Mamaux, former Pirate, as manager of the Bears, to make room for Bob Shawkey, former Yankee pilot . . . Mamaux was popular with the Newark players and the fans last season, when he almost won the pennant and even pitched a double-header one day to help along the cause . . . Why is it we do not hear a great clamor set up for a post-season game between Princeton and Penn State? . . . A Binghamton (N. Y.) paper publishes a picture of Glenn Spencer, Pirate pitcher, with a 146-pound, six-prong buck which he is alleged to have bagged on a hunting trip in the Adirondack Mountains.

A reader using the obviously phony name of Anne Arbor suggests that, considering the drawing power of the West Point Cadets in conjunction with the Pitt-Army game last Saturday, Pitt have the Albertina Rasch ballet or the Chester Hale girls accompany the Nebraska Cornhuskers here on Thanksgiving Day to warm up the spectators for Bulldog Reider's sleight-of-hand tricks. . . . The bird who tried to kid Coach Jock Sutherland, of Pitt, by tossing at him, as he left the field following the forward-passing victory over the Army, "Well, I see Pitt's basketball team won its first game today!" doesn't know how much his remark pleased the Silent One, who has been accused for so long of not being air-minded. . . . There is something, after all, that is worse than being a washed-up fighter, and K. O. Mars, former star boxer of Cincinnati, is it—he has turned wrestler.—HARRY KECK.

TAYLOR NAMED TRUSTEE AT CONVENTION

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—The Amateur Athletic Union adopted a "basis of friendly and active co-operation with the Young Men's Christian Association" at the closing session of its forty-third annual convention here yesterday.

Hereafter the status of an athlete as established by one of the organizations will be recognized by the other, through the convention's approval of a report submitted by a committee headed by Gustavus Kirby, New York attorney, who is advisor to the I. C. A. A. A.

The committee reported a similar group from the Y. M. C. A. had agreed in advance to the "basis of co-operation," and that its organization intends to provide registration of athletes similar to that of the A. A. U.

MEET IN NEW YORK NEXT

One exception to Y. M. C. A. rules was made in framing the accord. The A. A. U. declined to waive its rule which disqualifies for amateur competition officials who accept money for their services.

New York was selected over Chicago as the meeting place for the 1932 convention.

The track and field committee reported the final tryouts at Stanford University for the United States Olympic team would be designated as the 1932 senior championships and recommended that the junior championships be held with the senior.

The Women's National A. A. U. basketball tournament was awarded to the Southern Association, to be held the last full week of March at Dallas, Tex.

BRUNDAGE RE-ELECTED

Sanctioned A. A. U. boxing competition was limited to three rounds, an alteration of rules to permit rounds of less than three minutes, the adoption of the I-type hurdle to replace the inverted T-device, and elimination of deciding extra competition in tied events.

Under the new rules, the judges and referee are required to give a decision in boxing matches at the conclusion of the third round, without the former privilege of ordering a fourth.

Avery Brundage, Chicago, was re-elected unanimously to his fourth term as president of the A. A. U. Daniel J. Ferris, New York, was chosen to his fifth term as secretary-treasurer. Ferris has been connected with the A. U. for 25 years.

TAYLOR IS TRUSTEE

Trustees elected to handle the A. A. U. surplus funds are Gustavus T. Kirby, New York; John T. Taylor, Pittsburgh, and Charles Brennan, Detroit. The James E. Sullivan Memorial Committee named is composed of Judge J. T. Mahone, and Fred Ruben, both of New York, and Alfred J. Lill, Boston.

All other nominees of the caucus were elected without opposition. They included:

Geneva Out to Cop Crowns Saturday

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Nov. 18.—Geneva College will make a bid for retention of two football titles when the season finale is played this Saturday at Reeves Stadium with the Westminster Titans furnishing the opposition. At present the Golden Tornado leads the way in the fight for the Tristate Conference and Tristate Class B honors and a win over Westminster is all that is necessary to cling to the titles won in 1930 to mark the debut of Harpster and Lovewell as coaches here.

An added interest from a Beaver Valley standpoint is the fact that a large part of the proceeds will be turned over to charity, the funds going to the Beaver Falls welfare fund.

GEORGE GODFREY BEATEN

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 18.—(INS.)—Jack Gross, of Salem, N. J., held the decision today over George Godfrey, Negro pugilist, after a 10-round fight here last night.

Gross, tipping the scales at 203 pounds, had the lead most of the time. Godfrey, who weighed 245, was obviously over-fat and out of condition. He was slow and relied upon his experience to prevent being even more thoroughly beaten. He was a shell of the one-time quick black terror of the ring.

The Coach's Viewpoint

By Howard Harpster

Geneva College Coach and Former All-America Star at Carnegie Tech.

The eyes of the football world will be on South Bend, Saturday, when the seemingly invincible Notre Dame team meets Howard Jones' Southern California eleven. . . . These two squads have met for the last five years, and the games never have failed to draw at least 80,000 spectators. . . . The record crowd was 120,000, at Soldier Field, Chicago, in 1929. . . . Of the five games played, Notre Dame has won four, while Southern California has come out on the long end of the score only once.

Howard Harpster

The series has been much closer than four Notre Dame victories indicate, because three of the games were won by the close margin of a single point. . . . The Irish won in 1926, 13 to 12; 1927, 7 to 6; 1929, 13 to 12, and 1930, 27 to 0. . . . The Westerners, only victory was in 1928, by a 27-14 score.

It is interesting to note that in the four games won by Notre Dame Southern California scored five touchdowns and failed to kick the extra point after each of the scores. . . . Its inability to make good on the try-for-point actually lost each of the first three games.

That the game Saturday will be the best of the day, if not of the entire season, seems a foregone conclusion, for both teams are at their strongest this year . . . The Irish, with the almost unbelievable record of 25 victories and a scoreless tie in their last 26 starts, will go into the game primed to the limit in an attempt to continue this great winning streak, while Southern California will have a double incentive to win, first to avenge the one-sided lacing suffered at the hands of the Irish last year, and, second, to be the first team to defeat a Notre Dame eleven since the last game of the 1928 season . . . Incidentally, it was Southern California that last took the measure of the South Benders.

At the present time, expert opinion seems to be divided as to the likely winner . . . This writer wouldn't be surprised to see Southern California step in where the others have failed and put an end to the long winning streak of the Fighting Irish, and, on the other hand, it probably would be no surprise to see the Irish win . . . Regardless of which team wins, one thing is certain, and that is that if the California boys win it will be real news, while, if the Irish come out on top, it will be just another Notre Dame victory.

PRESIDENTS LOSE STAR

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 18.—Carl Johnson, Wash-Jeff regular end, was reported resting comfortably today following an emergency operation for appendicitis. The Greensburg athlete was thought lost to the team when he sustained a dislocated elbow in the Bucknell game, but there was hope he would be available for the West Virginia game, November 28.

However, his services now are lost for the remainder of the season and possibly the early part of the Presidents' basketball campaign.

Coach Amos announced he would start his second team against Western Reserve at Cleveland, Saturday. Miko and Butler will be at the ends; Dalrymple and Kelly, tackles; Massock and Heck, guards; Furjanic, center; Shaffer, quarterback; Zagray and Kaiser, halfbacks, and Cook, fullback.

IRISH GAME ON KDKA

Radio Broadcasting Station KDKA will put the Notre Dame-Southern California football game at South Bend, Saturday afternoon, on the air, beginning at 2:15 o'clock. Graham McNamee will be at the microphone. Short Wave Station WANX also will transmit the account of the game, for the benefit of listeners in California.

MAGUIRE SENT TO MINORS

BOSTON, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—The Boston Braves management has announced the transfer of Second Baseman Freddie Maguire's contract to the Louisville club, of the American Association, president Emil Fuchs explained that a decision to obtain more batting strength forced the move.

MAY SAVE SIGHT

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Surgeons believed there was a chance to save the sight of the right eye of Clyde L. Sukeforth, 29, Cincinnati Reds' first-string catcher, accidentally shot Monday while hunting rabbits near here.

GALENTO IN LINE TO BOX PANKA AT GARDEN

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

George Panka, Homestead's fighting bricklayer, who hasn't been laying bricks or fighting much lately, but has kept plugging away in the gymnasium, will be on the card at Motor Square Garden, after all, next Monday night, against the best heavyweight opponent that can be secured for him. Tony Galento, roly-poly Orange (N. J.) citizen, is in line for the match right now.

George Panka

Panka originally was paired with Jimmy Braddock, of Jersey City, but Braddock was tossed out of a Minneapolis ring last week, along with Maxie Rosenbloom, the light-heavyweight champion, because of a miserable exhibition, with neither in fighting condition, and was barred here, and the local club gave up the Panka end, too, when it experienced difficulty lining up a foe for him. It began to work on a Frankie Bolarski bout, but found it was even harder to lure anyone worth while into the ring with the rugged Erie southpaw, so the Panka fight is on the fire again.

Galento is no part of an easy proposition. His record is studded with knockout victories, his victims including Ted Sandwina, Armando De Carlos, Pietro Corri, Mike Sankovitch, K. O. Christner, George LaRocco, Abie Bain, Frankie Wine, Frank Montagna and K. O. Kitts, among others. He fought Johnny Risko a tough semi-final after the Max Schmeling-Young Stribling bout in Cleveland last July 4.

Between Rounds

It will be at least a month before there will be another professional boxing show in McKeesport. The arena will be closed to boxing for a week and next and the following week, on December 2 and 3, it will be the scene of the annual Western Pennsylvania amateur championship tournament, under the auspices of the McKeesport A. C., with honors in all classes but the light-heavyweight. Gold watches and boxing statues will be awarded the winners and runners-up and a loving cup will be offered as a team prize. Promoter Jim McGirr is receiving entries.

William Buggy, Jr., known as Terry McGovern, is back in Chambersville, Pa., from Gary, Ind., and has a string of boxers he would like to show here. They include K. O. Fraks, Negro heavyweight; Sammy Herrera, Mexican middleweight, and Frank Yukon, a lightweight.

An 11 p. m. deadline on amateur boxing shows will go into effect in New York with the staging of the Five Star bouts in Madison Square Garden next Monday and Wednesday nights. The idea is to prevent mauling the young boxers with several hours between their first and second bouts of an evening, and it's a good one.

A Pittsburgh-Cleveland inter-city amateur boxing show will be staged at the Keystone A. C., Thanksgiving night.

Frank Novak, North Side heavyweight, has had his adenoids removed to correct his breathing, and will be ready to box again about the middle of next month.

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Jack Dempsey vs. Charley Belanger and Jack Kogut, 2 rounds each, exhibitions, and Earl Martin vs. Herby Devers, King Tut vs. Frankie Burns and Billy Petrolle vs. Pete Reyna, 4 rounds each, benefit for unemployed, Kansas City.
Hasting Dozier vs. Tony Portillo, 6 rounds, Seattle.
Babe Marino vs. Joey Kaufman, 10 rounds, San Francisco.
Fatty Perroni vs. Rush Heter, 10 rounds, Ashtabula, O.

SHUSTER EXHIBITS HERE

Julius B. Shuster, of Jeannette, Pa., whose feats of juggling in one hand 21 tennis balls, 20 pocket billiard balls or 20 baseballs won him recognition in Robert L. Ripley's Believe It Or Not cartoons, will give an exhibition of his art at Fred C. Haury's recreation rooms, 136 Sixth street, at 8 o'clock, Friday night.

KELLEY BURIED

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Funeral services were held here yesterday for William C. Kelley, former quarterback for the Brooklyn Club of the National Professional Football League, who died Saturday night following an attack of acute indigestion.

MOVE TO OUST HICKEY TO BE DECIDED TODAY

CHICAGO, Nov. 118.—(AP.)—The move to oust Thomas Jefferson Hickey as president of the American Association of Professional Baseball Clubs collided with the stone wall of a deadlock at the annual meeting of club owners yesterday.

With the veteran leader of the eight-team circuit waiting outside the conference room, the club owners debated the proposal for one hour, and were forced to defer the fight until today's session.

It is understood Hickey received the solid support of four club owners, while as many were opposed to him. Those familiar with American Association procedure predicted Hickey would be give a one-year contract.

The possibility that George Belden, head of the Minneapolis club, would succeed Hickey, in case the latter was ousted, increased when it was learned from a reliable source that the Minneapolis team would undergo a reorganization.

It was decided to stop the practice of releasing players on option within the league and to propose limitation of the Little World Series from nine to seven games.

RECENT GAINS OF FINANCIAL CHARACTER

Betterment Not Reflected In Larger Trade Volume, But Helps Confidence

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Nov. 18 — Recent betterment — partly psychological — has been largely financial in character and has not yet been reflected in a larger physical volume of trade.

In recent sessions the stock market, after having made record for nearly six weeks retraced its steps somewhat as traders recognized that several business signs evidence of more calmness in the banking system.

TO AID TRADE

Such fortuitous improvement in the monetary situation as has taken place should not be minimized. Any lasting improvement in monetary affairs will be followed by heightened confidence, the business outlook and by at least larged physical volume of trade.

In emphasizing the effect of monetary abnormalities on the business situation, the sages of the Harvard Economic Society point out:

"We are now in the second period of a dual depression marked by a monetary disturbance. The precedents for such depressions are too few to afford a sure guide for forecast but it is clear that the end of such a depression must await the removal of the specific cause which cut short the incipient revival and gave the depression its dual character. In the present instance the cause is clearly the world financial disturbance."

CONFIDENCE NEEDED

Numerous capable economists believe that the business cycle has already advanced to a phase where the greatest need is the restoration of confidence. Unquestionably the public is not behaving normally. This is reflected not only in hoarded currency but also in reduced turnover of bank deposits. Carl Byoir, war time associate of George Creel, suggests the nation's advertising and publishing forces form a war time organization to kill the fear psychology and to bring about normal business habits and normal spending.

Dean Carl W. Ackerman, of Columbia University, suggests that whole industries use co-operative advertising to explain to the public why it will be beneficial to behave normally.

Mere Pollyana pap cannot meet the problems of a depression. What is needed now is some year-saying analysis which will make clear to the public that we have the raw ingredients for prosperity and that we need the courage and the will to make the best possible use of them.

Marketers Oppose New Ethyl Gas

NEW YORK, Nov. 18—Notice by Ethyl Gasoline Corporation that a new ethyl compound to be used with regular grade gasoline would be made available next March has been suspended pending outcome of a referendum of opinions of gasoline marketing companies.

Opposition to the plan has arisen. Many companies feel that it would tend to force them to ethylize every gallon of gasoline rather than the premium grades as at present.

Commercial Coal Stocks Decrease

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (INS.)—Commercial stocks of bituminous coal used largely for industrial purposes amounted to 34,500,000 tons October 1, the Bureau of Mines announced today. This was an increase of 4,400,000 tons in three months, but a decline of 1,400,000 tons in a year.

The weekly rate of consumption of coal in the United States in the third quarter of the year amounted to 6,046,000 as compared with 6,273,000 tons in the preceding quarter.

Wobbly Commodity Markets And Negative Trade News Give Heavy Tone to List

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP.) — Wobbly commodity markets and the appearance of some negative mid-week business statistics and news contributed to a heavy tone in stocks today. Narrow gains of the previous session were more than lost during the morning, and by afternoon the market was soggy, all groups participating in a slow decline. Bonds were dull and spotty.

News that the Belgian copper producers had sailed, apparently without reaching an agreement on output curtailment, was disappointing. Copper stocks weakened sharply.

American Smelting was particularly soft, losing about 4 points, while losses in others of the same category ranged from 1 to 2. In the rails Union Pacific and Delaware and Hudson worked into new low ground on declines of 3 and 2, respectively. New York Central, however, was fairly steady.

American Telephone sagged in the neighborhood of 3 points and failed to find much stimulant in the declaration of the regular dividend, a decision that had been fully expected. Case and Harvester were down 2 or so in sympathy with wheat. United States Steel, Allied Chemical, American Tobacco B, Coca Cola and American Can sagged a couple of points. Westinghouse and Western Union reached new minimums.

Weekly surveys of the steel industry showed that the rise in operating ratios had been halted, although production was holding its own. It is obvious that the manufacturers do not intend to allow operations to get out of step with demand, and if the inquiry is rather broad it is also for light volumes. Building construction and railroads are scant contributors to current tonnage; also, the automobile industry has not bought as well as had been expected.

Iron Age placed the current ratio at 31 per cent, unchanged from a week ago, but pointed out that if the present activity is maintained November will show, on a daily basis, a rise of full 10 per cent over October. The same review said steel makers were beginning to appraise first quarter prospects "somewhat more hopefully."

A point of interest in the freight loading statement for the week ending November 7 was that grain shipments had not been stimulated by the recovery which wheat and corn were making during that period. Coke was the only commodity to show a shipping increase.

Electric power output last week was 5.2 per cent under a year ago.

Call funds were again available unofficially at 2 per cent.

CAR LOADINGS DROP 23,334

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Loading of revenue freight for the week ended November 7 totaled 717,029 cars, the American Railway Association announces. Due to the usual seasonal decline in freight loadings. This was a reduction of 23,334 cars below the preceding week. It also was 164,488 cars below the corresponding week last year, and 331,939 cars under the same week two years ago.

Power Production Declines for Week

NEW YORK, Nov. 18—The electric output for the week ended November 14, totaled 1,623,151,000 k. w. h., against 1,712,727,000 k. w. h. in the same week in 1930, a decrease of 5.2 per cent. In the preceding week, production was off 5.8 per cent, according to the National Electric Light Association.

Auction Big Block Of National City

Securities Make Ideal Christmas Gifts

By B. C. FORBES

THIS CHRISTMAS affords a more ideal occasion than ever before for those financially able to give securities as Christmas presents. Almost every wealthy and well-to-do family has friends who might have questioned the propriety of accepting such gifts two years ago, but who would now appreciate them more than the ordinary run of Christmas presents.

Mr. Forbes

Moreover, it is hardly conceivable that any Christmas in the near future will find stocks and bonds selling at as attractive low quotations as now. There are instances where securities can be given where an outstanding monetary gift might hurt the recipient's self-respect.

Those receiving securities can either turn them into cash or hold on to them, in which latter case their value is certain to increase. Dividend- and interest-bearing bonds and dividend-paying stocks when retained bring additional "gifts" every quarter or half-year, a very pleasant reminder of the giver.

The real Christmas spirit can accompany a gift of securities just as those gifts as it can accompany any other form of gift. Often Christmas gifts are considered unsuitable by the recipient. Anyone receiving stocks or bonds can procure whatever he or she may most desire.

PRESIDENT A. E. Dickinson, Indiana Limestone Company, writes:

"Your column headed 'Let's Have a Good Cry and Have It Over,' covers the situation very nicely. The trouble with our country today is that we do not have the leaders we had years ago, like J. P. Morgan, Jim Hill, P. D. Armour, Sr., Marshall Field and others of that type. The present generation have had it pretty easy, and it seems a lot of people have been on a big drunk and are just finally getting over it.

"There does not seem to be any good 'nerve' among business men and bankers, and there is a great lack of statesmanship. The old-timers were used to knocks and hard fights and had plenty of nerve to go through with them."

PRESIDENT BIECHLER of Frigidaire having been born in Miamisburg, O., was particularly tickled when the fire chief of that village, B. H. Zimmerman, told him how the purchase of one of Biechler's refrigerators has enabled him to save money.

President Biechler is one chief executive who doesn't consider it beneath his dignity to take active part in selling. He particularly liked to have the fire chief tell him the following, because Frigidaire emphasizes thrift as one of its selling points. The chief said:

"There are five growing children in our family, and we use six gallons of milk a week. For years I bought it direct from the milkman at 10 cents a quart. The cream we used cost us 80 cents a quart.

"Now that we have an electric refrigerator, I drive out into the country and buy milk, three gallons at a time, direct from a farmer for five cents a quart. Cream purchased at the same time costs 35 cents a quart. On milk and cream for the family we now save $8.40 a month."

THIS COUNTRY has now the biggest air transport company in the world, in point of mileage flown, the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce claims. It is United Air Lines, a subsidiary of United Aircraft and Transport Corporation, whose constituent companies are Boeing, National and Pacific Air Transport and Varney Air Lines. United Air Lines now fly at the rate of 12,000,000 miles a year. Its nearest mileage rival is the German Lufthansen.

President P. G. Johnson of United Air Lines tells me that, despite the fact that 75 per cent of air mail and travel is business mail and business travel, his company has enjoyed a substantial increase in business during the last quarter on its transcontinental Middle West, intermountain and Pacific Coast routes.

Its ships flew 3,000,000 miles, carried approximately 18,000 revenue passengers and 618 tons of mail.

The company is going right ahead with a substantial building program, investing several hundred thousand dollars in depots, hangars and servicing plants in many of the 41 cities it serves in 18 states. It is commissioning faster planes.

The gain in business is attributed in no small measure to an aggressive newspaper and magazine advertising campaign. It gets business by going after it.

FROM NOW ON newspaper readers can expect to find an increasing number of encouraging news items. The good is at last beginning to outweigh bad news.

Gain in Columbia Gas Net Profit Expected

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

IMPROVEMENT IS EXPECTED in the earnings of the Columbia Gas and Electric Corporation in the final quarter of this year. The third quarter is invariably a dull period for the gas business except in times of heavy industrial activity. In the fourth quarter, however, domestic demand invariably increases. Exceptionally warm weather has tended to make the seasonal gain lighter than usual, but both gross and net profit should be better than in the third quarter.

Columbia has been engaged in a major expansion program during the past two years. Several of its pipe line projects have been completed recently and these will be a factor in future earnings.

The line from gas fields in Kentucky, which will extend through West Virginia, Virginia and Maryland to Eastern Pennsylvania, is ready for operations. This is only one portion of the new construction which will contribute to Columbia's earnings in the future. Columbia now has the largest natural gas system in the world.

Dividend Covered

NET INCOME IN THE 12 MONTHS ended September 30 amounted to $23,591,672 after depreciation, depletion, taxes, interest and preferred dividends of subsidiaries. This was equivalent to $1.52 a share on 11,684,220 shares of common stock. In the preceding 12 months net income was $28,667,172, or $1.95 a share.

The annual dividend rate was reduced from $2 to $1.50 with the payment made November 15. The net income for the last 12-month period reported was sufficient to cover the reduced dividend rate.

Net income for the third quarter was not representative since it covered a period of seasonal dullness. The company earned $1,957,503, which was equivalent to 4 cents a share. This compared with $2,216,534, or 6 cents a share a year ago.

Expenses Reduced

COLUMBIA HAS MATERIALLY CUT its expenses. Economies amount to about $7,000,000 a year. P. G. Gossler, president, recently stated that economies have not been fully reflected in the earnings statements although they have partially offset reductions in gross income.

The company is in the peculiar position of having started on a period of major expansion at a time when the decline in general business was just starting. During the past two years Columbia has been pouring vast amounts of money into new physical properties. Construction was on such a large scale that it has only been during the past summer that some of these projects have been completed.

New Developments Slow

IN THE MEANTIME, however, the company has been burdened with increased interest charges and the expense of developing new territories while sales to older industrial customers have been declining and conditions have not been favorable for securing new outlets for the increased supply of gas.

When business recovers, however, Columbia may be expected to start getting the fruits of the millions which have been plowed into physical properties. Columbia has laid the foundation for an expansion of future profits which will dwarf its past record of growth.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 18. Bonds moved back and forth irregularly today as trading continued of moderate proportions.

Foreign obligations experienced a more active turnover than other groups. Price changes among them were generally narrow and irregular.

The action of foreign loans was similar to that of domestic corporate bonds except that the latter were less active than the former.

STOCK EXCHANGE TOPICS

Among those who have made an exhaustive survey of general conditions and realize the many drawbacks which loom up in front of it, the share market is looked upon as doing remarkably well. Speculative sentiment for one thing seldom thrives on congressional activities, and the incoming session of the National Legislature is now but little more than a fortnight away. The railroad picture is hardly such as would make it conducive to bullishness, and certainly the copper situation holds little promise for the immediate future. Heavy government financing looms ahead, and looking abroad, the German financial situation, the Far East disturbance, and the British tariff position are factors to be considered.

The steel industry is not counting on much in the way of improvement through the balance of this year. Rather as the weekly surveys reveal the disposition in principal producing circles is one of expectancy with regard to the first quarter of the new year. Some fairly definite projects which would consume considerable steel and which had been expected to get under way sooner, have been deferred until January. Other books should in the early part of the year begin to reflect some measure of railroad equipment buying, normal expansion in tin-plate demand, and perhaps most important in prevailing circumstances, needs of the motor car makers preparatory to the approach of that industry's best season.

Breaking up of the copper conferences, with Belgian representatives having departed for home last night, caused heavy selling of the metal shares. Sharp recessions in that group were a factor in dampening sentiment and inducing renewal of scattered liquidation in many directions. Selling of the mining stocks was perhaps accelerated a bit by the further weakness in silver, inasmuch as the sharp rise in the white metal had been the basis for much of the recent activity. Principal declines occurred in stocks of companies which had attracted a speculative following by reason of their interest in silver, such as American Smelters, Cerro de Pasco, Kennecott and U. S. Smelting.

While the domestic copper market was a little disturbed by the evident winding up of the producers' conference without agreement, the price situation was not greatly disturbed immediately. It should be borne in mind, however, that the actual copper market had not been visibly affected so far as prices were concerned by the efforts of producers to get together on a curtailment schedule. In London, however, where metal prices had been creeping forward gradually for more than two weeks to show a rise of about £2 12s on the ton, acute weakness developed carrying prices off abruptly to eradicate the improvment that had been shown.

Union Pacific stock broke through previous resistance levels for the major decline, dropping to the lowest price touched since 1903. One of the factors in the pressure on Union Pacific is the uncertainty surrounding the present $4 dividend rate on New York Central, of which Union owns 267,152 shares.

Fire Insurance Merger Ratified

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Stockholders of New York Fire Insurance Company and Bronx Fire Insurance Company have approved the merging of the two companies, subject to approval of the state superintendent of insurance. The consolidated company will operate under the name of New York Fire Insurance Company and will continue under the underwriting management of Corroon & Reynolds, Inc.

ROONEYS PLAY E. LIVERPOOL SUNDAY

By TOM BIRKS

The James P. Rooney eleven is scheduled to play at East Liverpool in its final game of the West Penn Football Conference at Newell, W. Va., next Sunday.

The Big Green machine from the North Side seldom has shown its wares in the Ohio Valley.

East Liverpool, Toronto and Steubenville for many years were hotbeds of independent football, and a fine crowd is anticipated.

Manager Art Rooney has promised to start his all-Pitt backfield. Jimmy Rooney will play at quarterback with Josh Williams and Bucky Wagner at the halfback posts, and Franklin Hood at fullback.

Honey Guarino, another Pitt star, will be at end, while at the tackles, Schnupp and Karcis, former Tech aces, will do their stuff. Kemp and Skender, two of the greatest linemen developed under Layden at Duquesne, will be playing with Mose Lance at center.

Local grid fans will go to West View Park, there to watch the Dan Burns team close its conference schedule opposed to West View. Paul Muzzio, manager of the Parkers, has been buffeted around all season, yet the fans are still talking about the fine battle of the Parkers against the Rooneys. Muzzio feels his season will be a success if he can beat Burns and then take Olympics the following week.

Mehler, the big fullback fighting for a berth on the all-star team, and Auchter think West View can take Burns. On the showing of the clubs against the Rooneys, it appears to be an even break.

GREEN, YALE MAY CLASH

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Official sentiment is divided as to the merit of suggestions that Yale and Dartmouth play off their spectacular 33-33 tie as a part of the round-robin charity football series in the Yale Bowl, Saturday, December 5. Brown and Holy Cross also will participate in the round robin.

The proposal that Yale and Dartmouth be rematched was advanced at a luncheon given by Owen D. Young, chairman of the committee on mobilization of relief resources.

John M. Cates, director of athletics at Yale, failed to approve the plan. Sentiment among the Dartmouth student body seemed to favor the idea, but no official comment was forthcoming.

E. K. Hall, chairman of the football rules committee and spokesman for Dartmouth, said he was not prepared to comment on the suggestion.

Floor Candidates Out at Allegheny

MEADVILLE, Pa., Nov. 18.—Freshman candidates for varsity basketball were called out for the first time at Allegheny College here. A group of about 30 reported and underwent an intensive two-hour drill in fundamentals. The regular varsity candidates will be called out on Monday by Coach Baker. This is the last year that freshmen will be permitted to compete on regular varsity teams, inasmuch as next year the new ruling of the faculty athletic commission goes into effect. The freshmen, however, will have their own team and play about a 12-game schedule next year.

The varsity schedule for 1931-32 follows:

January 1, Youngstown, away; January 5, Penn College, away; January 6, Geneva, at home; January 12, Grove City, at home; January 16, Westminster, at home; January 20, Bethany, at home; January 23, Alfred, away; February 1, Ithaca, away; February 2, Cortland, away; February 3, Hobart, away; February 6, Washington & Jefferson, at home; February 9, Bethany, away; February 13, pending, at home; February 16, Thiel, away; February 18, Geneva, away; February 20, Carnegie Tech, away; February 25, Westminster, at home; March 1, Grove City, away; March 4, Penn College, at home; March 8, Waynesburg, at home.

Local Golf Pros To Invade South

With the local golf season about concluded, many of the Pittsburgh professionals are preparing for their annual invasion of the South to spend the winter.

Florida already has attracted Pete O'Hara, Westmoreland pro. Others planning to spend the winter in Florida are Vincent Eldred, Highland; Dale Zimmerman, Chartiers; Fred Brand, Allegheny; James O'Donnell, Edgewood; Willie McKay, Longue Vue, and Charley Manning, Shannopin.

Walter Loeffler, South Hills, and Emil Loeffler, Oakmont, will visit Pinehurst, N. C.

Fight Fans Clamor To Get Money Back

DENVER, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—The fight at the boxing stadium here last night was confined to the clamor of crowd demanding its money back. Police were called to preserve order. A scheduled bout between Pat McCarthy, of Boston, and George Manley, of Denver, light-heavyweights, had been called off by promoters, who said the Boston fighter arrived here too late to condition himself properly.

GLENGESIA RUNS THIRD

LLANGOLLEN ESTATE, Uppervale Va., Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Outgaming and outrunning his field after being held back for half the distance, Shelby T. Hardison's Word of Honor yesterday won the Llangollen Open Steeplechase. Word of Honor, ridden by Tom Hyde, is the Prince of Wales Cup in Lexington, Ky., last week. Ted Cain, who brought the colors of William Almy, Jr., in second, R. K. Mellon's Glengesia, the favorite, got up in time to make the show place.

Pop Overhears Kidnap Talk, Shows Speed

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Nov. 18.—(INS.)—Of course they were only fooling, but Glenn S. (Pop) Warner, Stanford football coach, walked a little faster just the same.

Warner told about it today, this:

"I heard the row just before dawn, when California students were trying to set off prematurely our big game bonfire, and walked over to look on.

"A bunch of California boys passed me on a dark street, and one said, 'There's Pop Warner. Let's kidnap him.'

"While they argued among themselves, I walked on—might have hurried a little."

LOCALS IN SHAPE

The two weeks of rest has done wonders to restore the locals to the best of physical condition.

Carnegie Tech will resume practice this afternoon and begin final preparation for season finale with New York U. in Gotham next week. They sort of figured on drilling yesterday, but the Skibos were pretty well used up in the Temple struggle and needed the additional day of rest.

Pitt staged a light workout yesterday and will continue to hold comparatively easy ones for the remainder of the week. Sutherland's big problem now is to keep the team "up" for the Nebraska game. The Cornhuskers, always tough to beat, have lost just one game so far, have the Missouri Valley Conference title in their grasp and would like nothing better than to wind up by taking the Panthers.

The Tipoff

Sing Sing is considering putting into effect the 24-year eligibility rule, now that it has gone in for football in a big way. You're a freshman there for the first 10. If you get less fresh, though, it's the same as being booted off the squad at other schools for scholastic deficiencies.

After the game last Sunday with the Naval Militia, a reporter asked Coach Hugo of the Sing Sing team whether or not he had any help contract off the field.

"Well, regard the coach, "it's going to run for about 10 years."

If you think a game between Sing Sing on the inside (with the pen at Atlanta or Leavenworth wouldn't jerk up in for a rousing game) and another think or two (ouch), one thing Sing Sing won't be bothered with will be trouble with the alumni.

Hugo Keenan and Johnny Bond are having a lot of fun riding the great Carl (Sparc) Gordon. Kaye, who doesn't know whether the ball is blown up or stuffed, wagered his do-re-mi on the Sing Sing 180. Now he's being jockeyed to death.

Trade Rumor Links Cubs, Robins, Reds

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(INS.)—Members of the hot stove league got off to a flying start on the winter season today by circulating reports of a three-club deal involving the Brooklyn Robins, Cincinnati Reds and Chicago Cubs.

Gossips aver that Lefty O'Doul, Brooklyn outfielder, will go to Chicago; Dazzy Vance, Brooklyn mound ace, will be sent to Cincinnati; Outfielder Taylor Douthit, of the Reds, and a Cincinnati pitcher will come to Brooklyn, and that Outfielder Hack Wilson will be shipped by the Cubs to Cincinnati.

BUSH TO PILOT MINNEAPOLIS CLUB

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—It has been learned from a reliable source that Mike Kelley would replace George Belden as general manager of the Minneapolis club of the American Association, and that Donie Bush, former manager of the Chicago White Sox, would succeed Kelley as playing manager of the Millers. Bush also managed the Pittsburgh Pirates.

better than Penn had at that stage of the ball game. The scores came to the second team as rapidly as they had to the regulars.

With a safe lead established, we had the chance to see how some of the boys below the first and second string would go in actual play. Those boys, given the chance to demonstrate what they had, could hardly be expected to soldier their way through the game. They played just as hard football as if the result of the game depended on their efforts.

I fail to see where any blame should be placed on a team for making touchdowns, if its members play hard, clean football.

And a team that withdraws its regulars before the first half is completed and most of its second team before the second half is completed, cannot be accused rightfully of deliberately setting out to humiliate an opposing team.

Catholic Lyceum Loop Organized

The Catholic Lyceum League was organized last night with eight teams on the roster, an increase of two members over last year's circuit.

Included among the members are St. Anne's, of Hazelwood; St. Josephat's, Mission street; St. Joseph's, Mt. Oliver; St. Henry's, Arlington avenue; St. John's, South Side; St. Wendelin's, Brentwood; Epiphany, of the Hill district, and St. Michael's, Plus street.

Dr. L. G. Beinhauer, organizer of the league, will continue as president.

Seven teams have been admitted to the West Penn League. They are the Morrys, Duquesne Lafayettes, Goose Goslins, the W. U. Hoyles, Ray Schneiders, Knickerbockers and Penn Five. The Jeannette Felders were rejected because of the traveling involved.

Fight Results

At Fort Wayne, Ind., Frankie Jarr defeated Marty Lund, 10 rounds.

At Portland, Ore., Young Nationalista and Paddy Sullivan drew, 6 rounds.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Friday, at the lunch hour, Mary drew $100 from her savings account. All afternoon she was in a state of rippling excitement. Before dinner she went, as she had promised, to the Metropolis Hotel and left the money with the clerk for Landers. Her nervousness persisted—although she knew she would win, because Landers had said so. He had promised to telephone her before midnight and when the call came she was waiting downstairs in the hall, at the phone. His voice was at once buoyant and reassuring.

"Wait right there and I'll be up in a taxi within 15 minutes with your money. You can win yourself a couple of bets, girl."

Excitement swept through her, thrilling and exhilarating. In two months she would be on her way to Cuba to see Steve. She was sure her employer would give her the time off. If he didn't—well, it wouldn't matter. There were a million jobs in New York, but there was only one Steve in Cuba.

Presently Landers came and his keen eyes met her with a smile, as if the sight of her affected him like a strong drink. A neat little roll of $100 bills was put into her hands. It was a miracle of money, but very the money itself was nothing. Buck Landers had pulled it out of the clear air. His good will was sending her to Cuba and to Steve.

"It's useless for me to try to thank you," she said, with a catch in her voice.

He waved a deprecating hand. "I happened to have the chance to put you in on a good thing, and I was glad to do it. You needn't thank me either. You had a break coming from me anyway."

"And once I thought you were my enemy," she breathed.

"And so I was," he stated. "I think I proved a disagreeable enemy for a while, and now I hope you see that I am your friend. Mary. I guess I am lucky just to be able to see you now and then. A little bit of you is better than nothing at all."

MISTRUST GONE

Mary thought there was a wistfulness in his voice, her own cup of happiness was so overflowing that she could spare for Buck Landers a small measure of pity at the emptiness of his love. Love was denied him, and its absence brought a pain equivalent to her own joy. There was much badness in him, she thought, but there was a strain of goodness, too. And now, in the light of the great service he had done her, she could see only the good. The villainies of his past were wiped out, and he appeared to her pitifully empty-hearted and alone. The last of all mistrust against him had been erased from her heart.

"You mustn't be blue," she said, spontaneously.

"I'll try not to," he said with a grin, and she imagined, romantically, that he tried to hide his sorrow. "I'm feeling pretty good right now—I'm proud that I've hung on to your friendship through thick and thin. I did things to make you hate me—but here we are together, like a couple of pals. The only thing is—is get so damnably lonesome lots of times. Tonight I looked forward to seeing you like it was a sort of celebration."

But her own spirit, joyous in its upward flight of happiness, could not bear the touch of sadness in this man who had provided her gay, spangled trip of golden adventure to Cuba and Steve. His face, she thought, looked tired and worn; there was a new droop to his shoulders. Her fancy became imaginative and she glimpsed him as a kindly, gallant figure. What he needed was—love.

"You're intelligent about everything," she said to him gently. "You shouldn't live such a disorganized life in a hotel—you ought to have a home. Why don't you get married to some nice girl?"

SORRY FOR HIM

His eyes drifted away from hers. "I tried to marry a nice girl once—and you were the girl. You know the answer."

"But I'm only one girl—you could have a million to pick from!"

"Not girls of your type, Mary. I couldn't stand one of those jazz babies that anybody could get, and no girl on your level would want to marry me."

A pang of feeling stabbed her. He seemed an outcast—yet what a wonderful husband he would make for the right girl! There was something deep and mellow about him that most young men did not have—he had generosity, and immense powers of devotion.

"When I get to Steve, I'm going to tell him all about what you've done for me," she said. "I think you have been perfectly wonderful—and he will, too, when I tell him. I know of no other man alive who would have admitted his mistakes, and tried to make up for them, Mr. Landers."

But the role of depression was alien to his nature and he threw it off.

And while you are waiting for that trip to Cuba, I'll still be around. Why can't we see something of each other occasionally? There'll be no harm in it."

She hesitated a moment, prompted by some vague instinct, but she had not the heart to accept his favors and then turn them back.

"Why, yes, I'll be glad to see you sometimes. You can call me up here. I'm usually in or at the book store."

"I'll do that little thing," he told her, a note of satisfaction in his voice. "And if anything goes wrong meanwhile, just remember I'm standing behind you. If you ever need a strong hand to protect you from the world, that's me."

VISITS RELATIVES

That night Mary stretched her lovely young form out on her cot bed and gave herself up to joyous anticipations of the trip to Cuba. Her fancy pictured herself aboard the steamship, her arrival in Cuba . . . Steve's delight at seeing her . . . Oh, it was glorious to have love and pleasure mingled in such an immediate future. Eileen Calvert would be utterly discomfited—and all of her schemes nullified.

Her thoughts turned to her father and sister living in the uninspiring apartment in Brooklyn. There was a wave of pity for them, because they lived life without a thrill. Poor things, they seemed happy and content on so little. Mary herself had never actually seen that part of the family, only her mother had understood and loved her deeply.

But when she was married to Steve—when she had settled down—she meant to see more of them; she would do generous things for them. Even now, she had some money in excess of her Cuba trip, and next evening she went to Brooklyn and put two hundred dollars in her sister's hand. They were glad to get the money—it meant family refurnishment—but no one thought to inquire where Mary got it. But she was too engrossed herself in the miracle of living to mind their lack of curiosity. how could a girl with a wonderful lover like Steve, pin her mind down to any absorbing interest in the small details of her indifferent relatives? All that had been tender and sacred had been concentrated in the love between Mary and her mother . . . The others were just relations, nothing more . . .

EILEEN IN CUBA

Mr. Woolfe, at the bookshop, agreed reluctantly to hold Mary's job open for a month. "But maybe you won't come back at all," he added. "Romance in dusty books can't compare with the real thing, eh, Mary?"

It certainly was beginning to look, for a fact, like she was Fortune's favorite. The queenly little head was radiant, from now on it was merely a matter of counting the days until she was off to Cuba!

She waited for the weekly letter from Steve, and upon its arrival her happiness was clouded by the news that Eileen Calvert had arrived at the plantation. Steve's letter was ardent, but brief.

From then on, waiting became acute and disturbed suspense. She had an impulse to leave for Cuba immediately, but such haste seemed lacking in dignity. As though she couldn't trust Steve! Besides, she had promised Woolfe to stay in the shop three or four weeks before leaving.

When Buck Landers called her up and asked her out to dinner, she accepted—it meant one more evening marked off her calendar. They went back to the Morgenhoff, which was his favorite rendezvous. Across the sparkling immaculate table, with obsequious service all around them, he read the suppressed impatience in her eyes. His apparent sympathy understood her mood, and by degrees, she was soon telling him she was not at all worried because Eileen Calvert was in Cuba with Steve. Not at all!

"Well, let's hope he stays loyal to you, child," Landers consoled her. "There's no reason why you shouldn't hope for the best while you're waiting."

His words were reassuring, but their import lay like a weight on her heart. Not for an instant could she doubt Steve—but the thought of Eileen Calvert pursuing him got under her skin. Couldn't the girl understand once for all that Steve did not love her? Throughout the next week as Mary waited for the letter with the Cuban postage stamp she was startled with the thought of Eileen clutching at Steve, trying to reach at his chivalrous nature. It was a sacrilege, this effort to mar the shining beauty of their love . . .

Steve's letters arrived every Friday, and were distributed by the Negro maid in the rooming house, who spread out the mail for the various guests on a little marble-top table in the downstairs hall. On the day it was due Mary hurried home, more eager than usual. It would be waiting for her, addressed in Steve's boyish scrawl telling her that he had no interest whatever in Eileen Calvert. None, none, none! Hastily, her eyes ran over the scattering envelopes on the table, there was mail for a Mr. Weed, a Miss Harriet Clark, a J. J. Schwaltz . . . but there was no letter for Mary Kennedy . . .

NO LETTERS

She was angry, as a first reaction, at the stupidity of the Negro maid. How could the girl have failed to put the letter in its proper place? Of course, Steve had written—somebody had been careless. She went down the basement stairs and routed out her sullen-faced landlady.

"You didn't get no letter!" the woman declared stubbornly. "I handled the mail myself, personal, and no letter ain't ever lost in this house. It ain't a bit of good stewing and fretting—your letter ain't there."

Another week passed and another Friday came, and, again, there was no letter from Steve. Alone in her room, the memory of his smiling love, his humorous tenderness, the embrace of his arms, rushed on her and she sobbed, face downward on the bed with heartache and humiliation such as only a woman might know . . . It was a case of plain neglect . . . Had he been ill or injured, a cablegram would have reached her . . . It was unfair, it was mean for him to treat her that way!

In the midst of her disappointment, she had to dry her eyes and go down and answer a telephone call from Buck Landers. He wanted her again to go to dinner. Yes, she would accept the invitation, anything was better than shut up alone in her little room that had suddenly become a prison. With a grim desperation, she dressed in her most becoming frock—if Steve but knew it, other men would look upon her with admiration tonight! But her secret heart told her that this was insincere rebellion, that she was merely trying to bluff the blues away.

When she went downstairs, Landers was waiting for her in the hall.

"Looks like Steve's getting mighty impatient," he said with a smile. "There's a cablegram on the table there for you."

A cablegram! Strange she hadn't been called down to receive it—how careless such people as landladies could be with such tremendously important things!

"Excuse me a minute, please," she said, her heart swelling as she tore at the envelope. Adorable Steve—this would explain everything—maybe he was coming home! She held the message under the electric bulb in the hall.

"Forgive me, Mary, and forget all about me. Our engagement was a mistake for both of us. I married Eileen Calvert yesterday because I always did and always will love her.

"STEVE"

Her body turned to ice, then it turned to fire. All of a sudden her legs no longer supported her, and she would have fallen had not Landers caught her and guided her to a sofa against the wall. It was shocks like this that killed people—but while something vital perished, her body, her mind, stayed alive. Landers read the cable and passed it back to her. The words were before her eyes again, each one beating at her heart with hammer blows. Steve married to Eileen! Oh, it was too cruel—too hateful! For a minute, she wished ardently to die—to pass into oblivion where this pain could not reach her and tear her to pieces.

"But how could such a thing happen?" she said aloud, in a trance-like voice. "I don't understand why he bothered . . . to make me love him. I thought he meant everything he said—why, I suppose it was just a—a pastime—for Steve. And I took it seriously . . . but he wouldn't be captured. Oh, my God!" . . .

She covered her face with her hands—but her eyes were dry as stones. Oh, if she could only go somewhere and bury herself . . . If she could only forget! Instinctively her bright head began to rear itself with her inherent pride. It was beastly that Steve should have done this thing to her! After she had given him all of her love . . . to trample upon it brutally, was not the act of a real man.

"I reckon he couldn't resist all that Calvert money," Landers was saying. "Base as I am—you would have been better off if you had married me in the first place. But come—don't let him slay you. Where's your spunk, girl? We're going up to dinner tonight—you and I—to deuce with everything else!"

A wild recklessness, as untamed as a jungle beast, leaped in her breast.

"Yes, we'll go out to dinner, Buck Landers! That's the only thing that matters on earth now—we're going out to dinner!"

Mary's eyes ran over the envelopes on the table.

"How could such a thing happen?" she said aloud.

New Story Starts Tomorrow

Laurel threw her beauty and her essential fineness recklessly upon the roulette board of parties, casual kisses, SPEED.

She rushed in blindly—and the whirlwind of PAYING swept her into its vortex—PAYING for being a "HIGH SPEED GIRL."

May Christie has written another throbbing novel, turned the spotlight mercilessly upon today's pleasure-crazy youngsters. You won't want to miss the first chapter, which appears tomorrow in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

LOVE COMES BUT ONCE (Too Often)

Synopsis—For complete details concerning what has gone before, inquire at the information desk in the Union Depot.

Over in the rooting section the undergraduates were rouging their lips in preparation for the next yell. The three cheer leaders were stomping and arguing. Little did players or public suspect that the rules committee had been hastily called together beneath the grandstands to make a few simple last-minute changes, which would alter the whole complexion of the contest between Yuba and Tuba, which has been going on now since week before last.

"It's my idear," said President Murray Butler Nicholas, "to even up the score. The game is too one-sided. The visitors have 67 points, while my boys have only their memories, with a sprig or two of rosemary."

"What do you propose?" asked an old pedant who had been going around slapping people on the hip looking for violations of the Eighteenth Amendment.

"Well," said President Nicholas, "I was just thinking. When a player gets down on one knee to hold the ball for a place kick he should be required to sing a Mammy song."

No sooner . . . .

The Ban on Begging

The Police Edict Against Mendicancy Is Not as Cruel As It May Seem.

Supt. Peter P. Walsh, of the Bureau of Police, announces that the ordinance prohibiting begging on the city streets is going to be enforced.

Not even the blind and crippled are to be permitted to solicit alms.

The order is not as cruel as it may appear to the unsophisticated.

No one has to beg for a living. The Helping Hand, the Association for the Improvement of the Poor and other welfare organizations stand ready to feed the hungry and to provide clothing and shelter for the homeless.

The Welfare Fund and Emergency Association campaign now being conducted is designed for the very purpose of making it unnecessary for the destitute to beg or for the public to give money to street mendicants.

Supt. Walsh should have enforced the ordinance long ago.

Punishment for Murder

Judge Rowand Has Set a Good Example in Sentencing Slayer to Life Imprisonment.

Judge Harry H. Rowand set a good example for the judiciary and for juries in Criminal Court yesterday.

He sentenced a man who had committed a particularly heinous murder to life imprisonment.

He might have sentenced him to death, for the man had pleaded guilty. Judge Rowand chose instead the more enlightened, more civilized penalty.

If there were justification for the death penalty, it would be found in the case in question. For the culprit was guilty of a cruel crime. He lay in wait in a downtown drug store, for the purpose of robbing it, and shot down the manager in cold blood.

But capital punishment is not justified. It is barbarous and degrading and is no more effective than life imprisonment as a deterrent of murder.

Useful Traffic Lights

Downtown Street Signals Have Abundantly Proved Their Value.

The hubbub that has been raised over the turning out of the traffic lights during the peak of the rush last Saturday bears witness to the esteem in which this system of controlling traffic is held by the public.

It develops that the lights were turned out at certain intersections by direction of Jacob Dorsey, traffic inspector, on the theory that traffic could be moved much more expeditiously if guided by policemen.

He may have been right in that particular instance. The circumstances were exceptional. Traffic had reached unusually large proportions and there was a tangle. It seems reasonable to suppose that more flexible regulation than was possible under the light system was necessary for dealing with the emergency.

But of the value of the light signals at ordinary times there can be no question. They are a boon to pedestrians and motorists alike. They are superior to policemen in the clearness of their direction, in the regularity of traffic changes, and —in the case of some policemen—in courtesy.

Brigands at the Polls

That was an ugly picture of Pittsburgh that Judge James H. Gray, of Common Pleas Court, painted in his address at the Second Presbyterian Church Sunday night.

He said some of the polling places in the wards controlled by the corrupt Republican machine are "hangouts of bands of brigands," and told some shocking stories of the treatment that befell honest citizens who voted or tried to vote in these wards against the gang's candidates.

It would help to improve conditions if Judge Gray and others of equal authority would tell these shocking stories in every church and before every civic and patriotic society in the city.

Another thing that would help would be to send the political brigands to jail. There is encouragement in the fact that quite a few have been indicted.

Mr. Armstrong's Illness

The "Old Gray Mayor" Has the Sympathy of the Community in His Battle With Pneumonia.

Joseph G. Armstrong, chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, former Mayor of Pittsburgh, and a leader in the public life of this community for many years, is dangerously ill with pneumonia.

The Sun-Telegraph believes it is voicing the feeling of all the citizens in saying he has the sympathy of the community.

The "old gray Mayor" is a genial soul, and his friends are legion. He has given Pittsburgh and Allegheny County numerous public works and improvements.

Mr. Armstrong's political opponents will join with his faithful henchmen in the hope that he will speedily recover.

A Fine Safety Record

Trainmen of Pennsy's Pittsburgh Division Go Through a Month Without an Accident.

The Pittsburgh district's leadership in the safety movement is again brought to public attention by the announcement that the 900 trainmen of the Pittsburgh division of the Pennsylvania Railroad went through the month of October without an accident.

This is the first time that such a record was made, and appreciation of it is increased by consideration of the fact that the Pittsburgh division, largest division of the Pennsylvania system, crosses the Allegheny Mountains, and so presents hazards not found on other divisions.

Railroading used to be considered hazardous, but the Pittsburgh division trainmen have demonstrated that with care it can be made as safe as any occupation.

The Plotters

(Copyright, 1931.)

How pleasing it would be to the plotters if Uncle Sam would heed the request of China for American soldiers to guard the Manchurian railway against the Japs!

What merriment there would be in the halls of the League of Nations!

Repeatedly the Hearst newspapers have warned the country that impoverished nations overseas want United States MONEY and United States MEN to pull their chestnuts out of the fire.

Manchuria is aflame, the whole Far East smoulders; the League plotters will do all the TALKING and try to induce trusting Uncle Sam, his MEN and his MONEY to do the ACTING.

Sam will be wise if he MINDS HIS OWN BUSINESS and STAYS OUT.

Back to the Garret With 'Bloody Shirt'

By Claude G. Bowers

Three years ago the Republicans were almost tender in their affection for the South. We remembered the long years of the "bloody shirt," and later of the force bills, and wondered. That the "bloody shirt" and the old spirit of sectionalism would return we had no doubt; and now it is back again.

With the practical certainty that the Republicans cannot carry some of the usually reliable Republican states in the North, there is now no hope in the South. This makes it safe to bring back the "bloody shirt"—and it began to wave the day after the last election. Because the rule of seniority, which is a congressional and not a partisan rule, means that more southerners will have committee chairmanships in the House than northerners, the "bloody shirt" is given to the breeze again. One of the journalistic ministers without portfolio in the Hoover regime has gone to great pains to show that more southerners than northerners will have chairmanships in a Democratic House.

Well, what of it?

Rule of Seniority Ever Embarrasses

We have never been unmindful of the frequent embarrassments to all parties in the rule of seniority. This means simply this: A congressman is put upon a committee. If he remains many years he advances toward the top of the committee through the elimination of his seniors on the committee by death or defeat. In time he is the oldest member of his committee in his party. And when that party gains control of the House he moves automatically to the chairmanship. This is sometimes bad. The most mediocre member must have a committee assignment, and when, in time, he becomes the senior member and is entitled to a chairmanship it is unfortunate. But no one, Democrat or Republican, has been able to devise a more workable plan.

But the "bloody shirt" is being waved, not because of the unfitness of men, but because of the section from which they come. The South is Democratic and it has the good sense to continue its men in office year after year. New England acts similarly, and that is the reason that when the Republicans have the House, New England has important chairmanships entirely out of proportion to the population. That is the reason the South will have more chairmanships than the North in the new House.

But—when the Republicans have the House ALL the chairmanships go to the North, for they have a sectional, and never have had a national, party, and all their strength comes from the North. If the rule of seniority is followed this December it is said the South will have 31 chairmanships and the North 16.

How much fairer this than for the North to have 47 chairmanships and the South none!

What, then, is all the yelling about? In the spirit of the drowning man grasping at straws, the party in power, thoroughly discredited in the midst of the wreckage it has wrought, is merely getting the "bloody shirt" out of the garrett where McKinley tried to assign it years ago, and seek to raise the question of sectionalism.

Assumption of Ability Is Called Impudence

The assumption that all ability is in the North is sheer impudence and ignorance. It just so happens that the nation's greatest statesmen and constructive political thinkers have come from the South. Jefferson, Washington, Madison, Mason, Monroe—the greater portion of the constructive founders were from the South. Many of the ablest men in House and Senate today are from the South. The question of ability is not involved today. It is only a matter of policy. The South will have a majority of the chairmanships and ought to have them. The Speaker of the House will be Jack Garner, of Texas, an able, popular man, who will make a great presiding officer; he will have no opposition.

Now who shall the floor leader be? There are men in the South amply able to lead who deserve well of their party and would make strong leaders. But in view of the fact that the majority of the chairmanships will go to the South under the rule of seniority, and the Speaker by unanimous choice will come from the South, had we arbitrary power we would find an able Democrat in the North for the leadership. This as a matter of policy. We would like to see the southerners themselves sponsor the plan.

This is no time for petty quarrels over comparatively minor matters "and House patronage; just a little way ahead looms a great Democratic triumph—unless the Democrats themselves destroy their chances by factionalism.

Hoover Struggling With His Message

With the Democrats engrossed in matters of organization for a fight—for we assume it is to be a fight and not a kissing contest—Mr. Hoover is struggling with his message. This is not an easy task. There is so much to report on the state of the union that will be glossed over. To gloss over these matters without making them more conspicuous by the gloss will require great art, and even his most ardent idolators will not insist that Mr. Hoover is an artist in the use of words.

The public will be interested in seeing whether he will have anything to say about a plan to transfer the debts from the backs of those who owe them to the backs of American taxpayers.

And interested in noting whether even now he is content with the tariff as it stands.

And interested in observing whether he recommends a weakening of the fabric of the Federal Reserve System in the interest of unsuccessful gamblers.

Factory Migration Alarming Workers

Dr. Julius Klein, the administration's exotic and amusing economist, who added to the festivity of nations not long ago by some stupid theories on the effect of the tariff on foreign trade, attempts, in an article in the New York Herald Tribune, to convince our manufacturers that they should not move their factories, or, rather, build branches beyond our prohibitive tariff walls. The tremendous migration in this direction is alarming—to American workingmen. It began when in retaliation against our prohibition of foreign trade, other nations began to legislate the products of our factories from their markets.

But Dr. Klein, who has the administration's lack of frankness, ignores all this. He knows how to write Hamlet with Hamlet left out. A more labored and sophisticated article we have never read. If American manufacturers cannot reach the markets of Canada, England, France and other countries with their products because of our destructive tariff wall, they are going to build branches in those countries and employ foreign labor.

The public has a painful recollection of the almost daily pollyanna expert assurances of Dr. Klein during the last two years that prosperity was at hand; and of the usual fall in the stock market after each assurance.

We do not know whether the author of the book "Oh Yeah," reproducing the silly sayings and predictions of public characters, had recourse to Dr. Klein; but he could have made a ponderous work on Klein's predictions and explanations in 10 volumes—bound in brass.

Good-Sport Wives

Altogether too much is said and written about "blondes" and "brunettes" and "flappers" and "cuties"—and altogether too little about that typically modern woman, the good sport.

Any man who is lucky enough to be married to a good sport, in these trying times, ought to go down on the knees of his golf-knickers or his evening trousers or his overalls, and thank heaven for having handed him the rarest and most precious gift of life.

A woman may coddle and cater and coo to a man, while the money is flowing in and he is stringing her with pearls and wrapping her in ermine, until he thinks her "just the greatest little girl on earth."

But, when the tide turns and the only things that come in are bills, and she has to do her own kitchen work or pawn a few of her diamonds, a poor sport can grouch and whimper and make her man feel like a worm. While he is straining and struggling, to keep his head above water, she can fill him with an inferiority complex that will send him down for the third time.

Or she can force him to keep her at an expensive hotel, where he can run bills, sign dinner checks, and lie awake nights, wondering how he is going to keep out of jail, until "things take a turn for the better." A poor sport may make a good dance partner, but she makes a rotten life-partner.

A good-sport wife, on the other hand, faces the situation with a cheerful smile and says, "Oh well, life is just a see-saw—and anyway we've got EACH OTHER! So, what else matters?"

There have been good-sport wives, who have married men who were studying law or medicine or engineering; and who have put their little shoulders to the wheel and brought in the bacon, until hubby got where he was going and could afford to bring in the pate-de-fois-gras.

And there are good-sport wives, who shut their eyes and grit their teeth, and pretend never to see or to mind a flirtatious husband's philandering. Who hide their hurt vanity under gay smiles and never bat an eye, when they know the world is tittering or wondering.

And there are good-sport wives, who have defended and stood by drinking husbands and lazy husbands, and ineffectual husbands and sick husbands, and defied the world to sneer at them or criticise them. And, in the end, they are far happier and braver than the intolerant woman, who flits to Reno on the first provocation, and comes back with another "Ideal," who turns out to be just another poor, weak, faulty human being.

* * *

Good sportsmanship is always highly valued in athletics, in cards, or in war; but nowhere is it so much NEEDED as in the Armageddon of marriage! And the highest compliment a man can pay his wife is to call her "a good little sport."

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Every visitor, as well as every native, notices a new mellowness to New York in recent months. It has been given the name of "depression courtesy" and is expressed especially in places once distinctly high hat.

There is no longer that lackadaisical manner so long affected by boxoffice men and there is even a distinct democracy among haughty movie cathedral ushers.

Headwaiters who regarded anything less than a Vanderbilt as "the chewing gum trade," display an obeisance toward all.

In the flush of an amazing prosperity, the entire town had become so stiffly formal it creaked. Harry Hirshfield tells of a hole-in-the-wall delicatessen known as Dave's in the Bronx becoming "Ye Olde Salami Shoppe," and an East Side tailor sign heralding, "Maurice, formerly Moe."

Austere clerks in uppity hotels, who found it convenient to walk off as a guest approached, now grow delightfully companionate and answer questions with a smile. It is the same in the high toned haberdasheries where once one was received "by appointment only."

There were shirt makers, booking no orders less than a half dozen. Tailors who lifted an eyebrow at a sale of less than three suits to a customer. Bootleggers who sold nothing less than a case at a time. And so on. Today no order is too small.

It has been one of my lesser ambitions to drop into an avenue tobacconist, whose ultra-British "clerks" are clad in white linen dusters, and ask to look at corn cob pipes. Then skee-daddle away like everything. At the moment, however, I don't think it would create the slightest furore.

If Manhattan in the consuming crisis, is restored to a shred of Gay Ninety gallantry, the trying times will not have been in vain. The sudden snap of snootiness, too, has resulted in a jocularity I never knew in the town before. But maybe they laugh to keep from crying!

I have often experimented with some of my feeble wit on a certain bachelor's valet—one of those gentleman's gentlemen with the expression of a moose—with discouraging result. Last evening I tried out a wow, relayed from Billy Moore, that I punctuated with my own unrestrained giggling. At the conclusion, he bowed slightly and said: "Amusing, quite." But not once did his frozen features relax into a suggestion of a smile. And did I feel oogle boogle!

* * *

Bugs Baer is completely fed up with banquet speaking, as who isn't? Recently he was invited to Pittsburgh, to a public dinner. He replied that he would come but his fee would be $1,000. Then he explained his charge would be only $100 for his talk. "The $900," he said, "is for being forced to listen to the other bores."

* * *

There are several distinguished banquet atheists aside from Baer who could formerly be counted upon to enliven with wit from the dais. Irvin Cobb no longer appears at such festivities and Mayor Walker is seen only at times when friendship or political expediency demand his presence. Incidentally the best banquet orator of the day is Russell Wilson, Mayor of Cincinnati, who used to be a newspaperman himself. Christopher Morley saved one of the hotels from embarrassment the other day. Calling on a friend, he ordered a bottle of table water and was startled to find on its neck a caveat that: "This bottle is sold on the understanding it will not be used for alcoholic beverages." Mr. Morley gallantly preserved the honor of the hotel by drinking his straight.

Paul Whiteman tells of a bachelor friend whose house costume is a great mandarin robe. Recently a slightly crocked chorine blew in, gave him a once over, and lifting a side of the skirt, cracked: "What, no bowl of goldfish!"

Then there was the Park avenue flapper who phoned a hostess shortly after midnight: "I'm terribly sorry I could not get to your party this evening, but I was suddenly taken drunk."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Young Jim's been telling me about himself. He thinks he is a bad lot. You'd hardly suspect it to look at him. Splendid body, handsome face, fine brain, good prospects, nice family—

"Yes, that's just the trouble," says young Jim. "I've got everything that a fellow is supposed to have. And everyone expects I am going to make good in a big way. Yet inside I'm a mess. If I had may way I'd be a regular tramp. I'm lazy—the very sight of work gives me a pain. I'm naturally a liar and a thug. Now what would you do with a combination like that?"

I'd do just what I am doing, young Jim. For I am a combination like that.

Theoretically, I have a contempt for lazy people. I look with stern disapproval at their shiftless ways. What's more, I practice what I preach. I work incessantly—literally never have an idle moment.

AND ALL THE TIME I'M ENVYING TRAMPS, EVERY REBELLIOUS NERVE IN MY BUSTLING BODY WANTS TO LOAF!

Liars—how I detest them! How I despise their slimy ways! Truth—it's a beautiful, brave thing. I'm always advising people to tell the truth, no matter what it costs. I always try to tell the truth myself—particularly if there's a liar looking on. And yet—

HOW I LOVE LYING! IT'S THE EASIEST THING I DO. IT'S MY BEST AND FAVORITE TALENT.

Outlaws? I haven't words strong enough to express my disapproval of outlaws. Rats! Wolves! Contemptible prowlers! As a respectable citizen, I take a furious stand against them.

YET ALL THE TIME I'D GIVE MY EYE-TEETH TO BE ONE OF THEM! WHAT GRAND, EXCITING TIMES THEY HAVE! WHAT FUN TO BE AN OUTLAW!

Yes, you can go right down the line of vices, and my reaction is the same to every one of them—I'M LINED UP WITH THE SAINTS. BUT GOSH, HOW I ENVY THE SINNERS!

Is this a confession of my individual depravity? No—it's the story of all men. It is your story, stranger, as well as mine. IT IS THE STORY OF CIVILIZATION.

Every normal human creature wants to be lazy, dishonest, lawless, cowardly, because that was its natural condition as a brute. And we are still so near the brutes—so near that a very slight shove will send most of us back into the jungle.

But just as there is a brute under every human hide, so is there something that isn't brute in every human heart—a strange but certain urge toward decency . . . toward orderliness and honesty. Where does it come from? Why should this divine thing be in us, side by side with all the brutal things? We do not know. Your guess is as good as mine, friend. But there they are . . . the two urges, always in conflict. And out of that struggle has come CIVILIZATION.

Do not be horrified or discouraged if you see that struggle going on in yourself or in your children. Do not feel that you are abnormal . . . or fear lest you have a secret, shameful Other Self. Of course you have! Everyone has. That's human life.

Human life is—AN APE, STRUGGLING WITH A GOD.

Sometimes the ape in you will be so strong that you will feel its matted, hairy hide and hear the gnashing of its yellow fangs.

But sometimes, for a lovely instant, the ape will suddenly fall back, and there, tall white and shining, will stand a God!

Acknowledge the ape within you. Don't despair when you feel him shambling around. You're not to blame for that ape. You were born with him in you. But you were also born with something in you that can fight him—a God. THE MORE YOU BELIEVE IN THE GOD, THE LESS YOU'LL HAVE TO FIGHT THE APE.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

So Many Doors

So many doors before we wait
As in life's hall I stand,
Uncertain, yet importunate,
With eager, lifted hand.
Shut doors that lead to unknown rooms,
To chambers strange and new;
In some each day the sunlight blooms,
The winds of heaven sweep through.
And some dark and dank and cold;
The bravest, entering there,
Would feel youth wither, growing old
And blighted by despair.

So many doors, how can I know
Which latch my hand must raise?
I watch the flying hours go,
I count the drifting days
Until at last I understand
And make my choice aright;
Who lifts each latch with faith's firm hand
Will find all chambers bright.
For, lo! a miracle is wrought,
And only beauty flows
To greet him who, in trusting thought,
Past any threshold goes!

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

You want to be known as a good sport.

Often you bet on the outcome of some contest knowing that if you lose you will be unable to pay certain bills you owe.

You expect to win, but give little heed to what would be the consequences if you should lose.

Some of your legitimate bills you cannot pay because you have lost money in gambling.

Then are you not more punctual in paying your gambling debts than you are in paying honest debts for necessaries?

In one case you want to be known as a "straight shooter" among those with whom you mingle in a social or gambling way.

But how about the reputation you have gained among straight business men who depend upon customers paying their bills promptly in order to remain in business?
